PLAYWRIGHT DROWNED

Avery Hopwood Dies in Sea

Cramps Attack Writer as He Swims With Friends at French Resort Beach

Many Successes Created by Co-Author of "The Bat" in Spectacular Career

(Copyright, 1928, N. Y. Herald-Tribune.)

NICE (France) July 1. (Exclusive)—Avery Hopwood, American playwright and producer, was drowned tonight while swimming in the sea off Juan-les-Pins shortly after 8 o'clock. Apparently in good health, Hopwood went into the water with a party of friends after dinner. He swam away from the party and suddenly was seized with cramps. He went under before aid could reach him. Guards and his friends dived for the body, which was recovered.

Hopwood had been making a tour of France and arrived at the Hotel Provencal at Juan-les-Pins several days ago. He planned to return to Paris in a few days preparatory to sailing for New York next week. His funeral arrangements have been made and it is understood the body will be sent to New York.

Mr. Hopwood was born with becoming quietness, the records disclose, in Cleveland, O., May 28, 1884, was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1905, with scarcely more fuss, and then pointed himself toward New York. In the same year he sold his first play, "Clothes."

RISQUE FARCES

The stimulating effects of that extraordinary feat never departed from him and he became the fashion in farces involving risque situations. Indeed, with due respect to the French school of purple and gray drama, he surpassed all of its fellows in inventing diverting, if unpromising, situations for his heroines.

Three of his plays, perhaps are his monument: "Fair and Warmer," "The Gold Diggers" and that terrific spot and muchly plagiarized mystery epic, "The Bat," which he wrote in collaboration with Mary Roberts Rinehart.

It was while Mr. Hopwood was resting at his ease at the university one afternoon that he read the successful playsmiths Clyde Fitch and Charles Klein. The article stated that each enjoyed a princely income and a swimming pool.

"I could enjoy a swimming pool," mused Mr. Hopwood, "and I shall write plays to get it."

His sophomore determination became so fulsome a reality that before he had four plays on Broadway at once. He once explained that his success lay in a card index system he kept. In it he filed away ideas that had come to him during the day, characters he had heard or seen, situations that he had conceived and plots that had shaped so he trudged along the years. The result was every month or so a mass of uncorrelated material that when properly juggled became a play.

MANY PRODUCTIONS

His plays were so elastic and universal in appeal that they played with equal success in America, Canada, Europe and the Orient in the

Presents Help Check for $1000 to Swell Antarctic Expedition Fund

NEW YORK, July 1. (AP)—Contribution of a check for $1000 from one world-renowned aviator to another today marked the first anniversary of the landing of Commander Richard E. Byrd's trans-Atlantic plane America at Ver-sur-Mur, France.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh presented the check to the fund being raised for Commander Byrd's Antarctic expedition.

HOOVER HAS DAY'S REST

Espousal of Dry Cause Planned

Secretary Goes to Church as He Delays Completion of Acceptance Talk

Candidate Will Leave Capital for West Next Week and See Coolidge on Way

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—Secretary Hoover left off work on his speech of acceptance of the Republican Presidential nomination over Sunday and, with his family, enjoyed a holiday unbroken except for church attendance.

Apparently to avoid the curious, he went to church today at the Second Friends' Church in Washington, located in Irving street away from the downtown section, and the throng that has gathered regularly around the little downtown Quaker meeting-house failed to see him.

The sections of the acceptance speech dealing with farm issues are said to have been completed by Mr. Hoover in the two or three afternoons of work he got in last week. The next major question now before him in the preparation of the address involves prohibition.

STRONG STAND LIKELY

Republican advisers constantly have been in touch with their Presidential candidate while he has framed the campaign principles he will enunciate, and the opinion is stronger today that he intends to deal unmistakably with the prohibition issue.

It is pointed out that two years ago, in his capacity as Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Hoover designated prohibition as one marked cause for American industrial efficiency. It is believed that in addition to reiterating the Republican position of law enforcement, he may be expected to give warm support to the principles of the prohibition statute.

Final arrangements will be made tomorrow for his California trip, during the progress of which he will spend a day or so with President Coolidge in Wisconsin and hand in his resignation from the Cabinet. Secretary Work, the Re-

NEW STRIDE FOR 'TIMES'

Great Fast Wire Service Added

North American Newspaper Alliance Sets Record in Journalism

Feature Stories of World to Be Received Here by Phone Typewriters

NEW YORK, July 1. (Exclusive) The North American Newspaper Alliance, feature news organization owned mutually by the foremost newspapers in the United States and Canada, announces today a new program and policy of expansion which establish a precedent in journalism.

The expansion of the Alliance, whose exclusive member in Southern California is the Los Angeles Times, provides the first wire service for news features ever set up by a group of newspapers co-operatively organized for the collection and distribution of such features.

Furthermore, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which has worked out this telephone-typewriter wire service and will operate it, announces that it is the largest ever put into operation at one time. In four circuits having a total length of approximately 12,000 miles, it links powerful daily newspapers spread across the continent.

BRILLIANT SPORTS STAFF

Over this network, which stretches from coast to coast, and from the Gulf of Mexico into Canada, will be flashed the authoritative feature news reports of specialists on business, sports, radio, politics and other divisions of news interest and importance. In addition, there will be special feature covering of dramatic news happenings, whatever form they may take, and the writers will be of national reputation.

The sports staff of the North American Newspaper Alliance will be directed by Walter Trumbull, serving as sports editor and feature writer. Mr. Trumbull is nationally known as an authority on sports, college, amateur and professional, is an able and entertaining writer, and has the intimate confidence of champions and sports leaders generally.

He was sports editor of the New York Evening Sun, sports columnist and special sports writer for the New York World, he established the famous sports column, "The Listening Post," on the New York Herald, and until he joined the Alliance he conducted a column with the same title for the New York Evening Post. Mr. Trumbull, with his typewriter, will be found at all big sports events. His articles will appear in the Alliance papers six days a week.

COVERING GRIDIRON NEWS

The sports staff directed by Mr. Trumbull includes such brilliant specialists in their own fields as Walter Hagen, British open golf champion and holder of the American professional title; Vincent Richards, former Davis Cup star and American professional tennis champion; Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight champion of the world and eventual challenger for the heavyweight title, and George Moriarty, present manager of the Detroit Baseball Club, and former star player and veteran umpire. Each man, in his writing, will confine himself to his own sport.

Extensive arrangements have been made by the Alliance for remarkable service during the college football season. Four of the country's most notable coaches have been retained to write for the organization's membership. The East will be "covered" by Bill Roper, famous coach at Princton; the Midwest and the Rocky Mountain States will be taken care of by another celebrity, Bob Zuppke, University of Illinois; the Pacific Coast by the clever Howard Jones, coach at the University of Southern California, and the South by Dan McGugin, campus idol at Vanderbilt.

The business news division of the Alliance will be in the capable care of John F. Sinclair, writer, banker, economist and lawyer who has the trust of the country's leaders in finance and business. Mr. Sin-

LIFE RISKED IN TESTS OF PARASITES

Animal Bureau Expert Uses Self to Experiment; Beats Off Illness

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—Risking a dangerous illness, Dr. Emmett W. Price, a veterinarian of the Bureau of Animal Husbandry, has completed an investigation of a hitherto unknown species of a human intestinal parasite during which he swallowed several of the parasites to determine their effect. He suffered an illness during the experiment but deemed his experience as part of his work carrying out the code of the bureau.

Dr. Price's experiment was made when he found the parasites in the liver of a giraffe that died at the National Zoological Park. He swallowed several of them after he had investigated them and believed them to be a new species of a tapeworm. Several large worms developed in his own body but he is now entirely recovered and is continuing his experiments with the parasites with calves.

This method is the only way to obtain exact information, said Dr. Maurice C. Hall, head of the parasitology section of the bureau, and it is a tradition of the service that the man conducting the experiment use himself as a subject.

FIFTEEN DIE IN CLASH OF INDIA SECTS

Twenty-five Others Hurt When Hindus and Sikhs Attack Mohammedans

CALCUTTA (India) July 1. (AP)—Newspaper reporters say that fifteen persons were killed and twenty-five seriously wounded at Khargpur Friday when a Mohammedan religious procession with music attempted to pass a Hindu temple. Hindus and Sikhs attacked the procession.

There was plenty of stone throwing but most of the deaths occurred in fighting in by-lanes, gullies and houses where the police were unable to intervene effectively. Two women were stabbed to death while trying to save the lives of relatives.

Police reinforcements have been sent to Khargpur and the situation is reported as under control.

Another Jailed for Making Plea to Japan's Ruler

TOKIO, July 1. (AP)—Another unsuccessful attempt to make a personal appeal to the Emperor on behalf of the poor was made today while the monarch was proceeding from the imperial to the Akasaka palace. A broom-maker tried to force his way through the guards and was arrested.

He carried a petition pleading for improvements in the condition of the proletariat and expressing indignation over failure of the government to afford relief.

These attempts at direct appeals have become so numerous of late that the authorities are threatening severe punishment.

Cat Bite Kills Veteran of War

NEW YORK, July 1. (AP)—Col. Edgar Armstrong, who came unscathed through the World War, died today at a hospital from blood poisoning caused by the bite of a stray cat.

As a member of the army general staff during the war he was often under fire on the western front. Last Thursday night a cat leaped through a window of his Garden City home. Col. Armstrong fondled it as it climbed into his lap. The cat bit his finger. Blood poisoning developed the next day.

SENATOR INGRAM IMPROVES

GRASS VALLEY, July 1. (AP)—State Senator Ingram, who has been critically ill at a hospital here for ten days, was reported better today.

PROSPERITY CONTINUES

Nation's Purse in Fine Shape

Mellon Reports $398,000,000 Surplus for Fiscal Year That Ended Saturday

National Debt Reduced by $900,000,000; Tax Load $220,000,000 Lighter

WASHINGTON, July 1. (Exclusive)—The Federal government balanced its books for the fiscal year which ended yesterday with a surplus on hand of $398,000,000, according to the annual statement today of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

ANDREW W. MELLON

Declaring the fiscal period just closed to have "witnessed a further improvement in the financial position of the government" and supporting that assertion with detailed figures, Mr. Mellon's yearly accounting of the fiscal affairs of the nation is regarded here as a first-rate political document for the Republicans and one which no doubt will be referred to many times in the coming Presidential campaign.

Citing reduction of the national debt by more than $900,000,000 and the lopping of more than $220,000,000 from the annual tax burden of the country, the report shows continuance for the past twelve months of the economical policies of the Coolidge Republican administration.

It is hailed by Republican leaders as answering completely and effectively the criticism raised by Democrats in Congress last winter and nailed into the Democratic platform at Houston.

MELLON'S STATEMENT

Mr. Mellon's statement follows:

"The fiscal year just closed has witnessed a further improvement in the financial position of the government. There was a substantial surplus of receipts over expenditures. The national debt was reduced by more than $900,000,000, accompanied by a material cut in interest charges. The vast refunding operations begun in 1927 were continued and have been well-nigh brought to a successful conclusion. Taxes again were cut by more than $220,000,000.

"The total ordinary receipts amounted to $4,042,000,000 as compared with the estimate submitted to the Congress by the Treasury last October of $4,076,000,000, and as compared with $4,129,000,000 in the fiscal year 1927. The expenditures chargeable against such receipts were $3,644,000,000, as compared with the budget estimate of $3,621,000,000 (exclusive of $50,000,000 under War Claims Act) and expenditures in 1927 of $3,494,000,000. The surplus amounted to $398,000,000, as compared with the Treasury estimate of $405,000,000 and with a surplus of $635,000,000 in 1927.

RECEIPTS

"The aggregate of tax receipts, that is customs, income tax, and miscellaneous internal revenue receipts, was $3,364,000,000, or $111,000,000 less than receipts from these sources in 1927, and $41,000,000 less than the amount estimated by the Treasury last October, a difference of 1.2 per cent.

"Income-tax receipts aggregate $2,174,000,000, as compared with $2,225,000,000 in 1927 and as against an estimate of $2,165,000,000. In view of the amount of discussion that has taken place as to the accuracy of the Treasury's estimate of income taxes it is worthy of note that with collections aggregating more than $2,000,000,000, they exceeded estimates by the narrow margin of $9,000,000, or an error of .42 of 1 per cent.

"Customs yielded $569,000,000, as compared with an estimate of $602,000,000, and receipts last year of $605,000,000. The latter were record figures. This year's are about normal.

"Miscellaneous internal revenue receipts were $621,000,000 as com-

THOUSANDS FLEE DEATH AS LAVA ENGULFS TOWNS

Volcano in Philippines Hurls Its Molten Rivers Down Side of Mountain Onto Villages

LEGASPI (Province of Albay, P. I.) July 1. (AP)—The coast town of Libog, with a population of 7000 and several villages near the eastern base of the Volcano Mayon, virtually have been destroyed by lava streaming down the volcano's side, refugees reaching here today reported. The volcano has been in eruption since June 21 and all the inhabitants of the devastated district are presumed to have left days ago. Thousands have fled from the district, most of them coming here. Threat of cholera aggravated the evils of the situation in the refugee camp today, when two cases of illness, suspected to be that dread plague, were found. Health authorities, however, are watching conditions closely and say a widespread epidemic is improbable.

The volcano continues in eruption, pouring lava down the eastern slope toward the ravaged towns. Vegetation was destroyed, even the trees having been killed.

NATIVES IN PANIC

The peak itself, rising 8274 feet above sea level, fire crowned at night and with ribbons of red-hot lava streaming down toward the the sea, presents an awe-inspiring spectacle. Gas emitted from the interior ignites on mixing with the air in the furnace-like crater, and explodes, shooting flames into the sky. The repeated explosions cause a trembling in the atmosphere, which can be felt for miles.

The phenomena have inspired the natives with a fear approaching panic. Crowds fill the churches, imploring divine protection and religious processions have been held in the streets here nightly.

The eastern slope of the volcano so far has received the whole fiery deluge. The lip of the crater on that side is lower than elsewhere and allows the lava to spill over before it reaches higher levels. The molten streams there can be seen from a distance, glowing red-hot through the tropic darkness and retaining their brightness until they have run half-way to the foot of the mountain.

FLY OVER CRATER

Lieuts. George W. Goddard and John Carkille, army aviators, flew over the crater yesterday morning. They took photographs of the caldron, which, they said, is about 400 feet in diameter and is filled with a molten flood of lava.

Although officials have pointed out that the eruption is comparatively mild, their assurances have failed to calm the native population.

"The mountain is already angry," they replied to the advisers, and continued their flight, driving their cattle before them, and carrying their personal belongings and rice stores. They still remember with fear that some 200 persons were killed by lava flows in 1897, when Mayon "was angry" and on another rampage.

The town of Libog is on the north shore of Albay Bay, in Albay Province, Island of Luson. It enjoyed an extensive native craft trade in hemp to provincial ports of shipment, principally Legaspi to Manila.

PLOT AIMED AT ENVOY

Blast Planned to Kill Morrow

Pitched Battle in Mexico Reveals Rebel Hopes to Wreck Train

Ambassador's Return to Post Was Time Set for Dynamiting

MEXICO CITY, July 1. (Exclusive)—What is believed to have been a plot to dynamite the train on which United States Ambassador Morrow is to return to Mexico City was revealed following a battle this morning at El Rodeo, State of Queretaro, in which twenty-six rebels and one Federal were killed and nine other insurgents were captured and executed, according to dispatches received here.

The battle lasted five hours, during which about 100 Federals defeated twice that number of rebels and routed them. In addition to one lieutenant killed the Federals reported three men wounded.

The nine prisoners were found to be in possession of elaborate railroad maps of the route over which Ambassador Morrow is expected to pass next Tuesday. Among the materials captured were explosives similar to those used in three recent attempts to wreck trains between Laredo and Mexico City.

The prisoners were ordered summarily executed by the Federal commander and marched out on a road near where the battle took place and shot by a firing squad.

As a result of several attempts recently to blow up trains authorities have arranged extraordinary precautions to guard the train on which the United States Ambassador will travel, and to keep the route clear of all suspicious characters.

HICKMAN IN FIGHT WITH CELL MATE

Murderers at San Quentin Battle With Fists, But Refuse to Tell Why

SAN QUENTIN, July 1. (AP)—William Edward Hickman, condemned to death for kidnaping and murdering 12-year-old Marian Parker in Los Angeles and Joseph Troche, sentenced to be hanged for the murder of his sweetheart, Miss May Lorenzo, in Eldorado county, fought with their fists in their cell in San Quentin prison last night.

Guards heard the prisoners who have been cell mates for a month, struggling and swearing after the prison had settled down. Rushing into the cell they found Hickman on top of Troche who is the smaller.

When the prisoners were pulled apart, Troche, a former Sacramento fighter, was found to have a few bruises on his face, while Hickman was unmarked. In announcing the news today, Warden James B. Holohan said both prisoners refused to say what the fight was about.

Troche received treatment at the prison hospital and the men were then locked in separate cells. Both have appealed to the higher courts to escape hanging.

Other appointments to the United States follow: Mario Dessaules, Consul at St. Louis; Vice-Consuls Nicolo Yimone, Newark, N. J., Giovanni Giurator, Pittsburgh; Vitale Gallina, Houston, Tex.; Romeo Montecchi, Providence, R. I., and Antonio Logoluso, Boston.

VOTERS PICK OBREGON

Mexican Election of Chief Quiet

New Deputies and Senators Elected; No Contest for Presidential Seat

Dry Lid Clamps Down Tight as Soldiers Stand Guard at Polls of Nation

MEXICO CITY, July 1. (Exclusive)—Gen. Alvaro Obregon was elected next President of Mexico today. Mexican citizens went to the polls here and throughout the republic and cast their ballots for him and for a new set of Deputies and Senators without any sign of disorder.

It was the most orderly election ever held in Mexico City and apparently the same order prevailed, with the exception of a few fist fights and minor disturbances, in the interior cities of the republic. The Minister of the Interior declares that reports received from interior points stated that voting was peaceful and that there were no disorders of any consequence.

GENERAL QUIET

Press dispatches being received tonight from various sections of the country reporting election results read almost as though stereotyped.

"Elections held here without disturbance of any sort," or "Complete order prevailed during holding elections," are popular phrases used by correspondents of metropolitan dailies.

In a majority of cases, candidates to Congress of the Socialist or Social Democratic party, both adherents of Obregon, are reported as victorious at the polls. Messages so far received are from San Pedro, Coahuila; Monterrey, Nuevo Leon; Pachuca, Hidalgo, Guanajuato, and Tuxtepec, Oaxaca. One dispatch from Tezuitlan, Puebla, contains a complaint from opponents to Obregon Congressional candidates that under pretext of maintaining order, soldiers used their weapons and fired shots at anti-Obregonistas, wounding one of them and preventing freedom of vote. From Puebla disquieting reports were received earlier in the day predicting possible political clashes which, however, have not been confirmed.

CITY IN PERFECT CALM

Mexico City was perfectly calm. The capital presented none of its usual Sunday holiday spirit. Most of the residents remained indoors, fearful that riots might result.

The most exciting event of day was a large number of farmer organizations and those labor unions friendly to Obregon who paraded the principal streets in touring cars and jitneys. As they progressed along their march they voiced their support of Obregon in hearty shouts, expressing themselves with equal vehemence against those who have shown hostility to the former President.

At Obregon's headquarters it was stated that it was anticipated that more than 1,000,000 votes would be cast for their candidate by 5 o'clock this afternoon when the polls closed.

CALLES CASTS VOTE

President Calles voted at 11 this morning at a booth in the Presidential district. He arrived, accompanied only by his chauffeur who likewise cast his ballot for the President's friend.

The polls were protected by squads of soldiers with fixed bayonets stationed at each four corners of blocks where polls are located. Soldiers in trucks moved through the city ready for any emergency. Residents apparently believed in voting early as most places were crowded during the earlier hours of the morning, becoming practically deserted by noon.

Voters crowded into polls, cast their ballots, then immediately proceeded about their business. The presence of the military and police tended to keep people moving. The entrance to each voting-booth was guarded heavily by soldiers in full field equipment. The order prohibiting carrying arms apparently was obeyed.

Mexico City and the entire country were dry today. All saloons were closed airtight. It was impossible to get intoxicants even in private

Body of Lost Air-Mail Pilot Found by Boy

ELSINORE (Mo.) July 1. (AP)—The body of Leslie H. Smith, missing air-mail pilot, was found lying by his plane about five miles north of here at noon today by an 11-year-old farmer boy.

On his back was strapped his parachute, with the release untouched, indicating that the crash had come suddenly and left him unprepared to leap.

The body was positively identified as Smith by "Bud" Gurney, chief air-mail pilot of Robertson Aircraft Company, employers of the pilot. Gurney was one of twenty flyers who scoured the region yesterday and today in a search for the flyer, who left Little Rock, Ark., Thursday night for St. Louis. It is believed by members of the searching party that Smith encountered a terrific storm in the territory and lost all sense of direction, probably crashing when he had believed the plane was climbing.

COOLIDGES JOINED BY SON

Arrival Gives Crowds at Brule Real Surprise; Attends Church Services With Parents

SUPERIOR (Wis.) July 1. (AP)—The inhabitants of Brule and the crowds of visitors that far outnumbered the population of the hamlet received a new thrill today when church time came round at the little white-washed chapel at the crossroad. President Coolidge's party had grown to three with the arrival this morning of his son, John.

Reaching Cedar Island Lodge this morning from the East just as his parents were about to leave for church, John Coolidge was taken along by them. Still dressed in the suit he wore on the train, it was the son's turn today to be the center of attention on the part of the Brule congregation. Two Sundays ago Mr. Coolidge had gone to church alone and last Sunday Mrs. Coolidge attended chapel with him for the first time.

All roads in Northern Wisconsin seem to lead to Brule at present. Reports from tourist camps indicate an overflow of tourists with a general expectation that the congestion soon will reach the Brule surroundings.

This spells to the Brule authorities large restless crowds, which they are unaccustomed to handling and which must yet be prevented from bothering Mr. Coolidge. The crowds are expected to be all the more troublesome for the fact that they will act with cumulative effect on Sundays only when the Chief Executive and his family are visible at church.

In previous years Mr. Coolidge was more or less visible to tourists all through the week. This, to a certain extent, staged off the pressers

VETERAN TRAINING AT END

Government Completes $600,000,000 Task With Vast Throng Made Self-Supporting

WASHINGTON, July 1. (Exclusive)—Tomorrow one of the government's greatest and most important post-war activities—the rehabilitation of disabled World War veterans—will come to an end when the last grooup of trainees among the 128,500 men who have been trained to be self-supporting, or nearly so, at a total cost of more than $600,000,000, receive their diplomas.

The number of men who took advantage of the training offered them far exceeded the original estimates. A total of 334,494 applied for the benefits offered them before June 30, 1923, and of these 216,431 were rated as entitled to full courses.

Out of the latter number 58,873 dropped out. Besides paying for tuition and books the government provided $100 a month for single men and $135 a month for married men, with additional allowances for other dependents.

All men with 10 per cent disability or more were eligible to vocational training. In many cases, of course, the nature of the disability partly determined the course of training, but the veterans, after receiving the advice of professional educators, were allowed to make the final choice, except where their ideas either were too fantastic or impossible.

Among the hundreds of occupations that of poultry farming predominated among the men and among those graduated in the poultry course, were 100 blind men. Following the chicken raisers in point of numbers came general farmers, mechanics, electricians, bookkeepers and mechanical draftsmen.

"Whatever the cost, it has largely been justified," declared Brig.-Gen. Hines, director of the Veterans' Bureau. "Instead of the contemplation of thousands of broken, impoverished men left neglected throughout the country to work out their own salvation, as must have been the case without vocational training, we have today the spectacle of these same thousands restored, self-reliant and hopeful, marching along step by step and shoulder to shoulder with their comrades and competitors in all branches of the commercial, industrial and professional world."

SMITH'S TALKS TO BE LIMITED

Probably Will Make Only Fifteen Speeches

Radio Rules Out Old-Time Stumping Tour

Expected to Deal Extensively With Wet Issue

ALBANY (N. Y.) July 1. (AP)—Gov. Smith probably will not make more than fifteen political speeches during his two months' campaign for the Presidency.

The Governor himself is not making any definite announcement of his plans until after his conference with the national Democratic committee in New York the 11th inst., but the political "dope" had crystallized sufficiently today so that a fairly accurate forecast of the nature and extent of the campaign could be made.

The feeling of Smith supporters generally is that the old idea of a political campaign as a long series of speeches in as many places as possible is a thing of the past, driven out chiefly by the advent of radio broadcasting.

WILL AVOID REPETITION

"No man," they say, "can make speeches for sixty nights hand running, or for half that number, without repeating himself over and over, and that will not go with the radio audience."

So the tentative plan is that the Governor will give about fifteen speeches in strategic parts of the country, all of which will be different and all of which will be broadcast on a national radio hookup. That will make not more than two speeches in any one week during the campaign, which is expected to be opened about Labor Day.

"What profiteth it," said one person close to the Governor today, "if a man gain all else and lose his health?"

The probable itinerary of the Governor's campaign, as near as it can be forecast at this early date, is as follows:

One speech in New York City, one in New Jersey, three in the New England States, one each in Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and Denver, and the rest somewhere in the border States and on the West Coast.

NO TRAIN TALKS

The time between these engagements will be spent in resting on trains and in hotels and it is not believed that there will be any impromptu addresses.

Talks will not be made from the rear platform of the campaign train at way stops, the Governor at most merely waving to the crowds that may be gathered there.

Gov. Smith is a man who takes enjoyment in direct contact with people and the impression is general here that personally he would like to make the old-fashioned stump-speech tour. But he apparently has bowed to the counsel of others and to the dictates of his own political logic, which both tell him that that sort of old-time whirlwind speaking tour is no longer effective.

SUBJECTS UNDECIDED

Exactly what the subject of his speeches will be is still largely a matter of conjecture, but it is known that he is planning his addresses along the lines of "constructive statesmanship."

That is, he will not indulge in the sort of oratory that featured the Democratic keynote speech.

He will avoid charges of inefficiency or corruption against the Republicans and will try to "sell himself" to the people by telling in simple language what he expects to do if elected. He will attempt to win for himself a "positive vote;" that is, to be elected because the people want him and not because they do not want his opponent.

It is believed on good authority that he will touch but lightly on foreign affairs or any affairs of State not easily comprehensible to the multitude, and that he will bear rather heavily on his stand on the prohibition question, as last stated in his telegram accepting the nomination.

SMITH IN NEW YORK FIRST TIME SINCE VICTORY

NEW YORK, July 1. (AP)—Gov. Smith, Democratic Presidential nominee, arrived in New York tonight on his first visit to his home city since his nomination at the Democratic Convention last Thursday in Houston, Tex.

The Governor with members of his family went directly from Grand Central Terminal to his suite in the Biltmore.

YOU CAN FIX UP OWN FUNERAL

Attorney-General Rules It's All Right to Arrange for Burial Ceremony

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1. (AP)—Atty.-Gen. Webb ruled yesterday that it is lawful for an undertaking company to enter into a burial contract with an individual during his lifetime, guaranteeing him a proper funeral and care of his grave forever.

The ruling said such an agreement is regarded as insurance and comes under the regulation of the State Insurance Commission. The opinion was asked by Insurance Commissioner Detrick.

WORK GOES TO RESIGN OFFICE

Interior Secretary on Way to See Coolidge

Cabinet Man Gets Ready to Lead G.O.P. Campaign

Plans for Hoover Drive Now Being Formulated

CHICAGO, July 1. (AP)—Hubert Work, Secretary of the Interior, left here tonight for Superior, Wis., where tomorrow he will meet President Coolidge and tender his resignation as a Cabinet officer in order to assume charge of the affairs of the Republican National Committee. Secretary Work said his visit at the summer capitol will last but one day, his plan being to depart for Washington tomorrow evening. He arrived here this morning from Washington.

Secretary Work said the plans of the national committee for the coming Presidential campaign are developing slowly, but that he yet has to find a man for the Midwest campaign director's office. The committee hopes that James W. Good of Chicago, former Iowa Representative, will assume charge here in the interests of Herbert Hoover, Mr. Work said, adding that Mr. Good is not yet sure that he will be able to take the job.

"We will announce the Midwest manager for the committee when we find one; we have been unable to get one as yet," Secretary Work said.

Walter H. Newton, Minnesota Representative, is among those considered for the chairmanship of the speakers' bureau. The active campaign will open about September 1, Mr. Work told reporters, thus giving the committee two months to open headquarters, select managers and plan publicity.

Mr. Work was accompanied by Col. J. H. Carroll, in the latter's private car. Mr. Carroll is chief counsel for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

GOOD WANTS TO SIDESTEP MANAGERSHIP

SUPERIOR (Wis.) July 1. (AP)—James W. Good, preconvention manager for Herbert Hoover, Republican Presidential nominee, said here today that for some time he has been "trying to get out" of being western manager for Secretary Hoover in the coming campaign. The statement was made after he had been informed that Secretary Work, while in Chicago on his way to visit President Coolidge at Cedar Island Lodge, said it was not likely Mr. Good would be able to accept the position.

Mr. Good, who will be here when Secretary Work arrives tomorrow morning, refused to comment further than that the position would entail too much work. The Chicago attorney has a summer home 100 miles north of this city.

CURTIS FRIEND OF ROBINSON

It's Charlie and Joe With Two Vice-Presidential Candidates, Veterans of Senate

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—The Vice-Presidential candidates know each other as Charlie and Joe. Senator Curtis of Kansas, nominated by the Republicans, and Senator Robinson of Arkansas, selected by the Democrats, have been warm personal friends since 1903, when they met in the House of Representatives and later both went to the Senate.

They have much in common. Curtis is the Republican floor leader in the Senate and Robinson has a like position on the Democratic side of the aisle. Their offices in the Senate Office Building are in the same corridor, Curtis occupying Room No. 405 and Robinson's is No. 404 across the hall.

ELECTED TO SENATE

Curtis came to Washington ten years ahead of Robinson, taking a seat in the House of Representatives in 1893 during the Fifty-third Congress. Robinson was elected to the House in 1903, in the Fifty-eighth Congress. Curtis stayed in the House until 1907, and then was elected to the Senate during the Sixty-first Congress.

Robinson served in the House until 1913, when he was elected to serve his native State as Governor, but his continuous service in Washington was unbroken, for he resigned as chief executive of Arkansas shortly after his inauguration to take a seat in the Senate during the Sixty-third Congress.

CELEBRATION HELD

Both men have been in the Senate continuously since that time and often have co-operated in an effort to pave the way for important legislation. They also have served together for a number of years on the Senate Rules Committee.

When the news of Robinson's nomination came to Washington from Houston, his office assistants walked across the corridor to Curtis's office and an impromptu celebration was held among friends, celebrating the honor paid by the two parties to their chiefs.

TRIO IN GAS BAG RACE BITE DUST

Entries in Bennett Event Go Down on East Coast

Nine Still Supposed to Be in Air on Way South

Slow Wind Expected to Cut Down Winner's Mark

DETROIT, July 1. (AP)—With three balloons down and the nine remaining entries unaccounted for officials in charge of the Gordon Bennett balloon race, which got under way here yesterday, tonight are of the opinion that tomorrow will see the finish of the event probably in the Carolinas.

Extremely unfavorable weather conditions, which have prevailed since the start of the race, are thought responsible for the early landing of the first three entries reported down. The Helvetia, Swiss entry, dropped out eleven miles south of Fairmont, W. Va., the American Business Club came down at Stewart's Draft, W. Va., and the Argentina at Melbore, Va.

MANY SILENT

Slow wind currents over Pennsylvania are believed by officials to have interfered with progress of the bags during the first lap of the race. The pilots were warned at the take-off to keep their balloons at an altitude of less than 5000 feet to escape sluggish winds. Whether all entries unaccounted for tonight were able to maneuver their way out of the low pressure area concerned officials here as many have not been heard from.

Karl Betts of Detroit, in charge of the race, thinks there is little hope of any balloons journeying as far as Florida. Judging from wind conditions, he said, the leaders should reach South Carolina in the morning and possibly Georgia by late afternoon, but it is doubtful if they will make further distance.

The Helvetia, piloted by E. S. Magg, although entered for Switzerland, is a Detroit balloon. The original Swiss entry did not arrive here in time for the race and Magg was loaned a 35,000-cubic foot gas-capacity balloon by a local flying club. All of the other balloons are of 80,000-cubic feet gas capacity and handicapped with a small balloon Magg is believed to have exhausted his gas supply in a maneuvering of the low-pressure area.

LITTLE DISTANCE

The American Business Club balloon, entered from Akron, is a large type bag and the fact that it covered only about 300 miles before being brought down, led to the belief the mark of 800 miles made by last year's winners, E. J. Hill and Albert Schlosser of Detroit, will not be equaled this year.

Hill and Jack Engle of Detroit, who were piloting a pathfinding balloon this year, although not officially entered in the event, were forced down near Durbin, W. Va., today.

Nine entries unaccounted for tonight and thought to be still in the running, are:

The Munster (Germany;) the United States (United States;) Lafayette (France;) Brandenburg (Germany;) Denmark (Denmark;) U. S. Army (United States;) Wallonie (Belgium;) Blanchard (France,) and Barmen (Germany.)

"TIMES" TO ADD NEW FEATURE

clair writes lucidly, and his articles will be equally valuable to the trained business man and to the layman who lacks technical knowledge of the subjects Mr. Sinclair knows so thoroughly.

Aside from all these regular features will be special reports of news events whose importance justifies such reports.

The Alliance also will provide special coverage of important expeditions and flights when the general interest in these seems to warrant. A case in point is the expedition Commander George M. Dyott is leading into the wilderness of Brazil to find and rescue the missing British explorer, Col. P. H. Fawcett.

INTO WILDS FOR NEWS

Col. Fawcett went into the wilds to find an ancient civilization, and to write of his discoveries for the Alliance. Now, Col. Fawcett having mysteriously disappeared, Commander Dyott has gone in after him, and he will write his experience for the Alliance. The commander is radioing stories of his progress direct from the jungle to the Alliance membership, and if and when he finds Col. Fawcett, the stories of each will be the exclusive property of the Alliance.

The wire network in the telephone-typewriter system set up by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for the Alliance will maintain a continuous line of communication between and among the powerful newspapers forming its membership. The wire service, opening the night of the 8th inst., will make it possible to handle feature news of immediate interest more rapidly and more completely than before. And the telephone-typewriter is assurance of absolute accuracy.

The four circuits of the system form a continuous channel through which news will be fed across a distance nearly half the circumference of the earth. One circuit extends from New England through New York and the eastern Great Lakes region to Chicago. Thence two circuits stretch toward the Pacific Coast, one southwesterly to California, the other toward the Northwest, to Oregon and Vancouver Island. The fourth circuit runs southward, from New York to New Orleans.

HOW MACHINES WORK

The telephone-typewriter is a device which typewrites over a telephone wire. The machine resembles closely the ordinary typewriter, and is operated in virtually the same manner. The pressing of a key on the transmitting machine actuates the corresponding key on the receiving machine, and the proper character appears simultaneously on the paper of both sending and receiving instruments. The fact that it reproduces instantaneously in plain language on the receiving machine whatever is transmitted from a distant point makes this system especially suited to the needs of a news service.

The machines used by the North American Newspaper Alliance reproduce "copy" on paper of standard width fed continuously from a roll. In this form a dispatch from a distant city is all ready to be set up in type. Thus an entire news story is produced just as if it had been written in the local office.

The president of the North American Newspaper Alliance is George E. Miller, Detroit News. Paul Bellamy, Cleveland Plain Dealer, is first vice-president, and the second vice-president is Marvin H. Creager, Milwaukee Journal. The secretary and treasurer is Ralph Pulitzer, New York World. The general manager is David E. Smiley, with headquarters in the Pulitzer Building, 63 Park Row, New York.

The board of directors follows: R. W. Bingham, Louisville Courier-Journal; Harry Chandler, Los Angeles Times; John Cowles, Des Moines Register-Tribune; W. H. Cowles, Spokane Spokesman Review; James L. Houghteling, Chicago Daily News; Clark Howell, Jr., Atlanta Constitution; Newbold Noyes, Washington Star; George B. Longan, Kansas City Star; E. J. Lynett, Scranton Times; George F. Miller, J. Edwin Murphy, Baltimore Sun; L. K. Nicholson, New Orleans Times-Picayune, and Ralph Pulitzer.

NEW WIRE TO AUGMENT EXISTING NEWS SERVICES

The new leased-wire service of the North American Newspaper Alliance, announced in the foregoing dispatch, will augment the facilities which have enabled The Times to keep in the forefront in supplying its readers with complete and reliable, as well as interesting, accounts of the news events of the world and nation. These services include the Associated Press, whose reputation is well known; the Chicago Tribune Press Service, and The Times' own leased wires connecting with its bureaus in San Francisco, Chicago and Washington, where dispatches from its special correspondents scattered throughout the country are assembled.

In adding the North American Newspaper Alliance fast leased wire, The Times is merely following its long-established policy to seize every opportunity for improving its service to the public of Los Angeles and the Pacific Coast.

MELLON GIVES ROSY REPORT

pared with an estimate of $638,000,000, and actual receipts last year of $645,000,000. The falling off in revenue, both as compared with the estimate and last year's receipts is due in the main to a sharp diminution in the receipts from the estate tax and in part to the Revenue Act of 1928, which repealed the excise tax on the sale of automobiles.

"Miscellaneous receipts yielded $678,000,000, as compared with an estimate of $670,000,000, and a yield last year of $854,000,000.

"As compared with 1927, the principal items of decrease were $63,000,000 in customs receipts, $51,000,000 in income-tax receipts, due, as anticipated, to the falling-off of back-tax collections, and $24,000,000 in miscellaneous internal revenue receipts resulting in the main from reduced estate taxes. The principal item of increase is $24,000,000 in miscellaneous receipts resulting from an increased liquidation of the obligations of railroads to the government, which, however, was in a large measure offset by a decrease in receipts from the realization on other assets.

EXPENDITURES

"Total expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts amounted to $3,644,000,000, as compared with an estimate of $3,621,000,000, the latter being exclusive of expenditures under the settlement of the War Claims Act and of $3,671,000,000, including the said expenditures. The total expenditures, therefore, show a decrease of $27,000,000, as compared with estimates, or less than 3-4 of 1 per cent. The total expenditures in the fiscal year 1927 amounted to $3,494,000,000. It should be noted, however, that by reason of the failure of the deficiency bill in 1927 and a change in the revenue law a substantial amount of expenditures properly chargeable to the fiscal year 1927 was carried over into 1928.

"The Treasury Department estimated the surplus at $455,000,000, exclusive of payments under the settlement of War Claims Act, which, in fact, amounted to $50,000,000, or, in other words, a surplus of $405,000,000. The actual surplus was $398,000,000, or within 1 3-4 per cent of the estimate. Of the surplus, 367,000,000 has already been applied to the retirement of public debt obligations and the balance which has been temporarily carried over as an increase in the net balance in the general fund at the close of the year over the balance at the beginning will be used for debt retirement purposes early in the fiscal year 1929.

THE PUBLIC DEBT

"The total gross debt at the close of the fiscal year amounted to $17,604,000,000, as compared with $18,011,000,000 at the close of the fiscal year 1927, or a decrease of $907,000,000. Of this amount, $540,000,000 is to be attributed to the sinking fund and other debt requirements chargeable against ordinary receipts, and $367,000,000 to debt retirement from the surplus of receipts over expenditures.

"The annual interest rate on the interest bearing debt on January 30, last, was 3.87 per cent, as compared with 3.96 per cent at the close of the fiscal year 1927, and 4.29 per cent in 1921. Total interest payments in the fiscal year 1928 were $732,000,000, as compared with $787,000,000 in 1927, or a reduction of $55,000,000.

BONDS RETIRED

"During the fiscal year 1928 the Treasury Department practically completed the retirement and refunding of the Second Liberty Loan Bonds, of which on March 1, 1927, there were outstanding $3,104,000,000. On June 30, 1927, there were still outstanding $1,308,000,000. By June 30, 1928, all but $33,000,000 had been retired. In the fiscal year just closed the Treasury began refunding operations in anticipation of the maturity on September 15, next, of $2,147,000,000 of Third Liberty Loan Bonds outstanding on January 1, last. On June 30, last, this amount by retirement and refunding had been reduced to $1,228,000,000.

"During the course of the eighteen months, beginning on March 15, 1927, and ending on September 15, next, the Treasury will have retired or refunded into securities bearing a lower rate of interest, more than $5,000,000,000 of Second and Third Liberty Loan Bonds."

publican national chairman, has preceded him to Brule River, but Mr. Hoover will be there within a week or so.

The tentative program calls for his departure from Washington about the 10th inst. and for arrival in California about the 16th inst., though the itinerary still is unsettled.

Gov. Young of California and a committee of citizens of that State will greet him at Reno, Nev., or some other point east, and escort him to San Francisco. It has been agreed that he will respond to the California welcome at Oakland, which may be his first public speech since nomination.

The Republican National Committee is assuming charge of his movements from the day he leaves Washington, and the party for his cross-continent journey promises to be a large one. A special train will be necessary to carry his guests, helpers and the newspaper representatives who will travel with him.

Fashionable districts and the slums had something in common in that both districts equally were quiet. More interest was manifested by residents in the usual Sunday bullfight and other pastimes than in the elections.

Reports that were circulated during the week and yesterday that the dominant labor organizations would signal their opposition to Obregon failed to materialize.

Slight disturbances took place this afternoon at the suburb of Tacubaya when partisans of opposing municipal candidates engaged in a fist fight, some of them employing sticks, until stopped by police. Supporters of one candidate attempted to carry off the ballot boxes. No one was hurt seriously.

Arson Charge Laid to Mules

ST. JOE (Ark.) July 1. (Exclusive)—Steel-shod mules pawing on the flint cobblestones of the floor struck sparks which set fire to a pile of hay and resulted in the burning of the barn on the G. M. Barnett place, three miles east of here, according to one theory advanced as to the origin of the fire. The mules and other live stock were rescued when the fire was discovered by Mr. Barnett, but two new saddles, harness, much hay and grain and many farm tools were destroyed.

Poll on Train Places Hoover Ahead of Smith

A poll on Presidential preference, conducted on the westbound California Limited yesterday by Hal G. Hotchkiss, president, and Glenn D. Williaman, State secretary of the California Real Estate Association, gave Secretary of Commerce Hoover 110 and Gov. Smith 43.

Fifty-one women and seventeen men voted for Hoover; eleven women and ten men voted for Smith.

According to States, with the Hoover vote first and the Smith vote second, the poll showed the following: California, 23 and 10; Colorado, 1 and nothing; Illinois, 15 and 7; Indiana, 5 and nothing; Iowa, 1 and nothing; Kansas, 1 and 1; Massachusetts, 3 and 1; Michigan, 3 and nothing; Missouri, 5 and 3; Nebraska, 2 and nothing; New Jersey, 4 and nothing; New Mexico, 3 and nothing; New York, 7 and 6; Ohio, 2 and nothing; Oklahoma, 1 and nothing; Pennsylvania, 20 and 6; Tennessee, 2 and nothing; Texas, 5 and 3; Washington, 1 and nothing; Wisconsin, nothing and 1.

Two women Democrats, one from California and the other from Tennessee, stated their intention of voting for Hoover.

of inquiring visitors by spreading their burden evenly throughout the week. This year, however, hundreds of tourists, after traveling more miles than he counted, reach a narrow lane leading off a public highway into a deep forest. They have been told that this is the way to where Mr. Coolidge lives. At the entrance of the lane, however, a large and resolute infantryman, with a large pistol swinging on his hip, stops all progress. A snapshot of this guard is the only consolation the dusty visitors can get here.

Consequently they all are reduced to waiting for Sunday and then fighting with other hundreds like them to get near enough to Mr. Coolidge to see him smile and, to Mrs. Coolidge to notice the details of her attire.

BLIND PREACHER

Sitting between his mother and father in the pew—the third from the front on the right-hand side—which has been reserved for the Presidential family, John Coolidge heard for the first time John Taylor, the blind lay-preacher, conduct service. He also heard him wish Mr. Coolidge much happiness and many happy returns for his birthday, which falls on next Wednesday.

Taylor chose for his sermon's text today those passages in the Gospel according to St. Matthew which describe the scenes in the Garden of Gethsemane. Before preaching, however, the white-haired pastor, in a low voice, delivered his greeting to Mr. Coolidge: "I take this opportunity," he said, "of wishing President Coolidge a very happy birthday and many, many happy returns."

The largest crowds ever seen in the history of Brule had gathered outside the church today. They gave a great demonstration to the Coolidge family at the end of the service, cheering its three members indiscriminately and enthusiastically. Mrs. Coolidge, dressed again in her favorite fashion, in white, responded vivaciously. Mr. Coolidge smiled and raised his hat. John, apparently shy, kept his hat off his head and grinned.

SERIOUS PROBLEM

Brule authorities are wondering whether they will have to deal on every successive Sunday with great crowds and tourists and visitors attracted by the widely published attendance of President and Mrs. Coolidge at church. Today's crowd was at least three times that which assembled last Sunday.

The problem is serious for the time being, for while it does not want to discourage the tourists, its supreme desire is to make Mr. Coolidge's stay pleasant and not to yield a matter to his known desire for rest and quiet this summer.

Preparations were made today for the arrival tomorrow of Hubert Work of the Interior Department, who will be Mr. Coolidge's guest at Cedar Island Lodge for a visit which has not yet been definitely

Mr. Work is expected to discuss with Mr. Coolidge his resignation from the Cabinet. Thereafter he will give his undivided attention to Secretary Hoover's electoral campaign as chairman of the Republican Committee. Predictions are available here as to whether Mr. Work will discuss with the Chief Executive campaign plans and whether Mr. Coolidge will be willing to take a part in the campaign.

FIGHT FACED BY PLAN FOR PEACE

German Suggestion Debated by League Committee

Enforced Delay in Going to War Recommended

Belgium Favors Idea, But England Opposes It

(Copyright, 1928, by N. Y. Herald-Tribune)

GENEVA, July 1. (Exclusive)—Dull as have seemed the past week's meetings of the League of Nations committee of arbitration and security the members have taken one last hesitant step toward this international society's confrontation of the problem, for the solution of which it was constituted nearly a decade ago—the making of a formula for the preservation of peace. This week undoubtedly will witness the end of the committee's labors and from then the road will stretch straight and dusty to the September Assembly.

The month just ended has been devoted largely to consideration of models for security pacts between nations. Most of these have been adopted for reference to the Assembly, which may in turn refer them to member states for use or rejection as national conditions and sentiments dictate. Greece and Rumania already have put one into effect between themselves.

APATHY AT FIRST

During the first period of the proceedings, profound lethargy prevailed. From the secretariat several chiefs were absent on vacations, few newspapers were represented and the audiences diminished. Plenary sessions have been held only in the cool of the day, apathy brooded over the subcommittees and debates everywhere have been perfunctory.

But yesterday the committee began and tomorrow will continue debate of a more lively subject.

Whatever its merits or defects it is the sole plan for general application or of any wide effect that has been placed before the committee and over it a severe skirmish is being fought. This plan, presented by Germany months ago, briefly is that countries about to go to war hold up mobilization under an enforced armistice pending investigations at Geneva, after an appeal has been made by either party to the dispute or by any third party that believes the conflict would threaten it also with war or that the peace of the world is threatened.

ENGLAND OPPOSED

Belgium has made a report supporting the plan but against its acceptance will be the force of Great Britain directed by Lord Cushendun, who already has begun his attack based on the theory that the alteration of the League Covenant is involved.

If the German suggestion is adopted and sent to the Assembly, it will at least give that body something to deal with in the way of security and arbitration ideals; if it is rejected it will leave the Assembly next September entirely alone in the room with that unwelcome guest—disarmament.

Planes Ready for Wichita Hop

ST. LOUIS, July 1. (AP)—Twenty-four planes which arrived at Lambert-St. Louis Field yesterday to complete the first day's travel in the 6000-mile national air tour for the Edsel Ford reliability trophy, will take the air at 8 a.m. tomorrow for the second day's hop to Wichita, Kan., and then to Tulsa, Okla.

The planes all have a perfect score for the two trips yesterday from Detroit to Indianapolis and then to St. Louis.

Village Where Byrd Came Down Has Anniversary

VER-SUR-MER (France) July 1. (AP)—This tiny seaside village today commemorated the first anniversary of its sudden rise to fame by simple ceremonies at the foot of the modest monument marking the spot on the beach where Commander Richard E. Byrd landed the plane America after its flight from Roosevelt Field. Mayor Bonnet, chief magistrate of the hamlet, sent through the Associated Press, the following greetings to the United States:

"On this July 1 anniversary of the landing of the America, the municipal Council of Ver-Sur-Mer renews its expressions of admiration of the great feat of Commander Byrd and his companions—Lieut. G. O. Noville, Bert Acosta and Bernt Balchen—in flying across and above the Atlantic ocean."

PAO LEAVES PEKING

Manchurian Commander Allowed to Go to Own Province

TIEN-TSIN (China) July 1. (AP)—Gen. Pao Yu-Lin, the Manchurian brigade commander who held Peking in order from the time it was evacuated by the northern troops until it was occupied by the Nationalists, has been allowed to depart for his home province.

The General arrived at Taku this morning, motoring from the former capital. He said his troops, with arms and munitions, will entrain at Peking at dawn, en route to the same port, whence they will take steamers to Newchang.

The disarming of Pao's corps and his detention in Peking, caused a diplomatic protest by representatives of foreign powers. It was said that this action broke the evacuation terms and the diplomats pointed out to the Nationalist government that the Mukdenites have lived up to the agreement and have turned over an orderly and unlooted city to the victorious southerners.

AMUNDSEN SHIP LEAVES NORWAY

Special Relief Expedition Starts on Search

Will Go to Tromsoe and Then Northward

Report of Fishermen Seeing Plane Unconfirmed

OSLO (Norway) July 1. (AP)—A special relief expedition financed by popular subscription left Alesund, Norway, today aboard the Arctic vessel Veslekari to search for the missing Amundsen party. The vessel will go first to Tromsoe and then head northward, particularly for the waters east of Spitzbergen.

The recent reports that fishermen had sighted a Latham plane east of Spitzbergen June 18 still were unconfirmed when the vessel left.

SEARCH BY FLEET OF WHALING BOATS PROPOSED

LONDON, July 1. (AP)—Use of a large fleet of whaling boats to sweep wide areas of the sea in a desperate effort to find Roald Amundsen, missing Arctic explorer, and his companions, is now suggested as a last-hope measure by those best acquainted with Arctic conditions.

Capt. Amundsen and his comrades have been missing twelve days and hope for their rescue is growing fainter as the numerous searches by sea and air fail to bring the slightest indication of their whereabouts.

The belief expressed a week ago after the rescue of Gen. Umberto Nobile that his companions also might be speedily brought away from their refuge on a Arctic floe has daily been disappointed by fogs and adverse weather conditions, while there is still no word of the two other groups of missing members of the dirigible Italia's crew.

No news of any description concerning the searches being effected for the missing airmen was received from Kings Bay today.

Reports last night from Rome quoted a special communique from the rescue ship Citta Di Milano saying that if weather conditions permit four planes, including two Italian seaplanes, a Swedish seaplane and a Finnish plane equipped with skis, will make an attempt to land in the region of the Italia's survivors.

PRAYERS OFFERED FOR AMUNDSEN'S RESCUE

COPENHAGEN, July 1. (AP)—Prayers for Roald Amundsen and the five men with him in the French naval seaplane which disappeared on its errand of Nobile's rescue were offered today in all churches in Norway.

The newspaper Politiken publishes a statement from Peter Freuchen, a Danish explorer, saying that the aviators at Tromsoe, in Northern Norway, have little hope of finding the Amundsen party. Freuchen recently spent several days in Northern Norway on his return from a trip to Leninland.

He quoted Helmer Hansen, who accompanied Amundsen to the South Pole, as believing that his old chief had died heroically in his effort to rescue members of the Nobile party. The experts in Norway believe that the Latham seaplane probably was forced down in stormy conditions and that it capsized when it struck the waves. This would have meant a speedy end for Amundsen and his party and his friends remark that such a finish would be in accord with his own wishes.

THREE SEAPLANES RETURN AFTER ENCOUNTERING FOG

PARIS, July 1. (AP)—The Stefani News Agency says the two Italian seaplanes piloted by Majs. Maddalena and Penzo and the big Swedish hydroplane Upland which left this morning to seek the Italia survivors still on the ice, returned at 3 o'clock this afternoon to Virgo Bay, according to a dispatch from the Citta di Milano.

The small Finnish plane equipped with skiis, which intended to accompany the three seaplanes, did not do so when it was reported weather conditions were unfavorable to a landing. The three seaplanes found the fog so heavy in the vicinity of Cape Leigh Smith that the pilots decided to return and await better conditions.

Their original intention had been to accompany the Finnish plane while it attempted a landing, drop more provisions to the stranded group, and then continue in a further search for the remains of the dirigible itself.

The pilots reported after their trip that a strong wind from the east had opened wide canals in the ice, which probably would facilitate the advance of the Russian icebreaker Krassin, which is attempting to reach the Nobile survivors near Foyn Island. The icebreaker was reported at noon today to be well north of the eightieth parallel of latitude and of the coast of West Spitzbergen.

The seaplane Marina I, commanded by Capt. Ravazzoni, which has made its base at Tromsoe, is reported to have made flights of nearly seven hours on June 28 and six hours on June 29 covering a wide territory between longitudes 15 degrees 15 minutes and 20 degrees east and between latitudes 69 degrees 30 minutes and 71 degrees 15 minutes north without finding a trace of the Amundsen plane.

Soviet Russia Tour Attacked

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—Charging that a proposed tour of soviet Russia by a group of American educators "is designed wholly and solely for propaganda and not educational purposes," Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, today took to task the Tennessee Federation of Labor for supporting the tour.

President Woll, in his capacity as president of International Labor Press of America, wrote to Secretary Birthright of the Tennessee federation refusing to accede to a request of that organization that the labor union newspapers and magazines of the country carry reports of the tour.

MEXICO SCANS DIVORCE SHEET

Figures Show Tie-Severing Industry Brisk

Americans Rank Poor Second in Decrees Granted

Catholics More Than Half of Bond-Escapers

MEXICO CITY, July 1. (Exclusive)—Divorce cases form as important a part of the business of Mexican courts of law as they do the tribunals of other countries, it is revealed by figures that have just been compiled by the Department of National Statistics. These official figures show that during the year 1926 977 decrees were granted by the courts of Mexico. The Federal District, the most populous area of the republic, which includes Mexico City and thirteen large municipalities, led with 166 cases. The State of Yucatan was a close second, 163 decrees having been granted there during 1926. The percentage of marital wrecks, however, was higher in Yucatan as it is a comparatively sparsely populated State.

Three Mexican States—Aguas Calientes, Tlaxcala and Zacatecas—had only one divorce case each during the year under consideration.

AMERICANS SECOND

Mexican citizens gave the most business to the divorce courts in 1926, petitions being field by 678 Mexican men and 699 by daughters of this country. Among the foreigners Americans led, with 217 petitions filed by the men and 216 by the woman. The Spanish were next with fifteen petitions by men and eight by women. The filing of divorce petitions by other nationals was as follows:

British, eighteen; German, eleven; Russians, twelve; Polish, nine; French, nine; Guatalmalans, five; Arabians, four; Rumanians, two; Canadians, one; Syrians, three; Cubans, seven; Bolivians, three; Portuguese, one; Greek, one; Austrians, two; Australians, one; Switzerland, two; China, three; Czecho-Slovakia, Holland and Hungary, two each.

MOSTLY CATHOLICS

Of the petitioners 494 women and [illegible] men stated they were Catholics; 308 men and 67 women were Protestants and thirteen women and eleven men professed the Jewish faith. But 372 men and 360 women said they had no religion.

Among the men merchants formed the largest group of petitioners, there being 234 in that occupation. The next largest group was employees of private concerns with 153 representatives. Then followed artisans, 106; agriculturalists, 93; liberal professions, 92; laborers, 55; soldiers, 30; railroad employees, 17; government and municipal employees, 24; industrial executives, 14; proprietors of mercantile establishments, 20; salaried workers, 19; miners, 8; seafaring men, 5; domestic servants, 11; bankers, two, and one chauffeur, one policeman and one unemployed man.

Housewives with 634 representatives was the largest group among the women. Fifty-nine declared that they had no occupation, fifteen said they were employed by private concerns, fourteen followed commercial pursuits and as many were engaged in the liberal professions; eleven were artisans; four were salaried workers, two operated commercial establishments and five were artists.

MANY CAN READ

The great majority of the petitioners were literate. Only 104 women and 51 men said that they were unable to read. Of the decrees granted 510 were suits filed by one of the principals and in 467 cases both parties had expressed their desire for a divorce. The majority of the decrees, 296, were won by the husbands.

The ages of those to whom decrees were granted ranged from 14 to [illegible] years, but the ages of the majority of those to whom divorces were granted was between 25 and 30 years. Decrees were granted to 102 girls and eight boys between the ages of 14 and 19, and to 19 men and one women whose ages ranged from 60 to 65.

YOUNGSTER STEALS PLANE RIDE IN HOPE OF SEEING COOLIDGE

ST. PAUL, July 1. (AP)—Believed to be the first aerial stowaway in the Northwest, Herbert Stats, 13-year-old son of S. J. Stats, hotel owner of Kansas City, is back with his father here today after flying to Brule in an attempt to see President Coolidge.

Young Stats, who is visiting here with his father, said he "planned this trip for several days" after he learned that a huge plane would fly with fifteen business and civic leaders to call on the President. The trip was made yesterday.

Herbert managed to slip into the fuselage of the airplane when the pilot wasn't looking. All the passengers filed in, and after the ship was well under way Herbert walked into the passengers' cabin and smiled. Since all the available passengers' seats were taken, the lad was forced to remain in the fuselage throughout the entire flight of 150 miles.

The party had an appointment with President Coolidge, but was delayed at the start of the trip and missed the Executive. Because of the heavy load on the return trip, Herbert was given railroad fare and returned to St. Paul on a train.

Baptists Unite Rochester and Hamilton Units

HAMILTON (N. Y.) July 1. (AP) Consolidation of the Hamilton Theological Seminary and the Rochester Theological Seminary, forming an institution with approximately $4,000,000 endowment, was voted at a meeting of the Baptist Education Society of the State of New York here yesterday.

The new institution will be situated in Rochester and will be known as the Colgate Rochester Divinity School; approximately $1,250,000 will be transferred to the new institution from the funds of Colgate. The Hamilton Theological Seminary is the theological department of Colgate, and the oldest Baptist theological institution in the United States.

The merger is effective at once.

PAROLE APPLICATIONS REVIEWED BY BOARD

SAN RAFAEL, July 1. (AP)—The State Board of Prison Directors considered fifty-six cases on the May calendar yesterday at the meeting in San Quentin prison. Of applications for parole by thirteen murderers serving life terms, eight were denied and four postponed until the convicts have served ten years. All the applicants have served at least seven years. Most of the day was spent in a closed business session. The only prisoners paroled were four Mexicans sentenced to be deported.

ZIONISTS PLAN FOR PALESTINE

President Lipsky Tells of Homeland

Idealistic Illusions Found Impractical

Economic Sobriety Proves Beneficial

PITTSBURGH, July 1. (AP)—Reviewing the progress that has taken place in the Jewish homeland, Louis Lipsky, president of the Zionist Organization of America, told the opening session of the society's annual convention here today that "economic sobriety" had been substituted for "idealistic illusion" in Palestine.

He declared the recent controversy in Zionist ranks over administrative authority had not affected the steady forward stride and that the situation in Palestine had improved considerably over a year ago.

The Zionist president deplored the situation wherein the "dollar sign has perforce become the symbol which gilded the flag of Zion" for the past number of years, obscuring the Zionist traditions and ideals.

"For the sake of Zion," he said, "we measured our success by the financial support, by the amount contributed, by the number of contributors. The Zionist became the greedy tax collector, and his services were tested by the money he could produce. The intangible form of devotion of previous years was replaced by a form of service that could be weighed and measured."

Lipsky praised Great Britain for its activities as mandatory power over Palestine and lauded Dr. Chaim Weitzmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, for his political negotiations with the British.

Upward of 1000 delegates from all sections of the country are present at the convention.

RABBIT LEAPS INTO CAR

Texas Boasts Many Airports

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) July 1. (Exclusive)—To show what rapid strides Texas is making in aeronautics it was pointed out that the State boasts ninety-one airports and landing fields already in shape to care for planes. They are classed as commercial, municipal, auxiliary, National Guard, Army, Air Corps, intermediate and private.

In addition to these there are twenty-seven airports proposed in the following municipalities: Amarillo, Abilene, Albany, Austin, Beaumont, Brady, Brownwood, Brownsfield, Brownsville, Corpus Christi, Crosbytown, Denton, Eagle Pass, El Paso, Port Stockton, Graham, Lubbock, McAllen, McCamey, Mercedes, San Diego, San Angelo, Sweetwater, Texarkana, Tinson, Vernon and Wichita Falls.

Negro Slayer of Boy Caught

RICHMOND (Va.) July 1. (AP)—Sylvester Medley, negro youth who yesterday killed Samuel E. Grimmell, 16 years of age, shot his adopted father, Henry H. Grimmel, and young Grimmel's mother, Mrs. Nellis Haskins, was captured today while riding through the streets in an automobile.

A Richmond officer sitting on his front porch recognized Medley and stopped the car in which he was riding. The negro at first denied his identity but later admitted he is the person sought.

He gave no reason for killing Samuel Grimmel and shooting the two others. Medley opened fire on Mrs. Haskins when she went to a door in response to a knock and shot the other two when they went to her aid.

FIRE FANS IRE IN BRIBE FIGHT

Firehouse of Witness in Stockton Case Burned

Hints of Arson Directed at Accused Officials

Investigation Demanded to Determine Origin

STOCKTON, July 1. (Exclusive) Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, broke out in the warehouse of Hobbs-Parsons, wholesale grocers, this morning and added new flames to the Riecks-Coates bribe case which has this city divided against itself. Loss to the grocery concern is estimated at $50,000 to the building, and $15,000 to stock, by Arthur F. Roberts, president of the company, and one of Dist.-Atty. Darrah's witnesses against Sheriff Riecks and Supervisor Coates, both at liberty on $5000 bonds on bribe charges.

As a result of the blaze, Fire Chief Murphy has asked the arson committee of the National Board of Underwriters, San Francisco, for an investigation, and advised the two principal witnesses of the District Attorney to have fire guards placed in their churches.

READY FOR ACTION

The ministers, Rev. Hugh V. Hartsook, pastor of the First Congregational Church and Rev. Ward Wills Ayer, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, announced they are taking the matter up with their respective boards, and that steps to safeguard our church property undoubtedly will be taken." The First Presbyterian Church is a handsome stone structure valued at $150,000.

No direct charges of arson have been made. Darrah issued a statement last night, although he will "investigate if the findings of an arson expert warrant it," he wants it understood he is making no accusations at present.

Roberts said that he does not believe "the Sheriff had anything to do with firing our warehouse."

"I've known Sheriff Riecks for a good many years," Roberts said, "and I'm sure he would never stoop to arson."

STRAW BREAKING POINT

Friends of the Sheriff and Supervisor Coates are highly indignant over the morning's developments, however, and feeling between them and supporters of Darrah is running high. Nothing has so aroused and divided Stockton for years as has the arrest and indictment of Riecks and Coates, and today's climax has strained the controversy almost to the breaking point.

Both officials are scheduled for arraignment Tuesday on charges of accepting bribes to protect bootleggers. Their arrest climaxed a long political battle between the Sheriff and Dist.-Atty. Darrah. The Sheriff is said to have accepted $2100 in marked money from V. E. Fontaine, private detective of the District Attorney. Coates is said to have taken $800 in bribes to induce him to curtail Darrah's liquor investigation fund. Fontaine posed as a bootlegger, during his operations, and the Sheriff says he accepted the money in the belief he was trapping a rum-runner.

Spanish Scientists Will Seek to Disprove Story That King Killed Prince

(Copyright, 1928, New York Times)

MADRID, July 1. (Exclusive)—Nearly four centuries have elapsed since the death of Prince Charles, son of Philip II, King of Spain, but the thirtieth academy of Spanish history will attempt to disprove the popular legend that the Prince was poisoned by his father.

It was decided just before the session of the academy closed here yesterday to disinter the body which lies in the crypt in the Pantheon Elescorial for the purpose of determining whether the remains show any trace of poison.

EX-CITY TREASURER MUST SUPPORT BOY

OAKLAND, July 1. (AP)—Jacob Croter, former City Treasurer here, has been served with papers ordering him to pay $50 monthly for support of Miss Edith Mensing's 4-year-old son, of which he recently was adjudged father. He also was ordered to furnish $400 for back payments.

Croter was adjudged the child's father after a jury trial. Previously officers reported they were unable to serve him with the court order.

ADMIRERS POUR PRAISE ON OCHS

Second Day of Tribute Paid by Chattanooga

Publisher at "Pinnacle of Journalistic Success"

Eastern Staff in Tennessee for Three-Day Fete

CHATTANOOGA (Tenn.) July 1. (AP)—The second of three days set aside by Chattanooga for tribute to Adolph S. Ochs on the semicentennial of his ownership of the Chattanooga Times was centered on a luncheon attended by more than 200 admirers, many of them of national prominence. At the exclusive Fairyland Club on Lookout Mountain, George Foster Peabody of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., philanthropist, was first of a distinguished party of easterners to describe for Chattanoogans the esteem in which Mr. Ochs is held elsewhere.

He was followed by Rabbi Nathan Kraus of Temple Emmanuel, New York City, and Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution. As a concluding feature, Mayor Pound of Lookout Mountain presented the publisher with an engraved Swiss clock on behalf of the resort town. Rev. T. F. Gailor, Episcopal bishop of Tennessee, offered prayer.

CALLED TRUE CITIZEN

Mr. Peabody described Mr. Ochs as a man who has successfully carried the burden of citizenship. "Adolph Ochs illustrates perfectly the obligation of true citizenship," he asserted.

Rabbi Kraus described Mr. Ochs as the "genial genius of journalism" born to serve, and a leader of the type of American who considers the welfare of others always before his own.

Clark Howell told of his forty years' association with the publisher and recalled the tribute paid Mr. Ochs on his fiftieth anniversary as a journalist by the board of directors of the Associated Press, of which they are fellow-members. At that time a letter from Mr. Howell to the banking firm handling financial arrangements of Mr. Ochs's purchase of the New York Times was read.

PINNACLE REACHED

"Not one word of that letter describing Mr. Ochs as the one man in the United States fitted to take over such an ambitious task, has been discredited in the light of subsequent events," the Atlanta publisher declared. "And," he reminded, "that was more than a score of years ago. In that time he has reached the pinnacle of journalistic success."

The first event of the day was a tour of Lookout Mountain. Mr. Ochs and the party of sixty distinguished easterners and members of the New York Times staff who reached here by special train last night spent the morning on the mountain roads. The publisher delighted in showing the sights of the section to the eastern guests, rarely waiting for the guide to point out scenic advantages.

DINNER ON BOAT

The luncheon was followed by a boat ride down the Tennessee River, climaxed by an informal dinner on the boat.

Today's arrivals for the celebration, which will be concluded tomorrow with a welcome by the city and a formal banquet tomorrow night, included besides Mr. Howell, William E. Walsh, commissioner of zoning and safety, New York, and Grover A. Whalen, welcoming aide to Mayor Walker of New York.

Tomorrow morning Mayor Bass of Chattanooga will present the keys of the city to the publisher. An interesting event of the afternoon will be the arrival of Commander Richard E. Byrd from New York, a speaker on the banquet program.

COOLIDGE PRAISES HIS "NOTABLE ACHIEVEMENT"

SUPERIOR (Wis.) July 1. (AP)—President Coolidge today telegraphed to Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the Chattanooga Times and the New York Times, his congratulations upon the latter's completion of fifty years as publisher of the Tennessee paper.

"The publication of one great newspaper for fifty years and of another great newspaper for thirty-two of those years is a notable achievement," Mr. Coolidge said. "It is a pleasure to join with your many other friends in sending you heartiest congratulations on this fiftieth anniversary and to wish you most sincerely many more years of satisfaction, pride and happiness in your work."

PILSUDSKI TO HOLD ONE REIN

Poland's Premier Quits Only Job of Premier

Dictator Plans to Direct Foreign Affairs

Statement Scores Diet for Many Annoyances

WARSAW, July 1. (AP)—Disgust with the constitutional requirements of the Premiership and with the quality of the Polish Diet led Marshal Joseph Pilsudski to give up his place as Prime Minister, he said in a public statement published here today. It was the first such statement from the dictator since 1926.

Marshal Pilsudski let it be known plainly that he has no intention of dropping out of the government entirely. In addition to the duties of Minister of War, which he retains, he said he will continue to direct Poland's foreign affairs. He stands ready to resume the hated Premiership if circumstances demand.

HITS DRAWBACKS

The Marshal in characteristically forceful language, criticised the national Legislature unmercifully. One of the great drawbacks of the Premiership, he said, is that the Constitution requires the Prime Minister to co-operate with the Diet.

He said the first constitutional Diet was "an assembly of strumpets" and he regretted that it had not been disbanded. If that had been done the necessity for the coup of May 12, 1926, would not have existed. (This was the stroke by which Marshal Pilsudski overturned the government and took over the reins of power.)

His description of subsequent diets was no more favorable and he compared the entire legislative system to the unproductive work of convicts set to the task of pumping air into the atmosphere. It was disgust at having to co-operate with mere "wind pumpers" that led him to give up the post of Prime Minister.

Another aspect of the Premiership which drew fire from the dictator is the fact that it possesses powers which he says belong naturally to the Presidency. This condition constantly places the executive in false light. The many trivial details with which he was forced to deal also wore on his nerves, but he said he could have endured all these if it had not been for the diets.

HEALTH GOOD

Marshal Pilsudski asserted that reports that he had given up the post because of ill health were inexact. He said that physicians had assured him he would be able to continue his duties, but they warned him that if he worked too hard he might exhaust his strength. They advised him to take a longer leave of absence, but he preferred instead to turn over the whole post to the Deputy Prime Minister, Casimir Bartel.

Germany Urged to Give Pension to Mrs. Bennett

BERLIN, July 1. (AP)—Mrs. Floyd Bennett, widow of the American aviator who died of pneumonia contracted on a flight to relieve the Bremen trans-Atlantic flyers, may receive a pension from the German government. A suggestion to this effect made by a reader, was given first-page display today in the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

The reader's letter to the editor pointed out that Bennett unselfishly risked his life to aid Capt. Herman Koehl, Baron Von Huenefeld and Maj. James Fitzmaurice when those intrepid east-west flyers were marooned on bleak Greenly Island in the Straits of Belle Isle. The pension to Mrs. Bennett, the letter said, would constitute a fitting act of appreciation by the German government.

A bond issue of $6,000,000 will be presented to voters at the November election to help create the park system. If raised the amount will be equalled by the State, giving a total fund of $12,000,000.

Gifts Announced for Cathedral

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—Two gifts totaling $300,000, to be used in carrying forward work now in progress on the Washington Cathedral, were announced today by Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal bishop of Washington.

The donations, he said, came from prominent residents of the Middle West, who wish to remain anonymous. The money will be used for construction of the choir and crossing of the great Gothic structure. The choir will consist of five rays and will have a length of 110 feet and height of ninety-five. Its cost, with that of the crossing, is estimated at $435,000.

THE finer qualities of men are developed through contact with nature's own beauties plus a cultural environment.

No wonder then that men and women of intellect see in Huntington Palisades the perfect ensemble of environment and are investing their money against the time when homesites will no longer be available. Here, mature years find the realization of happiness, and youth is reared amid surroundings that instill sound character into their make-ups.

Every cultural advantage prevails. Huntington Palisades is in close proximity to the refined social influence of golf and beach clubs and the Polo center in Rustic Canyon. The state's finest educational institutions from kindergarten to university are nearby...though adequately removed to avoid the annoyances of campus activities.

Careful restrictions, rigidly enforced by an art jury, and more than $1,000,000 expended for improvements are a further safeguard for your investment in Huntington Palisades.

The contours, the outlook, the sizes and the locations of sites are as varied as the price range.

NEW YORK GANG LEADER KILLED

Frankie Yale, Bowery Bad Man, Slain in Auto

Murder Linked to Death of "Big Tim" Murphy

Police Say Victim Had Hand in Chicago Crime

NEW YORK, July 1. (Exclusive) Frankie Yale, who learned the gunning trade in New York, when the old Five Points gang ruled the Bowery and grew up to be the Scarface Al Capone of Brooklyn, lost his charmed life today to avenging guns of rivals.

Volleys from revolvers and shotguns, fired from a moving automobile, almost shot his head off as he sat at the wheel of his own car in Brooklyn.

Detectives tonight said they believe Yale, born Youbalis and sometimes known as Uale, was "rubbed out" in revenge for the murder of "Big Tim" Murphy, the Chicago union labor czar, in Chicago last Tuesday night.

LINKED TO CHICAGO

New York gunmen reputedly have figured in virtually all the notorious killings in Chicago in recent years. They stand accused of slipping into Chicago, pulling off their jobs with the aid of guides and again speeding back to comparative safety in the East. Detectives are convinced Yale was slain in revenge for having dispatched the gunmen who "took care of Murphy."

The black sedan that sped away to safety with the assassins after Yale's slaying bore an Illinois license plate.

Yale, once ripped through the chest by rivals' bullets and often a target, did not have a chance this time. Somewhere along Ninth avenue as he drove alone, he saw five men trailing him in a black sedan. He thought the odds too long and speeded up. He was overtaken and slumped helpless over the wheel, his neck riddled by buckshot. The killers fled and Yale died before he could name them.

KNEW KILLERS

With a long police record, Yale was a friend of Scarface Al Capone, the emperor of Chicago gangland, and at least an acquaintance of the late "Big Jim" Colosimo and Dion O'Banion, the Chicago dilettante killer, who was slain amid the roses of his own florist shop.

In fact, Frankie's habit of mixing in Chicago gang society got him arrested on charges of implication in the murder of O'Banion in 1924. He was freed without trial, however.

CHICAGO CAN'T LINK HIS DEATH WITH "BIG TIM'S"

CHICAGO, July 1. (Exclusive)—Police here were skeptical tonight of the New York theory that the slaying there today of Frankie Yale was connected with the assassination here last Thursday of "Big Tim" Murphy, one-time labor czar. Recalling that Yale had been linked in several gang feuds here in which chieftains of the various "rackets" had been slain, police still declared they saw nothing to link the two shootings. A detective squad leaves for Milwaukee tomorrow on a report that the automobile from which Murphy was shot is stored in a garage there.

MYSTERY IN WEST CASE INCREASES

Second Day's Search for Missing Man and Daughter Fails to Bring Clews

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1. (Exclusive)—The second day of search for Walter H. West, wealthy realty man of San Diego, and his adopted daughter, Dorothy, 18, missing since starting for Oakland a week ago by automobile, failed to reveal any definite clews, Oakland police said tonight.

Police confess they are at a loss to account for the disappearance of the two. The wife and mother, Mrs. Beulah West, who came to Oakland several days earlier, expressed the fear that they have met with an accident, but inquiries by police and State traffic officers show that West and his daughter have not been mentioned in any accident reports in recent days.

The fear that West, who usually carried considerable money with him, may have fallen a victim to robbers gained headway. There was no family trouble and no reason for voluntary silence on the part of the husband and daughter, Mrs. West declared.

New Principle for Quick Rise Plane Tested

MILWAUKEE, July 1. (Exclusive) A new principle in aviation permitting airplanes to take off and land in small fields in congested areas is being tested here by George Lauchin, former army pilot and instructor during the World War.

Lauchin's theory involves the use, in addition to the principal motor in the nose, of two motors placed under the wings, rather than above the ship, as in the case of helicopters. These motors are reversible and would serve to steady the ship in rising and would permit it to settle easily on a short field, Lauchin believes.

The inventor has conferred with internationally known aviation experts and representative of the Guggenheim Foundation for the Promotion of Aeronautics, and has received encouragement to proceed with his tests. Carl J. Zaiser, general manager of the American Metal Products Company, is financing Lauchin's construction of the ship.

Peace Efforts of Kellogg and Coolidge Lauded

CHICAGO, July 1. (AP)—Gratitude and thanks to President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg for their work for world peace were expressed in a resolution adopted by the Central Conference of American Rabbis, Dr. Max C. Currick of Erie, Pa., chairman of the committee on international peace, presented the resolution.

Dr. Currick declared President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg have done much to restore international harmony and that the multilateral treaty already presented to the major powers will be extended to include all nations.

Ambassador Dwight Morrow was praised for bringing about "a happy ending to the Mexican affair, which may also be of good effect in restoring internal peace in Mexico."

And They Call Seattle Rainy!

CHICAGO, July 1. (Exclusive)—June's rainfall, 6.97 inches, was more than twice the normal for this month in Chicago and adjoining territory, according to the meteorological summary issued today by the Weather Bureau. The average is 3.22 inches. Nearly all the precipitation came in the last two weeks and caused flooded basements and interruptions to traffic in nearly all parts of the city.

The forecast indicates that the early part of July also will be rainy.

June temperatures were below normal. The mean for the month was 62.8 as against the average of 67.1. The highest mark reached was 83 and the lowest 46. Only five days were clear while eight were partly cloudy and sixteen cloudy. The summary covers only twenty-nine days.

PAPERS PROVEN NOT SO YELLOW

Crime and Scandal Played Down, Survey Says

Less Than 2 Per Cent Space Allotted Sensations

Oregon Students Gain Data From 100 Newspapers

CRATER LAKE LODGE (Or.) July 1. (Exclusive)—Statements made constantly by readers of American newspapers that the publications "have nothing but crime news in their columns," or "newspapers are full of nothing but crime and divorce accounts," are refuted by actual facts, it was declared today by Eric W. Allen, dean of the school of journalism of the University of Oregon, who gave to members of the Oregon State Editorial Association assembled here on the brim of the great prehistoric crater the results of a survey made by the editing class of the university.

The average reader to whom the questionnaire was submitted estimated the amount of crime news published in papers at about 30 per cent. Some guessed much higher, while others were more conservative. The class found, however, that the modern newspaper devotes but 1.4 of its total space, or 3.5 per cent of its news space to crime, divorce and scandal.

ONE HUNDRED PICKED

Students used a total of 100 newspapers from widely scattered sections of the United States in the survey. One of these was the Los Angeles Times. Sensational news, as defined in the survey, included accounts of crime, divorce and scandal printed for their interest rather than for public importance. Events such as the Teapot Dome affair, to which it was decided public interest ought to be called, were omitted in the classification.

The survey was conducted along two separate lines the one to determine the popular idea of just how much sensational material appears in the papers and the other to determine the actual amount in ratio to the total space and the news space.

Bankers, lawyers, business men, doctors, dentists, engineers and college professors were asked to estimate the percentage of their papers devoted to sensational news of the character described. Out of the twenty-six replies, seven estimated 50 per cent; another seven set the figure at 25 per cent; only one guessed as low as 5 per cent. The average was 28½ per cent. Of forty-five university students who answered the questionnaire the average was 31 per cent.

The students themselves were surprised to find, after actual measurements of a representative group of newspapers covering a period of 75 years, that modern papers carry on an average only 1.4 of such news. The papers surveyed included the Detroit News, Cleveland Press, Baltimore Sun, Cleveland Plain Dealer, Portland Oregonian, San Francisco Chronicle, Portland (Or.) Journal, Los Angeles Record, Los Angeles Times, New York Times, New York Evening Post, Milwaukee Journal, Denver Post, New York Herald-Tribune, Chicago Tribune, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Chicago Daily News, New York Daily News, (tabloid) Eugene (Or.) Guard, Eugene Register, Portland News, New York World, Spokane Press, Seattle Times and Brooklyn Eagle.

CHECKING UP HORACE

The next step in the survey was to check-up on Horace Greeley, to whom critics of the modern newspapers often point as an exponent of crime-free journalism. New York Tribunes representing the most active years of his editorship were examined. Papers were chosen at five-year intervals from 1851 until his death and it was discovered that Greeley himself, the newspaper purist of his time, had considered an appropriation of 1.7 per cent of his total space legitimate for such news.

To be fair to Greeley, however, the student investigators considered the fact that his papers carried about 25 per cent advertising while the average in the modern newspapers measured was a little under 60 per cent. Reducing the crime news percentage to news and editorial space alone, it was found that Greeley devoted 2.3 per cent of it to crime, divorce and scandal, as compared with the 3.5 per cent in the modern paper.

RULES OF GAME

Two important provisos must be made, the class discovered. First, crime and scandal news has undoubtedly gravitated toward a conspicuous position on the front page and to the headlines, and second, when a really "big" crime story "breaks" it gets a large amount of space. One student made an independent survey of thirty-six additional 1928 papers and found that 16.2 per cent of the front pages was devoted to crime, divorce and scandal, although the percentage of the entire space had proved to be only 1.4 per cent. Headlines were counted as part of the space. In Greeley's day, news was put in almost anywhere, most of the front page was given to advertising, and few headlines were used.

An attempt was made to discover what happens when a really "big" crime story "breaks." The Snyder-Gray case and others of the kind were examined, but the Hickman capture was selected as the most representative. This was a story of great national interest and of particular interest in Oregon, as Hickman fled through Portland itself and was captured at Pendleton.

"BIG STORY" SPACE

On the morning of December 22 (Hickman was captured that afternoon) the Morning Oregonian of Portland had devoted 8 per cent of its news space to Hickman and all other crime stories. On December 23, the total reached 23 per cent. On December 24, crime news dropped to 17 per cent. The crime news percentages of the Oregon Journal on the same three days were 13 per cent, 24 per cent and 21 per cent.

It is noteworthy that these figures, representing the very climax of a really extraordinary case of great dramatic interest, show a use of space, even in papers near the scene of action, considerably less than the 28½ per cent which public opinion regards as the average of a typical American paper.

REPUBLIC AWAKES TO ROAD NEED

Capital District at Work on Highway Network to Link All Mexico

MEXICO CITY, July 1. (Exclusive)—Construction operations have commenced on a network of first-class roads to cost about $750,000 and which will not only give the Federal District its first complete road service but will link many existing roads with the national trunk highways. This project is of the greatest importance to the republic as the Federal District, which includes Mexico City and thirteen municipalities with a total population of more than 1,000,000, is the most important part of the nation.

Work on the formation of this road network was undertaken at the suggestion of Gov. Michel of the Federal District. This group of roads will provide direct means of communication with several of the show places in the Federal District and will make more accessible some of the beautiful mountains that surround Mexico City. Several of the municipalities also will be given direct communication with each other and Mexico City by these roads and the time required for traveling to and from these places will be considerably reduced as a result.

As this road-construction program is being pushed it is expected that by the end of December the establishment of important links in the network will have been made.

MARINES WIN OVER HARDSHIP

Soldiers in Nicaragua Face Many Difficulties

Heavy Rains Cause Floods, Mud and Loss of Mules

Airplanes Maintain Contact and Deliver Necessities

MANAGUA (Nicaragua) July 1. (Exclusive)—Mud, rain, swimming torrents, shortage of rations and lack of shelter are a few of the wet-season difficulties encountered by marines under Maj. Keller Rockey of Virginia Beach, Va., during the latest operations of his battalion near the Coco River, June 10 to 17.

Airplanes played an important part in relieving the discomforts of Maj. Rockey's columns by dropping supplies to them, co-ordinating the movements and keeping the entire command notified as to their position and locations.

The one contact obtained in the "more than fifteen days" movement was when the columns commanded by Maj. Joseph D. Humphrey of Washington, D. C., surprised a band of armed bandits at a house near Las Piedras. The group fled, leaving behind bloody clothing in evidence of the efficiency of the marines' fire. There were no marine casualties.

INTOLERABLE CONDITIONS

Daily rains washed the muddy river banks, making the narrow trails slippery and treacherous. Rations gave out, exhausted. The supply of feed for them all but exhausted the three columns of the battalion. On the return to their base, the columns forded the Coco River, normally about 75 yards wide and rather shallow, increased to a roaring torrent a mile or more wide. The waters swollen for miles distant. The trucks were left on the north bank.

Maj. Rockey's column, commanded by Capt. Maurice G. Holmes of Pasadena, Miss., had marched south and west from Quilali toward the north of the Coco River, which empties into the Coco about twelve miles south of Santa Cruz where the Coco formalizes its easterly course and flows north toward the Honduras border. He was forced to abandon his exhausted mules and one horse after crossing the then fordable Coco River near the mouth of the Bocay. Four miles up the Coco three mules slipped on the muddy trail and catapulted twenty feet down into ten feet of eddying current. Trumpeter Enoch S. Surrenda of Worcester, Mass., dove in the treacherous water without hesitation and through his efforts and those of Sergt. George J. Nowak of Baltimore, as well as Tito, a Nicaraguan guide who is a veteran of several bandit contacts, mules and men were brought safely to shore.

MULES LIFTED TO SAFETY

The troops, in spite of the backbreaking labor of lifting the mules out of waist-deep mud, and of the discomforts of sleeping in the rain, remained in excellent spirits.

"Rain and mist prevail during the day. Heavy rains by night. Morale high," reported Capt. Holmes in his airplane pick-up.

Maj. Rockey's column had moved north from Quilali along the left bank of the Jicaro and Coco rivers to Santa Cruz which is no more than a large, rudely constructed village on the bank of the Coco. Maj. Humphrey's column moved from Las Piedras to Los Limones, a village of 20 huts, where they crossed the Coco on June 2. Maj. Rockey moved into Santa Cruz down the Coco and the rivers experiencing great difficulty in finding forage for his animals. Even grass was so scarce that it had to be eked out by feeding banana leaves. Two mules were lost through exhaustion the first day out.

RADIO DAMAGED

One mule carrying the transmitting set of the field set stepped on a heavy tree extract and tumbled down a steep slope. The radio failed to function thereafter but continued to require the use of two of the strongest pack animals to carry it. The third day the column made only six miles. Another mule was lost and Maj. Rockey put the radio set on his personal mount and abandoned it.

The mules became so exhausted that the column followed a policy of moving one day, sending food and men out from camp the next day, and then moving camp the third day. Maj. Rockey's and Capt. Holmes's columns met at Guasaule on June 6. They conferred as to the possibility of gaining contact with the Sandino forces and decided to return by different routes to find out the possibility of an ambush.

RATIONS SCARCE

Capt. Humphrey arrived at the Santa Cruz crossing of the Coco on June 10 and found the river swollen and its high-water marks showed west upstream, looking for a crossing and lost a mule which, crossing when he forded the Quisisma River, a tributary of the Coco. Rations were now running low. Capt. Holmes arrived at Santa Cruz June 11 and reported that the Coco fell eighteen inches during the night, but began to rise again at the rate of fifteen inches per hour the following morning. Maj. Humphrey moved to a point outside Las Piedras and waited for the water to subside, the loss of seven more mules and two horses greatly impeding his movement. Maj. Rockey arrived at Santa Cruz the morning of June 13. He found Capt. Jacob O. Keller of Mainland, Pa., to join Lieut. Humphrey and carry him sugar and salt, of which he was forced to swim the river to obtain Pantasma. Maj. Rockey began construction of a boat from the timbers of the lone house at Santa Cruz.

Rockey of Virginia Beach, Va., during the latest operations of his command near the Coco River, June 9 to 27.

Airplanes played an important part in relieving the discomfort of Rockey's columns by dropping supplies to them, co-ordinating movements and keeping the high command notified as to their [illegible] locations.

The first contact obtained in the "hike through mire" movement was when the columns commanded by Maj. Joseph D. Humphrey of Washington, D. C., surprised a band of armed bandits at a house near Las Pavas. The group fled, leaving behind bloody clothing. In spite of the efficiency of the airplane service, there were no major casualties.

DESPERABLE CONDITIONS

Tidal rains washed the muddy trails, making the narrow paths slippery and treacherous. Animals gave out, exhausted. The lack of feed for them all but paralyzed the three columns of the battalion. On the return to their base, the columns found the Coco River, normally about 200 yards wide and rather shallow, changed to a raging torrent, the roar of its waters audible for [illegible] miles distant. The troops were forced to build a boat and wait for the river to subside to a fordable level.

The first column, commanded by Lieut. Colonel Marion G. Holmes of Pontiac, Mich., had marched south and east from Quilali toward the mouth of the Coco River, which flows into the Coco about twelve miles south of Santa Cruz where the Coco changes its easterly course and flows north toward the Honduras border. It was forced to abandon [illegible] pack mules and one horse after crossing the then fordable Rio Coco near the mouth of the Dipa. SWIMMED TO SAFETY

Despite, in spite of the backbreaking labor of lifting the mules out of knee-deep mud, and of the discomforts of sleeping in the rain, morale is excellent spirits.

Heavy rains prevail during the day, heavy rains by night. Morale is reported. Capt. Holmes in an airplane pick-up.

Rockey. The men had been sleeping without shelter.

Maj. Rockey advised that his home-made boat was fifteen by four feet in size and that it was best for Lieut. Humphrey to remain where he was until the columns under Maj. Rockey and Capt. Holmes had crossed. Arrangements were made to notify Lieut. Humphrey by airplane signal when the crossing would be ready for him.

ORDERS TO MOVE

On June 16 the airplanes found the troops crossing and signaled Lieut. Humphrey to move down the river to Santa Cruz. Equipment, arms, ammunition, rations and non-swimmers were transported on the boat with the two airplane pontoons as safety floats. The boat was launched in the swift current. The crew made what lateral passage was possible as the torrent carried them downstream.

Each landing necessitated arduous hauling upstream of the clumsy craft, which would drift half a mile or more during the journey across. Animals were taken across by the swimmers with the pontoons again playing the part of safety devices. All three columns completed the crossing on June 16.

On June 17 at 11 a.m. Maj. Rowell's reconnaissance plane reported all the troops safely in Quilali, except Lieut. Humphrey's column, which was five miles distant and proceeding in that direction.

CATTLE DRIVEN OUT OF FLAMES

Few Scorched, But Most of Herd of 400 Escape

Blaze in Glennville Area Almost Under Control

Another Fire Reported on El Tejon Ranch

PORTERVILLE, July 1.—Four hundred head of cattle on summer range in Sequoia National Forest in the Glennville section, endangered from a grass and brush fire which broke out early yesterday afternoon, are believed to have been driven to safety, according to telephonic communication with Supervisor Frank P. Cunningham of Sequoia Forest, at summer quarters in California Hot Springs. While several cattle were scorched it is thought practically all were saved.

The cattle were owned by Velle & Frame of this city, Gill & Vincent of White River, cattlemen with large herds.

The fire has swept 2000 acres, but was surrounded except one corner early this afternoon, and before nightfall complete control was expected, according to Cunningham, who is directing the fighters. A crew of 125 men, recruited from the mountain ranches and villages, are battling the flames.

This fire is the most serious thus far this season in Sequoia National Forest. It broke out along Cedar Creek and is believed to have started from a fisherman's camp fire.

State Fire Warden Farley from Bakersfield, who went to the fire line last night, was called away early this afternoon by report of a blaze on the El Tejon Ranch below Bakersfield.

State Fire Warden Sam Wood of Kern county, in whose territory the Glennville fire lies, also is at the front. Sam White, Jim Vincent, Will Neighbors, all cattlemen, have been deputized as assistants. Ranger Norris of the Sequoia Forest Service is also with the fire crew.

BROADWAY FACES NEW RAIDS SOON

Federal Agents Say They Have Orders to "Dry Up" New York City

NEW YORK, July 1. (Exclusive) From fifteen to twenty additional night clubs in the Broadway district are scheduled to be raided shortly, according to prohibition enforcement officials, who said today they are under orders to continue the campaign inaugurated early Friday to "dry up" New York.

Evidence against these clubs, according to the agents, was obtained during the last ten weeks. Not only have prohibition department "under-cover men and women" been able to purchase liquor at the clubs, but it was said they were able to obtain information establishing the identity of the bootleggers operating in the "white light" district.

A force of more than fifty prohibition agents, most of them from Washington and the West, have been in New York for the last three months obtaining evidence against night clubs and bootleggers.

In most instances application for padlock decrees against raided night clubs will be asked, if was said.

COTTON ESTIMATE LARGE

Kern County Expected to Exceed Last Year's by 12,000 Bales; Picking Will Be Late

BAKERSFIELD, July 1.—That Kern county cotton fields will produce a total of approximately 40,000 bales of cotton this year is the prediction which is being made by cotton men here. The estimates are that this year's crop will exceed that of last year by 12,000 bales. Last year's cotton production in this county was approximately 26,013 bales, which set a high production average for the United States at 488 pounds of cotton to the acre. At this time cotton men estimate that about 42,000 acres are planted to cotton in the county.

This acreage will "hold up" for the season if everything goes well for the crop, cotton men say. The crop is somewhat late in maturing due to the cool weather, particularly the cool weather of the last two weeks. A considerable portion of the new acreage is in the Buttonwillow district. Farmers are awaiting with some interest the developments of cotton production in that area where it is in an experimental state.

As to prices, local cotton men are optimistic at this time. The December closing of yesterday was 22.18 and some growers state that they would not be surprised if 25-cent cotton would be reached in the markets this year, though most of the growers are more conservative.

Many of the more conservative growers this year are planning to sell enough of their crop, first, to cover expenses, making the sale at conservative prices, and then retaining the remaining portion of their crop for market speculation. Once they are clear of their operating and production expenses they say they can afford to do this in the hope of making better profits on their remainder.

To handle the increased cotton production in the county this year, cotton men are planning the construction of new gins. One may go up at Buttonwillow; one at Mayhews corner on Union avenue and the Weed Patch Highway, and one at the Greenfield ranch.

If these gins are constructed, and the gin at Pond, which was burned, is rebuilt, the county will have a total of twenty gins for this season's crop.

Harvesting of the cotton crop will not be started until fall, probably some time in September, although it is far too early to make any accurate prediction as to picking time.

BULLET MAY END CAREER OF WAR HERO

French Foreign Legion and A.E.F. Veteran Shot by Brother-in-Law

LOUISVILLE, July 1. (AP)—Jack Carney, 32 years of age, soldier of fortune and said to be the son of a former police inspector in Chicago, was probably fatally shot by his brother-in-law, David Wilson, 19, today when he attempted to force his way into the Wilson home for the avowed purpose of killing his estranged wife.

The victim was a veteran of the A.E.F., in France and Mexico and of the French Foreign Legion, from which service he was retired in 1920 after being wounded while fighting in the Riff. He met his future wife through his sister, an artist of Chicago, who admired some amateur drawings done by the girl, Jean Lesis Wilson, and who mentioned her name in a letter to Carney. In 1926 he came to Louisville and was married, his wife then being 19.

Carney's memoirs of the Foreign Legion were published here and syndicated. He was employed for a time as an advertising solicitor, but had not been in Louisville for several months. His father, Joseph Carney, is said to have been prominent in Chicago politics at one time.

Following the shooting, police took the victim to the city hospital, where it is said he is wounded in the abdomen and will not live. Young Wilson was paroled.

Grass Fire Now Beyond Control; Towns Periled

MARTINEZ, July 1. (Exclusive)—A menacing grass fire that already has swept over 2000 acres, threatening the towns of Clyde and Bay Point, is beyond control tonight. Emergency calls for fire-fighters from this city and Concorn were issued by the endangered sections. Apparatus here is in readiness to be sent to combat the flames if unchecked within the next few hours.

No loss of life is reported, nor have any buildings been destroyed, but the fire is said to be the most serious to break out in this section for years. The flames were within less than a mile of Bay Point at the last report and squads of men were endeavoring to check the blaze at Willow Pass Road.

Supervisors on Inspection Trip

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1. (Exclusive)—John Dunnigan, clerk of the Board of Supervisors, will obey the letter of the law by formally calling the roll in the morning, but he will then have to report to himself that no one is present and duly adjourn the following Monday.

With the exception of two Supervisors, one in Europe and one in Houston, all other members of the board left yesterday on their annual inspection tour of the Hetch-Hetchy water system. They will confer Wednesday with Stephen T. Mather, director of the National Park Service at Yosemite, on the terms of the Raker Act which governs the water system in its relation to the Federal government. Upon their return, a public meeting is to be held to determine San Francisco's obligations under the act.

BOULDER FLAYS WORKMAN

MILBANK (S. D.) July 1. (Exclusive)—A block of granite weighing half a ton struck Paul Tillmans, worker in a quarry here, when it fell from the cable by which it was being hoisted. The man was in such a position, however, that the mass only scraped one side his body instead of crushing him. To close the wounds made in his head and face 160 stitches were required.

PARKS LURE MOTORISTS FOR FOURTH

Sequoia and Gen. Grant Reserves Expect Large Crowds Over Holidays

GIANT FOREST (Sequoia National Park) July 1.—Throngs of visitors are expected in Sequoia and Gen. Grant national parks to remain over the Fourth of July vacation. No special celebration has been planned here, but a program will be staged at Gen. Grant Park.

This is the season of enchantment in Giant Forest, the purple lupine flowering beneath the great red columns of the big trees. The green meadows are converted into vast flower beds by the amethyst and sapphire of shooting stars and camass. At sunset the violet peaks of the Great Western Divide change to crimson and gold. Thousands of campers are at the public auto camps, yet there is room for thousands more.

Giant Forest is being developed to maintain the quiet and charm of the forest, despite the ever-increasing number of visitors. Public camps are established away from the main roads; parking space and picnic grounds are arranged to avoid congestion. Traffic is controlled by the rangers so that by-roads and camp grounds are not disturbed.

Each night finds merry crowds round the camp fire, song and story giving added charm, many talented artists frequently being among the circle.

The same conditions prevail at Gen. Grant National Park. Travel to both national parks is holding up well, visitors from other States coming in large numbers, also more people from Southern California.

BLINDNESS REDUCED BY STATE LAWS

Loss of Sight From Babies' Sore Eyes Cut 64 Per Cent in Last Two Decades

NEW YORK, July 1. (AP)—Frequency of ophthalmia neonatorum, commonly called "babies' sore eyes," as a cause of blindness in persons admitted to schools for the blind has decreased 64.3 per cent during the past twenty years, says the annual report of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

The diminution is attributed largely to the adoption of laws in many States requiring the placing of prophylactic drops in the eyes of babies at birth.

The report also calls attention to the work done by the late Dr. Hideyo Noguchi of Rockefeller Institute in his search for the cause of trachoma. Recalling that Dr. Noguchi, who died recently of yellow fever while studying that disease on the Gold Coast of Africa, had found a germ not previously described or identified with trachoma, the report points out that the investigator had produced in chimpansees and monkeys "a condition resembling what is believed to be early stages of trachoma."

"This discovery," the statement adds, "may have a very direct bearing upon establishing the tiology of trachoma. Ophthalmologists, health officers and social agencies are hopeful that the facts may soon be fully established to the satisfaction of all."

Soldier Falls to Death When Planes Collide

KANSAS CITY, July 1. (AP)—Forrest G. Thackaberry of Kansas City, private in the Air Corps Reserve, was killed this afternoon when an army airplane in which he was flying as a passenger collided with another plane near North Kansas City, Mo., and crashed.

Capt. L. Campbell, pilot, parachuted to safety. Thackaberry had a parachute but apparently made no effort to use it when the plane went out of control after its tail had been cut off by a ship flown by Lieut. W. S. Green at 1500 feet. Green's plane landed undamaged, except for a broken propeller.

The planes were simulating combat and Green flew into Campbell's plane from a blind angle, shearing off the tail and controls. Campbell told Thackaberry to jump, then cut himself loose, landing safely.

President Diaz Acts in Wedding

MANAGUA (Nicaragua) July 1. (AP)—With President Diaz of Nicaragua giving the bride in marriage, Miss Ruth Ginn of Bayard, Iowa, was married here yesterday to Capt. Bernard Dubel, U.S.M.C., of Baltimore. The ceremony was performed at the American Legation in the presence of members of the Diplomatic Corps, Cabinet and government officials and Marine Corps, army and naval officers.

Mrs. Susie Rosenthal of New York was matron of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Larsch of San Francisco and Senorita Chila Mejia, the reigning Nicaraguan beauty.

Miss Ginn was a nurse in France during the World War and later was with the United States Army forces in Panama. She has been superintendent of the Railway Hospital here for two years.

WORKERS KILLED IN FRENCH MINE

Fire Damp Responsible for Majority of Deaths

City in Mourning as Plans for Funeral Progress

ST. ETIENNE (France) July 1. (AP)—Bodies of forty-eight coal miners killed by fire damp in a mine here yesterday have been recovered. A roll call of employees showed that all others have been accounted for and that none remains in the workings.

Andre Tardieu, Minister of Public Works, personally supervised the rescue work. Funerals of the victims will be held tomorrow.

A wave of fire damp and vitiated air swept the galleries and asphyxiated forty-one of the miners. The other seven were crushed by cave-ins resulting from fire which burned away the supports, the collapse of the galleries causing the blast of fire damp.

Twenty of the dead were foreigners, mostly Poles.

FIRE RESPONSIBLE

The catastrophe, one of the worst in French mine history, started when fire broke out in a gallery carrying pipes which supplied compressed air into portions of the workings which had no direct ventilation. The pipe supports burned and the pipes themselves burst.

But the fresh air in the pipes, which might have meant life to the men, became itself a source of disaster for the pressure from the broken pipes acted like bellows and fanned the flames into fresh fury, bringing down the roof supports. Survivors still were numb today from the horror that this development inspired.

The entire city is in mourning and all mines will be closed tomorrow, the funeral day. Cardinal Maurin came from Lyons to conduct the services and delegations of miners are expected from Great Britain, Germany and Belgium.

PEGGY JOYCE PLANS TO THRILL US WITH SNAPPY DIARY BOOK

NEW YORK, July 1. (Exclusive) You all know that little Hopkins girl who grew up in the South and who came to New York to make a name for herself?

Well, she's going to. Just watch that girl. She's going to write a book. Maybe it'll be called "Why Gentlemen Prefer Blonds" or something like that.

Anyway, it is to be one of those popular diary things that they are doing these days. It will be signed Peggy Hopkins Joyce, most likely, for that is the name the little girl uses most these days. Peggy told about the book as she sailed for Europe.

She planned this trip as a "vacation," she said, but somehow she feels a responsibility to her public and she will work on her diary while she is abroad. This is the second vacation she has had in Europe this year.

While she was in Paris in April she had a couple of private detectives following her around to watch her diamonds.

Even on that trip Peggy went highbrow, entertaining the Paris correspondents with talk of a search for a "companionate husband."

But when she sailed this morning she would not say a word about that young fellow, the Count de Janze, to whom she most recently was reported engaged.

Fascist Regime Lauded by Duce

ROME, July 1. (AP)—The Fascist government of Italy is one of "force, loyalty and justice," Premier Mussolini declared today in addressing members of the pilgrimage of war wounded from the former Austrain province of the upper Adige.

"Force always ought to be accompanied by justice," Il Duce said, "and the Fascist government holds to that directive."

Many of the pilgrims were mountaineers who on this journey saw the sea for the first time. A special mass was said for them in St. Peter's Cathedral.

Annual Convention Opens at Minneapolis

Education for Citizenship Theme of Meeting

MINNEAPOLIS, July 1. (AP)—Steps to combat what its secretary described as public-utility propaganda in the public schools will be taken by the National Education Association, which opens its annual convention Monday.

Appointment of a committee to investigate and report at the 1929 convention has been approved by the board of directors in line with recommendations of J. W. Crabtree of Washington, association secretary. In his annual report, Mr. Crabtree referred to the Federal Trade Commission investigation of dissemination of information by utility bureaus and urged that the association denounce their efforts.

"Education for citizenship" is the theme of the convention, at which an attendance of 10,000 is expected, representative of a membership of approximately 185,000. The convention closes Friday.

SUNSET GASOLINE

LETTER OF JOSEPH SCOTT AND H. L. CARNAHAN, RECEIVERS

To the Stockholders of Julian Petroleum Corporation and California Eastern Oil Company:

PROCEEDINGS to reorganize the Julian Petroleum Corporation and the California Eastern Oil Company have progressed so that we believe we can now say that the proposed corporate and financial structure of the new SUNSET PACIFIC OIL COMPANY—the company which will take over and operate their properties, and the stock of which company you will hold—will be such as to meet your approval.

Pending the completion of the reorganization and the transfer of the properties to the new corporation, it will be used as a sales agency to unify and consolidate all marketing operations. This will give more efficiency at less expense.

The refineries are making good gasoline. There is no better anywhere; for we knew from the beginning, that to save the companies' business, their products must not only be very good, but the very best.

Gasoline will be sold by the new Company under the name "Sunset," and lubricating oils under the trademark "Rainbow." Service Stations scattered throughout Southern California and Arizona, will be PAINTED CANARY YELLOW and GREEN.

No company, no matter how well financed or managed, can have any chance of success unless its products are sold. You represent one of the greatest buying powers in this market. Your Company has 30,000 stockholders—enough, with their friends, to purchase every drop of gasoline that it can produce.

Locate the 100% Sunset Service Station nearest you. Get acquainted with the service station manager. Help him sell Sunset gas and Rainbow oils to your friends and your neighbors. Over 40,000 of them now regularly use Lightning and Marine—the old names of the new Sunset—because they have already learned how good a gasoline it is. Ask one of them how he likes it; and then be as good a salesman of Sunset gas (and Rainbow oils) as you will find he is.

Another thing: There is no reason why you should not say to any independent station where you now fill up, that, if it wants to keep your business, it must put in a Sunset pump. You may say that Sunset gas will not be cheapened, and will not be sold at cut rate prices.

If all of us attack this problem wholeheartedly, and carry on consistently, the reorganization will be put through as speedily as it can be done legally, and the SUNSET PACIFIC OIL COMPANY can and will be put on a dividend paying basis in a good deal shorter time than many now anticipate.

Yours sincerely,
JOSEPH SCOTT,
H. L. CARNAHAN,

EN ROUTE TO PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—With the last night in a sleeper previous to the Olympic trials, staring them in the face the Southern California senior and junior Olympic aspirants are heading across the Alleghenies in the best of condition. Given good weather conditions the boys will be right on edge for the big trials this week. Not one member of the senior group is ailing at all and Rex Heap, who was a little off color yesterday is feeling fine again.

Some of the athletes were excused entirely from working out in Chicago this morning but others did quite a bit of work. Coleman won the Southern California amateur championship on May 15, last, with the same brand of golf that spelled ruin for Reed at Griffith Park yesterday.

NEW YORK, July 1. (AP)—The big issue in fistic circles just now does not seem to be what will happen in the Tunney-Heeney bout for the heavyweight crown, title or bauble, but whether or not it will take place at all.

Something approaching pugilistic heresy appears to be manifest among the metropolitan experts in their attitude toward what is supposed to be the big fight of the year. Many of them are not alone skeptical, but when the subject is brought up they reflect an air of "what of it, any way?"

While the boys await the return of Tex Rickard from the political scenes of Houston to say just what there is of it, the general hubbub seems to center about these two possibilities:

(1.) That something will happen to either fighter, such as a training injury, to prompt calling off the fight for this year altogether, if Rickard himself does not cancel the affair as a bad business venture in a Presidential election season.

(2.) That the show will be put off until September to permit bigger ballyhoo, and some means found either to substitute Jack Sharkey for Heeney as challenger or draw Jack

TWO MARKS FALL AT WOMEN'S SWIM TRIALS; MISS COLEMAN CAPTURES HIGH-DIVE HONORS

ROCKAWAY BEACH (N. Y.) July 1. (AP)—The world's record and one American mark fell in two races in the trials for the women's Olympic swimming tryouts today. Eleanor Garretti of San Rafael, Cal., lowered the world's record for 100 meters, covering the distance in 1m. 10 3-5s., while Agnes Geraghty of New York set a new American record of 3m. 19s. in the 220-yard breast stroke.

The former record in the 100-meter event was 1m. 11 4-5s. It was held by Ethel Lackie of Chicago, who finished last today. Suzanne Laird of Homestead, Pa., took second place and Albina Osipowich of Worcester, Mass., was third. Martha Norelius, the defending national champion, finished sixth.

Miss Geraghty clipped nine seconds from her own former American record in winning the 220-yard breast-stroke national championship race, which also served as a trial for the Olympic 200-meter event. Her old time was 3m. 28 2-5s. Jane Fauntz of Chicago took second place, with Margaret Hoffman of Scranton, Pa., third.

The last of the Olympic tryout events, the plain high-diving contest, was won by Georgia Coleman of Los Angeles, with the low total of 12 points. Another Los Angeles girl, Clarita Hunsberger, was a close second with 13 points. In the third place came Mrs. Betty Becker Pinkston, the Olympic springboard diving champion, who had 15½ points. Fourth place went to Dorothy Poynton, young star from Pasadena, Cal., with a total of 19½ points.

TILDEN AND HENNESSEY FACE STIFF OPPOSITION

WIMBLEDON (Eng.) July 1. (AP) Sunday was a day of rest for stars still in the running for the British championships and most of them needed it.

A solid week of play completed, the large original entry list had been cut down today to manageable numbers in the men's and women's singles.

In both divisions America still was represented — by Big Bill Tilden and John Hennessey, and Helen Wills and Elizabeth Ryan, the latter a former Californian now living in England.

Of the four Miss Wills alone appears definitely slated to return to America with a Wimbledon championship. The defending titleholder has not lost a set in the tournament thus far, capping a brilliant week of play yesterday with a straight-set triumph over Mrs. M. Holcroft Watson of England. Barring her path to another championship is not only Miss Ryan, but also such stars as Eileen Bennett of England, Senorita Elia de Alvares of Spain, Cecelie Aussem of Germany, and Daphne Akhurst of Australia.

Tilden and Hennessey are faced with much stiffer opposition in the men's singles, chiefly from the French, who have placed no fewer than five men in the quarter finals—Henri Cochet, Rene La Coste, Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boussus. Baron H. L. De Morpurgo, the great Italian Davis Cup player, is the eighth member of the double quartet.

The pairings for tomorrow find Tilden pitted against Borotra, a finalist last year; Hennessey against the defending champion, Cochet; La Coste against De Morpurgo, and Brugnon against Boussus.

In the women's singles, Miss Bennett meets Miss Akhurst; Cecelie Aussem clashes with Senorita De Alvarez and Miss Ryan with Miss Nicolopoul.

PEDLEY'S POLOISTS IN WIN AT UPLIFTERS' CLUB

Led by the brilliant Eric Pedley, the Uplifters' Club poloists rode to a 13-to-12 victory over the Jim Colt's Buccaneers yesterday in a rip-snorting mallet tilt at the Rustic Canyon field. The Uplifters did not cinch the game until the last two minutes of play, so fast was the attack of the Buccaneers. Frank Dazy, No. 1 man on the Uplifters, shot the winning goal on a pass from Pedley just when it looked as though the game was going into an extra period.

From the opening throw-in the two teams battled like two strange bulldogs. The Uplifters took the lead in the first period but only after the fiercest kind of struggle. They grabbed five goals while the Buccaneers were collecting one. The score does not give an accurate picture of the battle that ensued during that session. The Buccaneers trailed behind for the first half despite the fact that they played extra-fine polo. Only the brilliant work of Pedley kept the Uplifters in the lead.

In the last four periods the Buccaneers, led by Hal Roach, rode like the wind and tied up the score. The teams went into the last period, tied 11 to 11 goals. Then young Pedley came through with a goal, giving the Uplifters an edge. Dr. Harry Wilson made a beautiful shot to tie it up 12-all. Just before the bell rang Frank Dazy who played the best game of his career yesterday, smashed through with the winning goal.

The line-up:

| Uplifters (13) | | Buccaneers (12) |
|---|---|---|
| Dazey (5) | No. 1 | Mackley (4) |

TWO FOR SOX

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—Boston won a double-header from the Senators today by scores of 2 to 1, and 7 to 1. Gaston struck out six men in the first game and held Boston to five hits in eight innings but Myer's home run in the seventh inning proved his undoing.

In the second game Burke, Washington recruit, was knocked out of the box before the first inning was over, and Lisenbee fared no better, Zachary relieving him. Morris, former Southern leaguer, turned in another well-pitched game for Boston. The scores:

INDIANS WIN

CHICAGO, July 1. (AP)—George Burns's home run with two on base in the sixth inning broke up a pitching battle between Adkins and Hudlin and started Cleveland on her way to a 5-to-2 victory over Chicago here today.

Adkins had allowed only three hits up to that time. After the fourth Hudlin held the White Sox safely with three hits.

Reynolds with a single, double and a triple, was the hitting star of the day.

The victory gave the Indians three out of five in the series. Score:

TIGERS COP

DETROIT, July 1. (AP)—A five-run attack in the eighth inning gave the Tigers a 7-to-4 victory over the Browns today and an even break in the series of four games. Seven hits, two of them by Harry Rice, were bunched in the rally. Dick Coffman, who started in the box for St. Louis, was driven to cover and Hal Wiltse, the former Red Sox left-hander, was unable to check the Detroit bats.

Lil Stoner held the Browns in check after relieving Victor Sorrell in the second inning. Stoner not only pitched well, but contributed three hits to the winning offense for a perfect day at bat. Score:

Great Field Awaits Olympic Tryouts at Cambridge

NATIONAL CHAMPIONS WILL DEFEND CROWNS

All but One of 1927 Titleholders Slated to Participate in Big Meet Which Opens Friday

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) July 1. (AP)—With the single exception of Willie Ritola, the distance runner who is now in Finland preparing for the Olympics, every national A.A.U. champion of 1927 will appear at the Harvard Stadium Friday and Saturday for the final American Olympic tryouts which will determine the make-up of America's track and field team at Amsterdam. Present indications point to a wholesale dethronement of the current titleholders.

Claude O. Bracey of Rice Institute, Houston, Tex., George Simpson of Ohio State University, and Frank Wykoff, 18-year-old high school star of Glendale, Cal., were not in the championship sprints a year ago, but each is expected to bid strongly for national honors as well as for Olympic berths. In the 100-yard dash at Nebraska last year, Chester Bowman was awarded first place over Charley Borah following a twenty-four-hour discussion, and the judges then named Eddie Locke, Jackson Scholz, Percy Cumming and Frank Hussey; without exception all these athletes will battle for 100-meter honors in the stadium and all of the competitors in this event will be concluded Friday.

FRANK WYKOFF

HOST OF OTHERS

There are a host of other candidates for sprinting honors, such as Charley Paddock, who won the Olympic title in 1920; Frank Loomis, Weldon Draper, Russell Sloan, the last four entered from the Los Angeles A.C.; Louis Clarke and Ed Haywood, a Newark A.C. pair; Ray Norfrey of Atlanta, Ga.; Augie Bernell, former Texan; Nate Cartmell, George of Whittier, Cal.; Jack Atkinson, University of Kansas; Maurice Abbott, Fresno State College; James B. Daley, Holy Cross, and Reginald P. Bowen, Pittsburgh A.A.

In the championship 220-yard event last year, Borah beat Locke for first place, with Tom Poague of Dayton, O., leading Scholz for third place. The 400-meter competition on Saturday will find these runners once more competing with the probable addition of Don Bennett of Toledo, Fred Alderman, Illinois A.C., and Edward A. Gordon of the University of Illinois. The latter two also will run as 400-meter prospects.

The 800-meter tryouts as well as the 110-meter hurdles and decathlon will be held Tuesday and Wednesday at Philadelphia.

So far as time is concerned, Glenn E. Anderson of the University of Washington ought to be found in the 100-meter hurdles. He has equaled Earl Thomson's 14-second high-hurdle record of 1924, in the Pacific Coast championships at Missoula, Mont., June 1 last. But Leighton Dye of the Los Angeles A.C., smashed the world record for 110-meter hurdles a fortnight ago at Los Angeles, winning in 14 1-5s., one-fifth of a second faster than Thomson's record time in the 1920 Olympics at Antwerp.

WELLS IN IT

Charles Werner of Illinois A. C., Ray Leistner, Olympic Club, San Francisco, second; George Wells, Illinois A. C., third, and Bill Wells, Boston A. A., fourth, in order of the national high-hurdle championship race of last year, and each of this quartet is figured along with John Collier of Penn, Weems Baskin, New York A. C., a former Alabama Poly star; Ben Nichols of Stanford, the intercollegiate champion; Kane of Penn, Yesayan; Penquite of Drake, and Dan Kinsey, Chicago A. A., who won the Olympic title in 1924 at Paris.

Lloyd Hahn will be favored to defeat Ray Watson of the Illinois A. C., half-mile champion of 1927, when they meet in the 800-meter contest; Sam Martin of the Boston A. A., who ran close to Watson in the latter's smashing 800-meter time of 1m. 52 1-5s., at New Haven two weeks ago; Ray Conger, Illinois A.C.; Virgil Gist, Chicago A.A.; George Leness, New York A. C. and William D. Gease, University of Kentucky, are a few of the other half-milers who will be found close to Hahn's flying heels.

Hahn probably will run the 1500 meters at Amsterdam but he will compete on the 800 meters here while leaving the 1500-field for such stars as Conger, national one-mile champion; Joe Simpson A.C.; Ernest (Nick) Suesan, Los Angeles A.C.; Rufus Kiser, University of Washington; Ernest Suesan, Boston A.A.; Leonard Fenner, Michigan Normal; Casper Hirst, North Carolina; Ralph Metcalfe, Harvard, intercollegiate champion; Sid Robinson, New York A. C., and perhaps a dozen others.

WEAK IN DISTANCES

The meet is not strong in the 5000 and 10,000-meter races, but that does not mean the trials will be dull, Macauley Smith, former star, and Leo Lermond of Boston A.A. runners will fight it out in the shorter event with Bill Cox of Penn State, Melvin Shimek, Illinois A. A., Harvey Lunney, and Chesley Unruh, Los Angeles A.C.; Raymond T. Lee, Louisville; Leslie Wiblack of Penn; Harold Fields of Illinois and Dave Abbott of Illinois and Penn.

The 10,000 meter event, Robert Temple of the Boston A.A.; Joe Ward, Jr., Verne H. Booth of Illinois, Tillerton, a trio of Millrose A.A. stars, and Joie Ray, Illinois A.C. stars, are scheduled to start. There is a possibility that Ray will not run for he is considering the advisability of concentrating on the event at Amsterdam, an event which he was chosen some time ago.

M'GINNIS STARS IN MIDWEST OLYMPIC TRACKFEST; OSBORN BEATEN IN HIGH-JUMP TEST

BY CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT, July 1. (AP)—Charles E. McGinnis, former University of Wisconsin track star, one of the greatest athletes ever developed in the Western Conference, made an impressive bid for Olympic fame today, when he emerged victorious in two events in the concluding program of the Midwest sectional Olympic trials. The events were run in the University of Detroit Stadium with less than 1000 spectators in the stands.

The one-time Badger captain, running under the colors of the Chicago Athletic Association, won the pole vault with a leap of 13ft. 6in. and also defeated Harold Osborn of the Illinois, A.C., the defending Olympic champion for honors in the high jump.

McGinnis cleared 6ft. 5in. with Osborn winner of the event in the Olympics of 1924 finishing second with 6ft. 4in. Anton Burg, formerly of the University of Chicago but now competing for Chicago A.A., was third with 6ft. 2in.

The outstanding performance in the field events was the victory of Herbert Schwarze, a giant from University of Wisconsin in the shot put. Schwarze, competing for the I.A.C., heaved the sixteen-pound ball 49ft. 5½in. with Dan Lyons of the University of Illinois, holder of the Western Conference title in this event, second with a heave of 47ft. 2½in.

Lyons won the discus throw with a toss of 136ft. 4 3-4in., with Allman of Michigan State Normal College second, with 134ft. 1 1-4in.

Eddie Tolen, 19-year-old negro from Detroit, came back today to win first honors in the 100-meter dash after capturing the 200-meter event Saturday. Tolan, now a freshman at University of Michigan, ran a sparkling race, beating Henson of Michigan State College to the tape by an eyelash in 11s.

Ray Conger of I.A.C., one of America's hopes in the middle-distance runs, won the 800-meter event by turning loose a sprint in the last fifty yards to brush past Orval Martin of Purdue. Johnny Sittig, former University of Illinois star, now competing for Chicago A.A., was third. The time was 1m. 55 1-10s.

The 3000-meter steeple chase produced only three starters with W. C. Spencer of Chicago A.A., national champion, winning as he pleased in 9m. 44 3-10s. He led all the way. J. E. Little of University of Indiana was second about 200 yards behind Spencer.

CALIFORNIANS ALL IN SHAPE

hardest workout of the week with a medium fast quarter-mile to warm up on and then a sprinting 350-yard race as a wind-up Niersbach and Bill McGeah, as might be expected, were leading Hansen and Callahan in both gallops, the distance being considerably too short for the latter runners to do their stuff, but all showed themselves in fine shape.

Levi Casey and Bob Patton, hop, step and jumped all around the place. Casey has been spurred into a little enthusiasm by the arrival of Kelly, the hop-step-and-jumping postman from the Olympic Club of San Francisco, who is consistent at 48ft. Jed Welsh likewise galloped around a little bit. Jeddy has had a slight sore throat, but seems to be recovering in fine shape.

The Junior Olympic aspirants got a good workout in the gymnasium of the Illinois A.C., with Heap taking things a little easy and the rest of them working their heads off. Little Jerry Deal is as full of zip as a hungry flea and Mike Pina, who had an ailing toe at the start of the trip, is hard to hold down. Falcon is not as demonstrative as the other boys but he is working for form in all his events.

The squad leaders are tightening up on the boys now with the Olympic tests so close at hand. Coach Comstock and Pete Poole, Olympic trainer, are laying out a menu for the boys and making them stick close to it. The Junior Olympic youngsters are eating right at the same table and thriving on it. The only trouble with their appetites seems to be that they don't want to quit. They are taking so much exercise, however, that it is good for them.

ARRIVE TODAY

The squad will arrive in Philadelphia tomorrow at 8 o'clock and will be met by the Southern California delegation already on the scene. A last-minute switch in arrangements will take the boys to the Adelphia Hotel, but any mail that has been sent to them at the Benjamin Franklin will be picked up by Manager Keppen.

COLEMAN WINS GOLF LAURELS

Coleman toured the layout in the morning in 74 while Reed took a 76. Starting the afternoon round Coleman was three up on his rival. Coleman took the first hole of the match with a par 5 while Johnny was taking a 6. They halved the next three holes in 4s. Coleman took the next hole with a par 4 while Reed had a 5. The six and seventh holes were halved with 4s. Reed had a birdie 3 on the eighth and they both had a 4 on the ninth. Both golfers had a 38 at the end of the first nine holes.

Reed kept pace with Fay during the tenth and eleventh holes, but Coleman won the twelfth with a par 4. They halved the thirteenth, but Reed took the fourteenth with a birdie 4 displaying some brilliant golf. Johnny, after getting in the rough with his tee shot, make a peach of a shot to get on the fairway and then lifted the ball 220 yards to the green. He sank his putt as the gallery gave him a rousing round of cheers.

Coleman forged ahead on the sixteenth after they had halved the fifteenth hole with 3 apiece. Fay clicked off a par 4 for two holes and he halved the eighteenth with Reed. The afternoon round was a walkaway for Coleman. His consistent approach shots and accurate putting had Reed beaten before they had covered more than half the course. Reed fought doggedly on from hole to hole, but the gallery of more than 500 fans knew what the result would be long before the match ended. Fay had one bad hole during the afternoon and that was when he flubbed a three-foot putt on the twelfth. Coleman cinched the match and the championship with a birdie 3 on the thirteenth hole.

BEAVERS TRIP ACORNS TWICE

PORTLAND, July 1. (AP)—Portland ended the first half of the pennant race by taking both games from Oakland today, 6-1 and 7-6. Jack Knight, recently obtained from Seattle, in a trade for Dave Barbee and Bert Cole, made his debut in a Portland uniform by pitching a four-hit victory in the first game in which he also made four hits himself, including a homer. In the second game a two-run seventh inning Portland rally tied the count at six-all and Sigafoos's double with one on and one out won the game in the eighth. Score:

COAST NETTERS TO INVADE EAST

Twenty-four Players Will Represent West

Helen Wills to Take Part in Big Tourneys

Junior Nationals to Draw Large Entry List

SAN FRANCISCO, July 1.—California will be represented in eastern tennis circles this year by twenty-four players. In addition to the eastern invasion six others are to make a tour of the Pacific Northwest tournaments.

Headed by Helen Wills and Helen Jacobs, now in England, who will return for the larger eastern tournaments, and the college players from the University of California, Stanford and the University of Southern California, the real invasion will begin tomorrow. Edith Cross and Carolyn Swartz will start for Boston where they will enter the play at Longwood. They will be under the protecting wing of Mrs. George Wightman. Others who played in the Pacific Coast tournament that closed yesterday who will leave this week or soon after are Mrs. Anna Harper, Edith Tough, and Evelyn Parsons.

The junior national tournament is a magnet that is drawing to the East Joe Coughlin of San Francisco; Harry Plymire of Palo Alto; Gordon Jason of San Francisco; Elsworth Vines of Pasadena; Hugh McArthur of San Diego, and Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara.

The college players now in the East are Alan Herrington, Ralph McElveaney, Ben Gorchakoff of Occidental; John Doeg and John Wheatley of Stanford and Dick Hoogs and Martin McKee of California. Edward Chandler of Berkeley, a Harvard student, will also play as registered from his home town.

The national girls' champion, Midge Gladman of Santa Monica, already is in the East and will defend her title. She played through the Missouri tournament last week.

The players who will invade the Northwest are Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana; Ethel Burkhart of San Francisco; Mrs. Golda Gross of Berkeley; Frank Gove of Berkeley; Joe Coughlin of San Francisco, and Lauerason Driscoll of Burlingame.

Coughlin will play through Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and the Western Canadian tournaments and then start for the junior nationals. He will be San Francisco's best bet in the big event.

In addition to the above, the winners of the Pacific Coast sectional doubles that will be decided in Los Angeles this week will go east. This seems to lie between Robert Zeller and Neil Brown or Phil Neer and Wallace Bates. As far as known Southern California has no team that can defeat either of the combinations that will journey to Los Angeles for the sectional doubles.

CRANSTON HOLMAN WINS COAST NET TITLE

BERKELEY, July 1. (AP)—Cranston Holman, national junior champion in 1925, won the Pacific Coast men's singles tennis title today at the Berkeley Tennis Club by defeating Robert Seller, 6-3, 7-5, 3-6, 6-1. Keith Gledhill of Santa Barbara won the junior singles title, defeating Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, 6-1, 6-1, 7-5.

Edith Cross defeated Mrs. Anna Harper to win the women's coast title that in recent years had been held either by Helen Wills or Helen Jacobs. The scores were 8-6, 6-2.

The title for girls under 18 went to Evelyn Parsons who defeated Marian Hunt, 0-6, 6-2, 6-2. Helen Marlowe of Los Angeles and Vines won the mixed doubles title by defeating Patsy McCoy and Neil Brown, 4-6, 6-2, 7-5.

BEARS WINK AT SABBATH

PHILADELPHIA, July 1. (Exclusive)—Sunday was by no means a day of rest for California's Golden Bear crew, quite to the contrary, it was a day of good hard work. The day's program consisted on going over the course twice, once slowly in the morning, in order to give the boys a look at the various mile marks. Then in the afternoon they again rowed up to the start, and changed Thompson from four back to his regular six position, and switched Jim Workman from six to four again. Thus the Bears lined up in the exact order in which they copped the national championship at Poughkeepsie.

STAUBER IN PERFECT SHOOT

R. B. Hebdon was the runner-up with 97x100. Don Morrison, the professional, tied Hebdon. Minock broke 93. J. F. Goodrich 93, Warman and Rowland 92 each. Mrs. Knight and Goodman 91, W. B. # OIL and MINING

PRODUCING & REFINING — IN THE EARTH

JULIAN MERGER BEGINS TODAY

Company Plans to Operate Property

Issue to Come Later; Stations Repainted

Officers Optimistic Over Future Prospects

Another step toward the rehabilitation of the Julian Petroleum Corporation and the California-Eastern Oil Company will be taken today with the launching of the Sunset Pacific Oil Company, which ultimately will take over and operate the consolidated properties.

When the necessary legal steps are completed Julian and California-Eastern stockholders will be given stock in the Sunset Pacific Oil Company to cover their allowed holdings.

In the meantime, according to an announcement made yesterday by Thomas Cumahan and Scott, the new corporation will be used as a selling agency to unify and consolidate all marketing operations.

REPAINT STATIONS

All former Marine and Julian stations have been painted canary yellow and green. They bear the new trademark as well as that of the Pennsylvania motor oils which are marketed by the corporation.

Formal announcement of the operations will be made today when letters mail to 30,000 stockholders, a letter which is, in part, as follows:

"Readings to reorganize the Julian Petroleum Corporation and the California-Eastern Oil Company have progressed so that we are able to can now say that the proposed corporate and financial plans of the new Sunset Pacific Oil Company, which will take over and operate their properties, and of which company you will be one, will be such as to meet with your approval. Pending the consummation of the reorganization and the transfer of the properties to the new corporation, it will be used as a selling agency to unify and consolidate all marketing operations.

"Gasoline will be sold by the new company under the name 'Sunset,' and lubricating oils under the trade-name 'Golden Shadow.' Service stations, now operated throughout Southern California and Arizona, will be painted yellow and green.

ARREARS DIVIDENDS

"Any company, no matter how well financed or managed, can have any degree of success unless its product is sold. You represent one of the greatest buying powers in this country. Your company has 30,000 stockholders—enough, with their influence, to purchase every drop of gasoline that it can produce.

"If all of us attack this problem wholeheartedly, and carry on consistently, the reorganization will be completed as speedily as it can be done loyally, and the Sunset Pacific Oil Company can and will be put on a dividend-paying basis in a much shorter time than many of our competitors."

RUMORS OF MINE DEAL CONFIRMED

President Says Sale of Big Silver Stock Control Would be Advantageous

Confirming rumors to the effect that an eastern company was negotiating for the purpose of a controlling interest in the Big Silver Mining Company, operating in Inyo county, John A. Fields, president, says that the proposition is acceptable to him and to his associates, for the reason that upon the completion of 2000 feet more of work in the further development of known ore bodies, by drifts, cross-cuts and uprises, the property will be ready for the construction of ore reduction works.

If the present size and value of the ore bodies in the mine are maintained in the accomplishment of this proposed work, which is now under way, Mr. Fields says, a milling plant of considerable size will be a necessity. The company, Mr. Fields further states, with the acceptance of the offer of the eastern company to purchase control, will be amply financed for the completion of its proposed development program, as well as for mill equipment as outlined in the terms of the deal.

It is understood that there will be no change in the mine management following consummation of the transaction, nor of the policy involving development work which consists of blocking out large tonnages of mill grade ore and the shipment of high grades, of which there are said to be large reserves, some of which are said to be rich in silver.

Berry Oil Gets Production at Shallow Depth

BELRIDGE, July 1. (Exclusive) The Berry Oil Company had to go only 647 feet to get a sixty-barrel well in the Belridge field, on Sec. 30, 28-21. The No. 86 is now on the beach. Its oil is 24 deg. gravity and is clean. There is about ten feet of formation. The water was shut off at 637 feet.

In the same field the Belridge Oil Company is reaming to set the six-and-one-quarter-inch pipe in its No. 15 well. The hole is down 2890 feet, being on Sec. 28, 27-20.

J. J. Bardwell is drilling his No. 1 well on Sec. 24, 28-20.

The Zurich Oil Company, operating on Sec. 18, 28-22, in the Belridge field, is fishing for an overshot at a depth of 2787 feet, where the six-and-one-quarter-inch casing was set.

New Mexico Oil Gusher Starts Rush in Texas

ARTESIA (N. M.) July 1. (Exclusive)—With the new well of the Midwest Refining Company, situated in Lea county, New Mexico, just over the line from Texas, producing oil at the rate of 2000 barrels daily, the opening of a new oil field is regarded as a fact by oil men.

The well is upon the "cap rock," known as the South Plains. The surface altitude is approximately 3200 feet. It is situated twenty-five miles north of the Gibson-Johnston-Leck producer in the extreme northern part of Winkler county, Texas, and about thirty miles west of Seminole.

As a result of the discovery, oil operators and speculators are making a wild rush to obtain leases and royalties in Gaines and Yoakum counties of Texas. Practically all of the land, most of which is held in large ranches, in these two counties has already been leased. Locations for many wells on the Texas side of the line have been made during the last few days.

Bolsa Company Completes Its Mutual No. 5

The Bolsa Chica Oil Corporation has completed its Mutual No. 5 well in the deep sands at Signal Hill, with bottom at 6511 feet. The flow is said to have gauged at the rate of 3000 barrels a day, with a cut of 10 per cent emulsion and 5 per cent mud. The cut is steadily declining as the well cleans up.

The well is producing more than 2,500,000 feet of wet gas with a gasoline content of 3.4 gallons to the 1000 cubic feet. Bolsa Chica Mutual No. 2, a shallow well, cleaned out redrilled, was put back on production Friday and is adding 200 barrels a day to the company's Signal Hill production.

WILDCAT LOCATION NOT YET SELECTED

MARICOPA, July 1. (Exclusive)—The Standard Oil Company is reported to be undecided whether or not to follow the findings and conclusions of the engineers operating its torsion balance in the San Emidio district, southeast of Maricopa, where it expects to drill a wildcat well. The tentative location for the hole which is to be drilled is on the northeast quarter of Sec. 35, 11-23.

BANNER GOLD AREA

Grass Valley Field Held Leader of California Fields

SACRAMENTO, July 1. (Exclusive)—With four large mines producing steadily, approximately twenty small properties and prospects under development, and more than 1100 men employed the Grass Valley district continues the most productive gold field of California.

Production started at Grass Valley in 1849, and the two largest operators, the Empire and North Star, are now raising profitable ore from depths exceeding 4000 vertical feet. The monthly gold yield is estimated to exceed $200,000.

OUTPUT BOOSTED

Compressor in Midway Project Brings Good Results

TAFT, July 1. (Exclusive)—With a compressor installed at its No. 29 well on Sec. 8, 32-23, in the Midway field, the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company has developed a good producer.

There was not sufficient gas to make the oil flow enough so a compressor was added and the well is now doing about 892 barrels daily with the tubing at 1000 feet. When the tubing was lowered another 1000 feet the well produced about 1345 barrels daily.

NEW COMPANY IN OIL FIELDS

Dollar Corporation Formed Recently in Los Angeles

Organized for Developing and Exploring Purposes

Wells Acquired in Kern and San Luis Obispo Area

The Dollar Oil Company has just been organized in Los Angeles as a development and exploration organization. It is a closed corporation and fully financed. It was incorporated for $5,000,000, with shares of $1 par value.

The officers are: F. B. Mathews, president; George D. Blair, vice-president, and Morris Berman, secretary-treasurer.

It has acquired approximately 15,000 acres in the Midway fields of Kern and San Luis Obispo counties, where, in conjunction with the World Petroleum Corporation, it will drill three wells to test the area under lease.

F. B. MATHEWS

The Dollar Oil Company is acquiring the interest of Richie & Butler on Sec. 6, Township 32 south, Range 22 east, with a well down 918 feet. It is likewise over the Hovey Hills Oil Association well on Sec. 18, Township 31 south, Range 22 east.

This property has a well down 2690 feet, with strong showings of gas and oil. It is the intention of the management to drill both of these wells as a test of the lower formation where there is a possibility of picking up the oil sands that outcrop to the west of the properties.

MORRIS BERMAN

Most of the land held by Dollar and World in this region is government permit stuff. The companies are checker-boarding the holdings in such a way that if either gets good production the other will be "in the money" as far as proved land is concerned.

The World Petroleum Corporation is starting a well on Sec. 13, Township 32 south, Range 22 east, which will test the southern end of the holdings in the Fellows district. This site is located on what appears to be a perfect geological anticline, with outcroping oil sands to the west, and the producing wells of the Republic Petroleum Corporation and the Chanslor-Canfield Midway Oil Company to the east. To the south, on Sec. 27, the Union Oil Company is starting a well on a 640-acre lease.

Three New Poso Creek Wells on Berry Oil Slate

BAKERSFIELD, July 1. (Exclusive)—Planning to begin drilling within sixty days, the Berry Oil Company is moving materials to three leases in the Poso Creek district. The company has already started rigging up at its No. 1 location. It has 160 acres on Sec. 11 and 240 acres on Sec. 15, 27-28.

The Petroleum Securities Company has cemented the ten-inch string at 1637 feet in its Glide No. 1 on Sec. 15 and has moved the drilling crew onto Rench No. 1 on Sec. 22, where a test of the Jewett zone, above the Vedder zone, will be made.

An agreement has been reached with the Signal Gasoline Company, whereby objections to the location of the Rench No. 1 location 150 feet from the line, have been withdrawn, it was announced this week. R. S. Lytle has taken out a drilling permit for his No. 1 well on Sec. 26, east of the Signal operations.

PROJECT AT EDISON STANDING PLUGGED

EDISON, July 1. (Exclusive)—The General Petroleum Corporation has its Kerwin No. 1 well at Edison standing plugged at 3944 feet. The bottom of the hole is 6026 feet. In the same area the Midway Northern Oil Company's Brown No. 1 well on Sec. 29, 29-30, is in green shale with the bottom of the hole at 3537 feet.

ANXIETY IN MINE FIELD OF ARIZONA

Clemenceau Fears Loss of Ores Through United Verde Extension Sale

JEROME (Ariz.) July 1. (Exclusive)—Apprehension over the possible results of absorption of United Verde Extension by the Newmont Mining Company now especially concerns the future Clemenceau, the smelter town in Verde Valley, established by the Extension and named by President J. S. Douglas after his French war-time associate. Materially affected also would be the adjacent town of Cottonwood.

There is fear that Extension ores in the future may be handled in the United Verde reverberatories at Clarkdale, with benefit to both interests, as the chalcocite of the Extension might have fluxing value for the United Verde chalcopyrites. The Clarkdale smelter has ample capacity for the ores that might be added, with several furnaces now idle, while its reduction costs are stated to be somewhat below, per ton, those of its smaller neighbor.

The Extension tunnel would be of large value to United Verde.

It is pointed out that several United Verde executives are connected with the Newmont. Fred J. Searles, Jr., vice-president of the Newmont, has been at the head of a close inspection of the Extension mines and works and will report before a meeting at New York on the 6th inst., at which the option will be taken up or released. He states that it is "entirely problematical" whether the deal will be completed or not. According to him, any change in operations would be gradual and not immediate.

WILDCAT FIELDS BUSY IN MEXICO

Rainy Season Will Slow Up Drilling Operations

Many Wells Being Sunk Last Month in New Regions

Total of 286 Permits Granted During Year

MONTEREY (Mex.) July 1. (Exclusive)—In a review of oil operations in Mexico for the thirty-day period ending June 10, the Bureau of Petroleum of the Mexican government points out that there is unusual activity in wildcat territory. It is stated that the rainy season, which started in June, will cause a general slowing down of operation.

"Early in June there were forty-two wells drilling in the north of the State of Vera Cruz and the south of Tamaulipas, one in the north of Coahuila, twelve in the Isthmus region and two in the center of Tabasco," the report says.

"These wells correspond to the fields of Tancasneque, Altamira, Chocoy, Corcovado, Chapopote, Salinas, Chapacao, El Limon, Cacalilao, Panuco, Paciencia and Tamboyoche in the region tributary to Tampico; San Geronimo, Chinampa, Zacamixtle, Tierra Amarilla, Alamo, Jardin, Castillo de Teayo, Mecatepec and Furbero in the Tuxpam region; Villa Acuna on the northern frontier of Mexico; San Jose, Acalapa, Filisola and Tecuanapa in the Isthmus of Tehuantepec region and Belem in the center of Tabasco.

"Many of the activities now being carried out will suffer considerably during the rainy season which has just started. The roads in these districts, which are all lowlands, become very difficult, if not impassable, and many of the fields become completely flooded.

"For the drilling of new wells, there have been granted during the present year up to June 10, a total of 286 permits, these corresponding to January, thirty-six; to February, sixty-nine; to March, forty-one; to April, forty-nine; to May, sixty-five, and twenty-six to the first ten days of June. As a result of activities in the petroleum fields, there were brought in during the month elapsed from May 11 to June 10 of this year, nineteen wells with a joint producing capacity of 8382 barrels a day."

ANGELENO LEAD MINE DEVELOPS

Officers Report Good Progress of Work on Nevada Property

Nevada Lead Company of Los Angeles, A. G. Robinson general manager, and O. L. Wilson, secretary, is reported to be making good progress in the development of its property in the Jack Rabbit district, sixteen miles north of Pioche, Nev., and adjoining the property of the Bristol Silver Mines Company, now in an advanced stage of development, and which is regularly productive of large tonnage of good shipping ore.

For nearly five years the Nevada Lead Company has been engaged in the development and exploration of its property, chiefly through laterals sent out from the 600-foot level of its working shaft. From that horizon a 1500-foot cross-cut has been driven to get under No. 4 ledge, outcropping so prominently on the surface. From this crosscut a drift is being run to the south on the vein to make connection with a known ore shoot carrying good silver values and a heavy lead content.

From the 600-foot level a drift has been run a distance of 1200 feet, southerly, on the vein. This drift, as reported by Manager Robinson, has passed through eighty feet of disseminated ore, revealing a gobd showing of galena with each round of shots. This drift is following a small body of milling ore, and is being driven under the main surface cropping of No. 2 vein.

O'DONNELL ABANDONS GREENFIELD PROJECT

GREENFIELD, July 1. (Exclusive) J. E. O'Donnell has abandoned his Houghton No. 1 well in the vicinity of Greenfield, on Sec. 31, 30-28. The well was drilled to a depth of 4090 feet and some showings of oil and gas were encountered.

GASOLINE AT TOP AMONG SHIPMENTS

Fuel Second on List and Crude in Third Position for Last Week

Bulk petroleum exports from Los Angeles Harbor last week totaled 2,401,046 barrels. Vacation gasoline headed the list with 921,498 barrels, the Atlantic seaboard demand calling for 466,525 barrels of it. Fuel oil was in second place with a movement of 773,293 barrels. Crude was in third position with 594,431 barrels.

The Pacific domestic trade called for 949,658 barrels, embracing 536,943 barrels of crude, 251,723 barrels of fuel and 160,993 barrels of gasoline. The Pacific foreign trade took 614,353 barrels, as follows: Crude, 97,420 barrels; fuel, 460,976 barrels; kerosene, 95,389 barrels; Diesel, 9079 barrels; gasoline, 44,964 barrels; batching oil, 7325 barrels.

The Atlantic domestic trade took 466,525 barrels of gasoline. The Atlantic foreign trade called for 370,510 barrels, embracing 121,494 barrels of fuel and 249,016 barrels of gasoline.

Veteran Nevada Mine Operator Visits in City

A visitor in the city during the week was W. J. Tobin of Pioneer, Nev. Going to Nevada more than twenty years ago, Mr. Tobin bought and sold mining property during the Goldfield boom, making a fortune which he invested in mining properties in a new district north of the then celebrated district of Bullfrog. He named his venture "Pioneer." An active town soon grew up around his mines. Instead of leaving for more populous parts, Mr. Tobin built himself a fine residence in the heart of the desert, where with all the comforts of civilization, he still dwells.

Mr. Tobin reports much activity in many parts of Nevada, and expresses the belief that there soon will be a real revival of mining, on a permanent scale. The large properties are now being developed by men who understand the mining business.

Mine and Oil News From Far and Near

OUTPUT LOWER AT SIGNAL HILL

Seven New Wells Completed During Week

Production Shows Decline of 4000 Barrels

Situation Points to Further Drop in Flow

The completion of seven new wells, with a combined initial production of about 7300 barrels per day, did not prevent the Signal Hill field from showing a weekly decline of approximately 4000 barrels, and further confirmed the belief of oil men that the field has reached its peak, so far as deep sand production is concerned.

A survey of the field indicates a total production of about 301,000 barrels, compared with more than 305,000 barrels a week ago, with the deep zone producing approximately 137,000 barrels of that amount, against 141,000 the previous week.

It is interesting to note that most of the recent completions in the Long Beach field have been for initial rates of production much below the initial output of the average wells earlier in the development of the field, a decline in initial production, which the experts have been anticipating for months, but which has not been realized until the past two or three weeks. Another interesting development is the fact that most of the recent completions have shown a fairly high cut, although this phenomenon cannot, in most cases, be attributed to a common cause.

This combination of developments together with the fact that present drilling wells of the field are in such widely varying stages of activity that not more than three or four completions per week may be expected in the future, appears to indicate that the field is now definitely on the downgrade. The curve of decline is expected to be gradual for this reason, inasmuch as previous experience indicates that the decline per well is not high in comparison with the closely developed fields in other districts.

There are approximately fifty wells still drilling at Signal Hill which may be expected to go on production in the next three months but it is expected that these will serve only to arrest the general decline of production, without changing the direction of the curve. The total number of producing wells in the field is 705, with 148 producing from the deep sand.

YORBA LINDA FUTURE HAZY

Recent Developments Point to Possible End of New Production in Immediate Vicinity

The Yorba Linda area at Richfield which has been one of the most active districts adjacent to Fullerton during the past two years, because of deep zone drilling, and the bringing in of several outpost wells which proved up new territory, is now in more or less of a quandary as to what may next be expected.

For more than a year operators pecking away at the fringes of the field have succeeded in completing profitable wells, and in several cases wells which were considered quite unusual considering the area in which they were completed, with the result that each outpost has been followed by several neighboring projects, designed to still further extend the extension. Several of these projects have been successful, but in the past few weeks it has become apparent in certain sections that new development to be successful will have to be carried on in new territory.

More than a year ago the Continental Oil Company sprung a surprise in the Atwood district by bringing in a good well on the Pyne lease, which the Merchants' Petroleum Corporation had struggled with for several years without success. Following up this success, the Continental drilled another good well on the Pyne lease, and then branched out into new territory by acquiring the Mullen property, upon which it completed a 1000-barrel well one month ago.

The Signal Syndicate, financed by Long Beach interests, including the drilling combination of Featherstone & Preston, drilled a well on the Francis lease, about 100 yards from the Mullen No. 1, and to everyone's surprise entirely missed the Mullen zone at 3700 feet, and had to go about 600 feet deeper to get production, which only amounted to approximately 150 barrels per day on the pump. Now the Signal is getting ready to do further work on its Francis well, in anticipation of getting more substantial production at a greater depth.

The Nugent Drilling Company, whose operations at Yorba Linda really antedated the Continental, completed one good well on its D. & B. lease, and followed this up with another fairly productive well, although neither of these projects compared with either the Pyne or Mullen wells in productivity. Nugent started a third well, and shortly afterward George W. Johnson started a well on the adjoining property.

A couple of weeks ago the Johnson well blew in, and was hailed by its neighbors as heralding a new area of activity, and plans were laid for the drilling of several wells on neighboring leases. But after the gasser was killed, and a water shut-off test properly finished, it was determined that the water had not been shut off, and the well is now being recemented.

OIL FIELDS RESUMPTION BRINGS JOY

Mexican Workers Rejoice Over End of Hostilities on Petroleum Laws

MEXICO CITY, July 1. (Exclusive)—Many oil workers in Mexico who have been without employment for several months of the virtual suspension of operations in the oil industry because of the dispute between the companies and the government are rejoicing now that the Mexican Sinclair Petroleum Company has resumed operations on a large scale. This concern is the first of the more important oil companies to resume work at full capacity following the adjustment of the oil-law difficulties.

Mexican Sinclair has increased its force of workers to a number which equals that which it employed prior to the start of the dispute over the application of the oil laws. This company is apparently endeavoring to make up the time it lost during the period of the suspension of activities. It has received from the government permits for drillings in many of its holdings and it has located more than twenty-five possible wells within a short time. It is said that drilling operations at these prospects will start within a short time.

The greatest activity of Mexican Sinclair at the present time is in the San Isidro de Temapache region in the State of Vera Cruz, where it is working ten wells simultaneously.

Ohio Acquires Tract for Base in Taft Section

TAFT, July 1. (Exclusive)—Planning the construction in the near future of an oil fields camp and headquarters and base for future operations in the Midway-Sunset fields, the Ohio Oil Company has purchased ninety-five acres on Sec. 23, 32-23, from B. F. Shepherd of Fresno.

The land obtained in the transaction was formerly the old Producers' Oil Guaranteed property and is located between Taft Heights and the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation's substation. Details as to the construction of the camp for the Ohio Oil Company are lacking, but it is learned on good authority that work is soon to be started. The purchase of the land represents the first property acquired by the Ohio in the Twenty-five Hill district.

WILDCAT PROJECTED

McKittrick Tract Taken Over Oil Exploration

TAFT, July 1. (Exclusive)—Keefe-Morrison, Inc., has acquired the south half of Sec. 10, 30-22, near McKittrick, from H. J. Leutholtz and is planning to drill a test well to determine the oil-bearing possibilities of the land.

Keefe-Morrison has a large acreage in the district, which is about a mile and a half from McKittrick, in the west end of the Elk Hills, and has brought in a number of gas wells on practically the same structure.

Tunnel Driving at Old Colony Being Pushed

KINGMAN (Ariz.) July 1. (Exclusive)—Work is being pushed with all possible speed in the tunnels of the Old Colony Mines at Stockton Hill, with the lowest repaired for more than 1000 feet of length. Plans are being made for installation of air-power mucking shovels.

In the same section, the Alpha group will be shipping ore as soon as a road can be repaired to the Chloride branch of the Santa Fe system. The mines now are owned by a New York syndicate, headed by James A. Brook and locally represented by H. L. Phillips.

High-grade ore is coming from the 300-foot level of the Diana mine of the Magma Company, which also is shipping from the George Washington Extension at Mineral Park. On the 500-foot level of the Dardanelles at 150 feet from the shaft, there is expectation of striking the vein soon, down below the oxidized zone. Early operation is to be known of the Payroll mill, which is being put into condition by Smily Jones.

P. M. Woods of Los Angeles is reported to have purchased the William Cook property in the Weaver district. The group has been put in charge of J. W. Mullin, a well-known mining man.

PHYSICAL PROPERTIES: This issue will be secured by a first mortgage and deed of trust upon approximately 600 acres of land located near Phoenix, Arizona, and upon a modern fire-proof hotel with cottages, and other improvements, to be erected thereon. As additional security a chattel mortgage on all equipment appurtenant to this project will be deposited with the Trustee. The land has been appraised as of the completion of the development, by the Real Estate Board of Phoenix, at $2,250 per acre, and by the Bank of Arizona at $2,200 per acre, giving the land alone a value of $1,320,000. Adding to this figure construction and other improvement costs, the entire development will have a value in excess of $2,700,000 making this approximately a 37% loan.

LOCATION: The property is in the heart of the Salt River Valley, seven miles from the center of Phoenix. It is in the center of a highly developed agricultural region with a population estimated at 240,000. This district produced $23,900,000 in agricultural products during the last year and is served by the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe and Southern Pacific Railroads.

BILTMORE GROUP: On completion, the Arizona Biltmore will constitute the eighteenth unit of the Biltmore Group. Among the best-known of these hotels are the Biltmore, Commodore and Belmont, New York City; Los Angeles Biltmore, Los Angeles; Miami Biltmore, Miami, Florida; Du Pont Biltmore, Wilmington, Delaware; Sevilla Biltmore, Havana, Cuba, and Santa Barbara Biltmore, Santa Barbara, California.

EARNINGS: Net earnings from the hotel operation have been estimated by the management of the Los Angeles Biltmore at $314,750 per annum before interest charges, which is in excess of 4.5 times the maximum interest charges on this bond issue.

DEVELOPMENT: Of the 600 acres included in this property, 200 acres will be devoted to hotel grounds and golf-course. The balance of 400 acres is to be sold for residential sites. All contracts of sale resulting therefrom will be deposited with the Trustee as additional security for this bond issue. The trust indenture will provide that 66⅔ per cent of funds received from the sale of property will be used for bond retirement and in no case will property be released for less than $2,500 an acre. The minimum release price on this 400 acres alone will pay off the entire bond issue.

SIX-DAY POLICY NOW IN EFFECT

More Labor Needed Under New System

Oil Concerns May Add 1500 to Pay Rolls

Ventura Fields and Signal Hill Active

Beginning yesterday, most of the oil companies in California put their well-drilling on a six-day-week basis. It has been estimated that the new system will add from 1200 to 1500 drillers to the pay rolls of the various companies.

At Ventura, where the Ventura-avenue and Seacliff fields are being developed, it has been estimated that 400 new drillers will be added to the community. The Signal Hill field will probably enjoy a considerable increase in population because of the large number of wells drilling there.

The six-day-week has been in effect in the Kern county oil fields for many years, principally because the wells are shallower than those of the Los Angeles basin, and can more conveniently be shut down for a day.

In Southern California fields the deep holes cannot be left standing idle, so the companies are going to give the fifteen men on each job a day off by adding three men to each crew, and having each man drop out one day a week.

This will keep the tools going in the hole constantly, and will enable the companies to have on the job at all times men who are thoroughly familiar with the progress of the well.

It is thought that the new system will not add more than 125 drillers to the present oil field population of Kern county. The Associated Oil Company has announced that under the new arrangement it will give employment to 230 additional drillers.

SEACLIFF OUTPUT TOLD

On June 25 the daily production of the Seacliff field was 4242 barrels. It is slightly higher than that today and was even higher ten days ago, but it has not yet reached the 5000-barrel mark.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY, CHEMISTRY

Qualitative analysis will be given in this department of The Times to correspondents on ores and minerals free of charge. Make each sample of an ounce or so in weight. Be sure to write a letter stating what tests are desired and give the approximate locality from which samples were taken. Do not pulverize the specimens. Give your name and address on paper wrapped with samples.

Chiefly Sulphides

BADIRAGUATO (Sin., Mex.) June 15.—Question: There being a new regulation on registered mail whereby the mineral samples are sent to you limits each package in weight to 300 grams, therefore I am sending four registered samples. The specimens come from the Mina Guajolotes and I trust your analyses will be pleasing in the discovery of some rare minerals. X.

Answer: Sample No. 1 carries pyrite, galenite, a low percentage of plumbic ochre and Sperrylite (platinum arsenide) is absent. No. 2 is on the order of No. 1, but there is some Cerussite, in addition. No. 3 is composed of sphalerite, pyrite, a little cerussite, galenite, and represents a base-metal ore known as Fahlerz (tetrahedrite variety,) but the gray copper ore variety is absent. No. 4 consists of quite a number of crushed specimens and is volcanic rock (Andesite?) This sample, like the other three, was subjected to microscopic tests and thorough qualitative analysis, without, it was pulverized and panned and no metal of value found. There is considerable error in the results (as by you given) on ores represented by the samples, not only by United States chemists, but also those of England. The results referred to being platinum in high percentage. The truth is that the specimens do not contain platinum. For gold and silver values you are politely referred to assayers.

Peru Samples

LOS ANGELES, June 15.—Q.: Would be very grateful to you if you could analyze the ten specimens sent to me from Peru, S. A. The sender feels certain that they contain gold telluride and iridium. E. C.

A.: No. 1 carries, in two of the samples, quarzitic rock and a low percentage of auriferous pyrite. The third chip of rock contains approximately 5 per cent copper. No. 2 is simply magnetic iron ore. No. 3 reacts for more or less iron, copper and iron sulphate. Nos. 4, 6, 7 and 12 carry auriferous pyrite in quartz. No. 13 is specular hematite, micaceous variety. No. 8 is iron-stained gypsum. No. 9 is iron-stained sedimentary matter reacting for sodium chloride, sodium sulphate and traces of sodium nitrate. No. 10 is on the order of No. 9. Iridium and tellurium, both absent. It is necessary for correspondents to send but one sample under each label number, and not three or more specimens of different varieties.

Hydrous Silicates

THERMAL, June 16. Q.: Please analyze and state what this sample is and if of any commercial value. I have a large ledge of it in Arizona. R. M. A.

A.: The specimen is hydrated silicate of alumina, magnesia and lime. Further on such rock quantitative analysis is called for.

Two Specimens

LOS ANGELES, June 16.—Q.: Samples taken from Lovejoy Butte, eighteen miles east of Lancaster. T. & D.

A.: The white sample is chiefly lime carbonate with a little magnesia, and is a variety of chalk. The large specimen is a cellular, altered, and burnt-up mixture of no commercial value.

Altered Rock

CASTIC, June 17.—Q.: I am sending you a sample of rock which was described to me as coming from a perfect fissure. What would you class this, and does it carry any gold? R.

A.: The sample is limonite partly altered to calcite. It reacts slightly for magnesium silicate and a low percentage of brown zinc ore. Free gold absent.

Fahlers

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—Q.: Inclosed find two rock specimens discovered in foothills four miles north of Sierra Madre at an elevation of 2200 feet. Is this complex ore, or just pyrite? R.

A.: The large sample is quartzitic rock carrying quite a percentage of pyrite with arsenopyrite; traces of chalcopyrite; zinc present in low percentage, and peacock iron in the mass. The pyrite in this specimen is mostly fresh, while some is altered. The other rock is on the order of the first described. Both specimens are of low-grade tetrahedrite, partly, and might give gold and silver returns by fire assay.

Hydrous Silicates

LOS ANGELES, June 17.—Q.: The sample is from Lower California. It looks like soapstone. Please classify. C.

A.: It reacts for aluminum-magnesium silicate; sodium chloride, traces, and pyrophyllite is more or less present.

Tremolite

LOS ANGELES, June 18.—Q.: The material crystallized in this sample is evidently an aluminum silicate deposited in some carbonate; probably limestone, because there is some carbonate reaction. K.

A.: The samples received in the shipment including yours were loose in the container and marked by postoffice people as "received in bad condition." Your specimen is not alunite, and it reacts but slightly for aluminum. Lime carbonate present.

Three Samples

SHERMAN, June 19.—Q.: Please alalyze these specimens. I think No. 1 is an aluminum silicate, Test No. 2 for copper and state what the black, scaly mineral is. Test No. 3 for iron. X.

A.: No. 1 is a columnar mineral—Zoisite. No. 2, copper traces; scaly matter is biotite and ripidolite. No. 3 is missing.

Two Specimens

LOS ANGELES, June 20.—Q.: Does the white rock contain asbestos; if so would it pay to mine it? The red rock is composed of what? Both samples from San Bernardino county, Cal. M.

A.: The whitish-yellow specimen is asbestiform tremolite, carrying some hydrous iron peroxide (limonite.) Such mineral, and also asbestiform actinolite, has but nominal commercial values, and it is probable that it would not pay mining costs. The reddish-black mineral is part of a magnetite kidney partly altered to hematite, and it represents a good grade of iron ore.

Free Gold Absent

LOS ANGELES, June 20.—Q.: Please analyze these samples obtained from Los Angeles county. B.

A.: No. 1 chips of sulphide ore are chiefly pyrite. Zinc and lead sparingly present. No. 2 is altered iron-apphibole; zinc traces; limonite present and "peacock iron" (iridescent) in the mass. Graphite found in low percentage. No. 3 is graphitic schist with potash mica (microscopic.) No. 4 hematite, limonite, and some graphite. One other No. 2 carries, more or less pyrite, limonite, and graphite. Rather doubtful ores—unless fire assays return gold or silver.

Silicate and Carbonate

LAS VEGAS (Nev.) June 21.—Q.: Under cover I am sending you two samples of rock. Would be under obligations to The Times if you will let me know what they contain. The white pulverulent matter comes from near Beatty. The pink is from near the Colorado River. What are the chemicals in this sample? Thanking you, etc. G.

A.: The pulverulent sample is a gritty clay—an altered volcanic ash. The reddish sample carries silica; hydrous aluminum and magnesium silicate; iron oxides; traces of iron carbonate (siderite,) and lime-magnesia carbonates in low percentages.

WILDCAT PACT RUMORED

The Associated Oil Company is reported to be entering into an arrangement to drill a wildcat well in the vicinity of Downey. It is said that details have not been completed and that the well may not be started for three months.

PLACER AT CARRVILLE PURCHASED

Holland Gold Diggings on Coffee Creek Taken by Seymour Company

SACRAMENTO, July 1. (Exclusive)—Purchase of the Holland placer mines on Coffee Creek, eighteen miles from the little mining town of Carrville in Trinity county, has been completed by the Seymour Placer Gold Mines Company, controlled by British Columbia and Southern California interests.

The group comprises four mines extending approximately four miles along the auriferous belt of the Carrville-Trinity Center field. The new owners state nearly a year will be required to place the extensive holdings in shape for heavy production. A self-shooter is being worked on a big deposit and is reported to be netting substantial profits.

Mining of the immense placer deposits of the Nash mine, near Weaverville, with steam shovels, is scheduled to start early this month. The property is jointly controlled by the MacNamara Crescent and MacNamara Mining companies, formerly working silver mines at Tonopah.

Following eight months of vigorous mining and installation of equipment costing $50,000, the Farnall Gold Mines Company is about to start production from its Gunflint mine in the Camp Creek field, twenty miles southeast of Placerville. The mine is in a deep canyon. The owners were forced to lower mine and mill equipment into the ravine by cables. The plant has a daily capacity of twenty-five tons.

KERN SHIPPING STORAGE OILS

Movement from Tank Farms Heaviest in Years

Pipe Lines of Two Concerns Operating Actively

Preparation for Production Boost in Fall Seen

BAKERSFIELD, July 1. (Exclusive)—Shipment of storage oil from Kern county tank farms is the heaviest for several years. The Associated and Standard pipe lines are handling between 40,000 and 50,000 barrels daily, according to field reports, the movement being to Port Costa and Point Richmond. The Union and Producers are also sending out heavy shipments through pipe lines to Port Harford and Coalinga. The Shell Company is shipping oil through an arrangement with the Union as to transportation from the Midway district to Coalinga.

Associated and Standard are shipping storage oil from tank farms north of Bakersfield. Local oil men think that the emptying of storage is in preparation for heavy production in the fall.

Plans for construction of pipe lines into the Poso Creek and Round Mountain districts have not materialized, although for several months projects have been discussed. Both new fields, controlled largely by the Shell Company and Honolulu Consolidated, have considerable shut-in production awaiting transportation and more favorable marketing conditions.

In the older fields of Kern county the shut-down in oil production is rather complete, although reports from Taft are to the effect that pumping has been resumed on a number of leases.

NEW WELL STARTED

Standard Spuds in No. 27 On Elk Hills Holdings

BAKERSFIELD, July 1. (Exclusive)—The Standard Oil Company has spudded in its No. 27 well in the Elk Hills on Sec. 31, 30-28. This company recently resumed activities in the Elk Hills and plans quite an extensive program, it is asserted.

R. S. Lytle has entered the Poso Creek field and has supdded in his No. 1 well on Sec. 26, 27-28.

The Zier Oil Company is putting down a new well known as No. 28 in the Coalinga field on Sec. 1, 20-14.

MARKET FOR QUICKSILVER SPURS QUEST

Old Properties Being Revived and New Ones Widely Sought

BAKERSFIELD, July 1. (Exclusive)—Owing to the demand for quicksilver, prospectors in the West have been on the alert during the past several months for new deposits of cinnabar ore. In the coast range of mountains many of the old deposits, worked in the past have been the scene of resurveys, and in some localities the old workings are again being opened.

Kent Knowlton, secretary of the Randsburg Chamber of Mines, called attention six months ago to the demand for quicksilver, and in the Mojave Desert regions a number of prospects have been found but so far no reports have been received as to properties being capitalized. The old Cuddyback mine near Tehachapi, thirty-five miles east of Bakersfield, has however, been the scene of some activity. During the World War this property was profitably worked.

Associated with Tipton Mathews of Wasco and a group of investors, John Stockton is now engaged in opening an old quicksilver property in the coast range sixty miles northwest of Wasco.

"This property was worked in the early days," he stated, "and we are of the opinion after investigation that considerable values still remain to be taken out."

Investment Certificates

Secured by

More Than Three Times Their Value In Improved Residence Property

Without question, one of the soundest investment opportunities now available, offered at a most opportune time — when you are looking for the very best type of security for your July money. Combines the advantages of both short-time and permanent investments. Quickly convertible at full face value — non-callable for three years—no maturity date—interest paid by check, quarterly.

Unequaled Security

These Certificates should be considered as even better than high class bonds. They are preferred both as to principal and interest—no assessments of any kind can be made upon them by the Association issuing them—there is no stock liability to the holder — they are flexible yet rigidly secure.

The basic security for these Certificates is a first lien upon residence properties of a value three times that of the investment certificates resting upon them. They have a protection no other form of loan has. That is, the increased security offered by our system of lending compared with an ordinary mortgage, our loans being made upon the monthly payment plan.

Above all, the character and stability of the institutions offering these certificates is the best possible assurance of their safety. Averaging forty years of conscientious, reliable service to investors and borrower, meeting every obligation promptly when due.

A Liberal Yield Consistent With Absolute Safety

The income from these Certificates is substantially better than that from other forms of securities of equal safety. They will yield 5% —Net; that is, free from State, County and Municipal taxes. The interest is paid quarterly, by check. You may increase your return on the investment by allowing the interest to remain with us to be compounded semi-annually. The accumulated interest may be withdrawn at any time.

WITHDRAWAL PRIVILEGES are unusually liberal. All or part of the principal may be withdrawn at any time after six months with interest to date of withdrawal. These withdrawal privileges are absolutely free; there are no deductions of any kind.

PRACTICAL INSURANCE. Any losses from bad loans or other sources are absorbed by the Association. Neither your principal nor your interest will be affected. Your investment will be safeguarded and protected from every angle.

HOW ISSUED. These Certificates are issued in denominations of $100.00 or any multiple thereof. As a further convenience, money invested with us on or before July tenth will earn interest as of July first.

These certificates are now being issued by two of the oldest Building & Loan Associations in California. No other investment certificate can give you a greater degree of safety combined with such advantages and conveniences. Call or write for any further information you may desire.

THE JOHN M. C. MARBLE COMPANY

PARTICULARS OF ISSUE

These trust certificates represent an undivided interest in a number of carefully selected first mortgages or trust deeds which have been assigned to the Title Insurance and Trust Company of Los Angeles which acts as trustee for the certificate holders.

A majority of the mortgages or trust deeds thus assigned are so drawn that a certain proportion of the principal is paid into the trust at regular intervals. These payments as received must be used for the retirement of outstanding certificates either by purchase in the open market if obtainable, otherwise a sufficient amount of certificates must be called to absorb these payments.

In view of the fact that no security is released when a payment is made on a loan, it will be noted that there is a constantly increasing margin of security as to the particular loan on which the payment is made.

These deposited mortgages and trust deeds are carefully selected by The John M. C. Marble Company and they are supervised by us until paid. This supervision includes a constant check on all insurance policies, the payments of taxes as well as all of the other details necessary in handling real estate mortgages.

ADVANTAGES

We recommend these certificates very highly and would call attention to the following attractive features:

1. The certificates are secured by mortgages on a number of properties in scattered locations thus giving the holder a well diversified risk.

2. As to such loans as require partial payments to be made the investment is thoroughly protected against any depreciation of security, in fact the ratio between security and debt is constantly improved.

3. The fact that the certificates are retired through the action of the sinking fund created by partial payments should furnish a ready market in case it is desired to dispose of any of the certificates held.

4. These certificates furnish the investor with the security of well selected real estate first mortgages without the care and necessary detail that must be observed when the loans are made direct. Combined with this feature is the salability of a good sinking fund bond.

First (Closed) Mortgage Leasehold 6% Serial Coupon Gold Bonds

Dated: May 1, 1928 Maturities, Semiannual: 2½ to 15½ years

United States of America Federal Income Tax, not exceeding 2%, Paid

Trustee: Mr. Thomas A. Oakey, Vice President, S. W. Straus & Co.

Co-Trustee and Depositary: Straus Trust Company, Chicago.

Price: Par, to yield 6% in all maturities.

MORTGAGED PROPERTY: These bonds are secured by a direct closed first mortgage on the 99-year leasehold estate in the land and a 13-story and basement office and store building erected in 1924, of reinforced concrete, full fireproof construction, containing approximately 76,674 square feet of rentable office area and 9 stores.

It occupies the southeast corner of Eighth and Olive Streets, a strategic location in the Los Angeles downtown business district. The land, fronting approximately 168.6 feet on Eighth Street and 55 feet on Olive Street, is held under a ground lease dated November 30, 1912, and extending for 99 years.

VALUATION: The value of the leasehold estate in land and building is independently appraised at $1,506,361, by Mr. Herman Spitzel, appraisal engineer, Los Angeles. The amount of this bond issue, therefore, is less than 55% of the appraised value of the mortgaged security.

EARNINGS: An audit by Haskins & Sells, certified public accountants, shows that this property earned, for the year ended October 31, 1927, net revenue amounting to $157,995 available for the service of this bond issue, depreciation and Federal income tax. This is more than 3 times the greatest annual interest charge hereunder. The building is now approximately 100% occupied.

MORTGAGOR CORPORATION: These bonds are the direct obligation of Eighth and Olive Holding Co., Inc., of which the president is Mr. B. Platt, President of the Platt Music Company, and other stockholders are Mr. H. L. Zuckerman, Mr. Hyman Harrison and Mr. David Trattner. The title to the leasehold estate in the land and the building, and the validity of this bond issue and the trust deed securing the same are covered by a Bondholders' Policy of Title Insurance. ## SOUND 6% PROFITABLE INVESTMENT

CONSERVATIVE INDIVIDUALS who strive for or who have attained financial well-being wisely invest their money where it will earn the utmost consistent with Safety. It is generally desirable that the funds remain readily available for need.

By these wise ones the risks of gambling and speculation are avoided. They seek sound INVESTMENT in which there is a "nicer relation between labor and reward"—in which chance is eliminated as nearly as possible—where there is less loss or waste if indeed there be less gain.

INVESTMENT surely and permanently creates new wealth and conserves that already established. The difference between speculation and investment is aptly illustrated by the fable of the hare and tortoise.

SULPHUR PLANT ADDITION PENDS

Humboldt Company Plans Output Increase

Large Tonnage Reported in Sight for Reduction

Golden Ace Orders Mill for Bull Moose Mine

TONOPAH (Nev.) July 1. (Exclusive)—The Humboldt Sulphur Company is increasing the capacity of its concentrating plant at Sulphur, in the Black Rock Desert, and preparing to approximately double the monthly yield. The management states about 1,500,000 tons of sulphur have been demonstrated, the material being of exceptional quality. The Ownership Mines, Mineral Hill and other companies are mining adjacent claims containing sulphur, cinnabar, silver and other minerals.

The Tonopah West End Consolidated Company reports that its production is now ranging from 700 to 1000 tons monthly, with ore of excellent grade being mined by leasers on the upper levels. The company is prosecuting development of the deeper levels with indifferent results. The shaft at the company's Mabel mine, near Mina, has been deepened to the 600-foot level, and drifting has been started on the ore body.

The Golden Ace Mining Company, controlled by F. E. Keeler, G. Ray Boggs and others, has placed orders for immediate delivery of a 100-ton mill to its Bull Moose gold mine at Carrara. The management reports that 12,000 tons of profitable ore are stored on the dumps, with a large tonnage exposed in the tunnel workings. Production is scheduled to start within ninety days. Considerable equipment is being moved to the property from the old Keane Wonder mine, overlooking Death Valley.

Steve J. Pappas, Nyala and Tonopah mine operator, has acquired the noted Gold Park mine, near Ione. Preparations are being made for commencement of extensive mining. The Gold Park is said to have produced nearly $1,000,000, and was long noted for its rich gold quartz. The old workings contain considerable ore, and exploration of new ground is to be undertaken.

Mine Activity of Wickenburg District Told

WICKENBURG (Ariz.) July 1. (Exclusive)—At Congress, the Sonora Development Company, E. L. Sweeney in charge, is milling about 200 tons a day of the old Congress dump, with reported profit.

P. M. Gaffey of San Pedro heads the Hawkeye Mining Company, which has bonded the Hosford placer claims, near Octave. Tests now are being made of the ground, with returns from the samples stated to be beyond expectations.

The United Vanadium Corporation, which has property near this city, is to resume operation soon of its fifty-ton mill. The enterprise is a Los Angeles one, headed by Herman Hertz, with C. L. Wilson as superintendent.

A test run has been made of the new mill of the Tindale Mining Company, George Koyk manager. The mill, of seventy-five-ton capacity, is equipped with concentration and flotation units, especially designed for the mine's silver-lead ores.

Main Company Plans Deepening of Wasco Well

WASCO, July 1. (Exclusive)—The Main Oil Company is rigging up preparatory to deepening its No. 2 well on Sec. 28, 27-24, near Wasco. The eight-and-one-quarter-inch casing is set at 4140 feet.

In the Semitropic area, west of Wasco, the Richfield Oil Company is rigging up for its No. 1 well on the Kerwin property. The location is on Sec. 21, 26-22.

South of Wasco and near Shafter the North American Royalties Company has its No. 1 wildcat well on Sec. 8, 28-25, standing cemented with the fifteen-and-one-half-inch casing set at 850 feet. The bottom of the hole is at 861 feet.

Four Concerns Now Active in Fruitvale Field

BAKERSFIELD, July 1. (Exclusive)—There are now four companies operating in the Fruitvale field. The Pacific Eastern Petroleum Company's No. 2 well is pumping and agitating about 238 barrels of oil a day. It tests 22 deg. gravity and cuts about 5 per cent water. The well was completed ten days ago at a depth of 3880 feet.

The Pacific Coast Oil Company has its rig up for its No. 1 well on Sec. 14, 29-27, the Shell company is rigging for its No. 1 on Sec. 9, 29-27, and the Superior Oil Company's No. 1 on the same section is in hard sand, drilling ahead at 3490 feet.

HOPE FOR PRODUCTION REGARDED AS DIMMER

McKITTRICK, July 1. (Exclusive)—The chances for the Ohio Oil Company to get a producer on Sec. 8, 30-22, in its Morrison No. 1 well near McKittrick, appear to lessen as the drill goes deeper. The drill has passed 3410 feet and continues in sand and shale with no appreciable showings.

POST HOLE STARTED

The Standard Oil Company has started its eighth post-hole test well in the Saticoy district. The new well will be known as Saticoy Citrus No. 4 and will be located between Saticoy Citrus No. 3 and the Sydder No. 1.

OUTPUT OF VANADIUM MINE SOLD

Contract Reported With German Concern by Chief of Wickenburg Estate

Herman Hertz of this city, general manager of the United Vanadium Corporation, operating near Wickenburg, Ariz., returning from New York, reports that he has contracted with a big German steel-manufacturing company for his company's entire output of vanadium concentrates, shipments to be made from Los Angeles Harbor.

In addition, Mr. Hertz says, his company has been financed through a New York house, and mine development and ore production are being inaugurated upon a much larger scale than heretofore. At the company's property, he reports, a large new ore body has been developed during the last few months. This is four and one-half feet wide and has been developed a distance of 600 feet on the strike of the ledge. This ore, according to assay tests, has an average vanadium content of 2 per cent.

C. L. Wilson, mine superintendent, writes that he has found an abandoned 200-foot shaft on Claim No. 7. It is well timbered, and on the forty-foot level three and one-half feet of ore assays $95 in free-milling gold to the ton after sorting out all quartz showing native gold. Assays of the entire mass, Wilson says, would probably disclose much higher values.

Mr. Hertz leaves for the mine this week to arrange for smelter treatment of the gold ore, of which there is said to be a considerable tonnage in sight. The fifty-ton milling plant on the ground will soon be in regular commission turning out a high-grade vanadium concentrate.

Mexico Holds First Rank in Silver Output

MEXICO CITY, July 1. (Exclusive)—Mexico was the leading country in the world as a producer of silver during the year 1926, it is shown by revised official figures compiled by the bureau of mines, Department of Finance, that have just been made public. During 1926 Mexico produced 3,057,269 kilograms or almost 9,500,000 pounds of silver, the figures show. That was 39.21 per cent of the world's silver production for that year.

Second place in silver production for 1926 was held by the United States, which produced a total of 1,894,732 kilograms or 24.30 per cent. Canada was third. The Canadian silver mines turned out 697,812 kilograms. Peru held fourth place with a total of 656,273 kilograms.

Other producers of silver during 1926, the report shows, were the other countries of the Americas with a total of 393,329 kilograms, Asia with 366,767 kilograms, Europe with 352,701 kilograms, Oceania with 342,701 and Africa with 35,340 kilograms.

NOTICIAS MUNDIALES DE ULTIMA HORA

Las Elecciones en Méjico. Obregón Escogido. Todo Pasó Tranquilamente. Fueron Electos los Diputados y Senadores al Propio Tiempo que el Unico Candidato para Presidente

CIUDAD DE MEJICO, 1 de Julio.—El General Alvaro Obregón fué electo Presidente de la República en el día de hoy. Los ciudadanos fueron a los comicios en toda la nación y depositaron sus votos en las urnas, para elegir al primer mandatario y una parte de los senadores y diputados, sin que se registrara ningún desorden.

Puede decirse que ha sido la votación más ordenada que ha tenido Méjico en muchos años, no sólo en esta ciudad, sino en todos los Estados. Sólo hubo algunas riñas a puñetazos y ligeras alteraciones de la tranquilidad pública, pero sin importancia. El Ministerio de Gobernación hizo público que había recibido informes del interior de la república, en que se afirmaba que las elecciones habían tenido lugar con toda felicidad.

La Ciudad en Perfecta Calma

La ciudad está en perfecta calma. Sin embargo no presenta su aspecto dominguero acostumbrado, pues muchas familias probablemente han preferido permanecer en sus respectivas casas, en previsión de los des órdenes que pudieron acontecer.

El acontecimiento más saliente del día fué la manifestación de los agraristas y muchas sociedades obreras adictas a Obregón, que desfilaron por las calles principales en coches descubiertos y en camiones. Durante su marcha por las calles no cesaron de gritar vivas al candidato, así como de expresar en todos los tonos que lo apoyarán incondicionalmente. Se oyeron muchos mueras dirigidos a aquellos que aparentemente le han negado apoyo para que triunfara.

En las oficinas centrales de la campaña pro-Obregón se dijo que cuando se dé por terminada la votación esta tarde a las cinco, habrá en las urnas más de 1,000,000 de votos a favor del general.

El Presidente Ejerció su Derecho a Votar

A las 11 de la mañana el Presidente de la República, General Don Plutarco Elías Calles, se presentó acompañado únicamente por su chauffeur a una de las casillas electorales cercana a la residencia oficial del Castillo de Chapultepec. Con toda sencillez, Calles depositó su boleta en la urna siendo imitado por el dicho chauffeur.

Las casillas electorales estaban protegidas por escuadrones de soldados estacionados en cada una de las esquinas de las manzanas respectivas a la ubicación de las casillas. Numerosos soldados andaban recorriendo las calles en camiones listos para atender cualquier emergencia.

La mayoría de los votantes se apresuraron a votar en las primeras horas de apertura de las casillas electorales, habiéndose notado ya desde el medio día muy pocos concurrentes.

Los votantes llegaban con sus boletas, cumplían los requisitos de rigor, depositaban su voto y se retiraban, sin comentarios y a toda prisa.

En Méjico Dominó Hoy la Ley Seca

La Ciudad de Méjico y todo el país estuvo hoy en completo estado seco. Todas las cantinas permanecieron cerradas. Fué prácticamente imposible adquirir bebidas hasta en clubes privados. Los habituados a tomar bebidas con los alimentos se lamentaron de no poder obtener ni vino ni cerveza en los restaurantes. Los informes de la policía indican que no hubo como de costumbre borrachos de fin de semana. Más interés se notó el día de hoy en la fiesta de la corrida de toros que en las elecciones. Es que la falta de candidato opuesto a Obregón hizo estas elecciones carecer de toda importancia política.

Los rumores que habían venido circulando de que los elementos laboristas no adictos a Obregón iban a manifestar su desagrado hoy en una forma material, fracasaron en absoluto.

Angeleno Group Organizes New Mine Company

Announcement is made that El Fuerte Mining Company of Los Angeles has been incorporated under the laws of Delaware, with a capitalization of 10,000,000 shares of a par value of $1 each, for the purpose of taking over and consolidating the holdings of El Fuerte M. & S. Company, Choix Consolidated Mining Company, and Los Platanos Mining Company into one ownership and under one control.

The officers and directors of the new corporation are: A. M. McDermott, president and general manager; John Kittler, vice-president; J. R. Thomas, secretary and treasurer; H. J. Forgy, attorney; L. C. Heller, H. W. Lewis, C. A. Miller, A. J. McDermott and J. B. Johnson.

Under the terms of the merger the new company owns nineteen titled and productive mines, a 500-acre townsite and buildings, and a 125-ton daily capacity blast furnace. Stored at the smelter, on mine dumps and in underground mine workings of the various properties it is estimated by measurement that there are in excess of 100,000 tons of ore available for handling for smelter treatment or for the open market, and much larger tonnage, in the mines, of possible and probable ore-carrying values in silver, copper, gold, lead and zinc.

SHALLOW OIL DISCOVERY

THREE FORKS (Mont.) July 1. (Exclusive)—Oil was found on the benchland ranch of Bob and S. Norman, east of North Boulder Valley, by the brothers, who were sinking a well. They drilled into a pocket of crude oil at about 100 feet and brought samples to the offices of the drilling company near Townsend. Analysis showed that the commercial value of the oil was very low, as the volatile elements had been lost by evaporation.

TOM REED MINE GETS RICH FIND

Aztec Vein Struck from New Black Eagle Shaft

New Development Viewed as Highly Important

Outlook Reported Better at Oatman Eastern

OATMAN (Ariz.) July 1. (Exclusive)—Tom Reed appears to have been returned to the bonanza classification. On the 800-level from the new Black Eagle shaft, at the end of a 225-foot cross-cut, has been encountered the Aztec vein, at a point 510 feet west of the ore body already developed on the 700-level and with demonstration of at least 790 feet of continuity. This is the longest ore shoot ever known in the district.

At least eight feet of the vein at the new strike is of milling grade, with a mineralized face at least eighteen feet wide. The stuff is oxidized and free milling. Supt. Jack Shanks has started active drifting eastward toward the present Aztec development. He also is clearing the shaft of water that was struck at 900 feet and will sink to 1000 feet, thence to cross-cut again to the Aztec vein. There also is to be exploration of a good stringer of ore along which came the water flow on the 900-foot level.

There is probability of early production from the new ore district, though need of pushing the drift through to the older stopes may hold this up for a while.

At present the Tom Reed mill is operating intermittently on ores that mainly come from leases on the company's estate. Thirty-dollar ore is coming from the Eyester and James lease on the Ben Harrison, from which Gavin & Gillan also are shipping, while good ore is being taken by the Phelan Brothers through the Bald Eagle shaft from a nine-foot face at 206-foot depth.

Oatman Eastern is reported looking much better with the east drift on the 500-level passing out of broken ground into a compact formation that shows much free gold. The faulted zone appears to have been left behind. Ore is wider than the face of the drift and lies below a clean andesite wall.

Sunnyside has been exploring for several weeks. From the 535-level, a winze has been sunk 200 feet and a raise cut sixty-seven feet in the ore. In the same section has been prospecting of a number of stringers. In one working conditions for a strike are considered favorable, in very soft ground.

LEASE MADE ON SEACLIFF EDGE

The Petroleum Exploration Company, which is one of the Doheny interests, has leased from the Hickey Brothers the point of Muscle Rock, several thousand feet up the shore line from Seacliff, and is installing there an electrically driven rotary outfit, which will use Doheny-Stone Drilling Company equipment.

This is the second one of these outfits that has been put into service in Southern California. The other is working on Doheny's Orton lease on the south flank of the Ventura-avenue field. The Hickey lease at Muscle Rock embraces the point of land where the beach houses stand, right at the turn of the State highway. The land lies between the State highway and the surf. It is believed to be on an extension of the Seacliff anticline.

Several other companies are drilling at Muscle Rock, but they are working on leases that lie on the high embankment on the east side of the highway. The General Petroleum Corporation has its Oland No. 1 down 2023 feet and has found nothing. The Wilshire Oil Company is down about 2000 feet in its Hickey No. 1, while the Italo-American Petroleum Corporation is down 255 feet in its Italo-American No. 1.

The prevailing impression among geologists is that the oil sand at Muscle Rock, if there is one there, should be picked up a trifle shallower than it has been found in the Seacliff field.

Gas Prospects in Salinas Area Declared Good

BAKERSFIELD, July 1. (Exclusive)—T. A. Piper of Oakland, pioneer driller in the Poso Creek district, was a visitor to the new field a few days ago and expressed much enthusiasm over the activity in drilling. Mr. Piper has been engaged in wildcatting on a 4000-acre tract near Salinas. Good gas showings were encountered at less than 1000 feet he states, and plans are being considered for the development of a commercial gas supply for the northern district.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company is building a sixteen-inch gas line from San Francisco to San Jose and this may be connected with the Salinas gas field, stated Piper.

Pacific Eastern Test Reported in Better Sand

BAKERSFIELD, July 1. (Exclusive)—It was a lucky move when the Pacific Eastern Petroleum Company began deepening its No. 3 wll in the Union-avenue tract south of Bakersfield, according to officials of the company. At the present depth of 3990 feet the best-looking oil sand yet found in the well has bn ncountrd.

Th operations of the Superior Oil Company on Sec. 9, north of the Fruitvale discovery wells, have reached an interesting stage. During the week a dmand aros for oil royaltis in the vicinity of the Superior test, and some leasing deals have taken place in the area to the north of the well.

Th Shell Company has supdded in its No. 1 well on Sec. 6, 29-27, and the Standard Oil Company has another interesting test started on Sec. 18, east of Oildale.

OUTPOST WELL INTERESTS

Foster Project of M.K.T. Company in Ventura Avenue Field Attracts Operators

Operators continue to regard with a great deal of interest the progress that is being made in the Foster No. 1 well of the M. K. T. Oil Company which is being drilled as a southern outpost of the Ventura-avenue field. This well developed some oil and considerable gas in what was classified as the equivalent of the intermediate zone in the main part of the field, but had so much water trouble that the company decided to go deeper.

Within the last few days, at 5650 feet and below that point, the company has been taking cores of oil sand which show a good cut, and the formation is said to have considerable gas in it. The drillers expect to continue, and operators are now beginning to suspect that the well may prove to be a commercial producer. It has at least established the fact that there are two or three oil sands in an area where pioneer operators thought that no oil sands existed.

On the strength of the M. K. T. showings, the newly organized Avenue Oil Company is reported to have leased three different tracts lying south of the Foster property. It is reported that this company will begin drilling on one lease within thirty days.

The properties just leased are the W. P. Lincoln, W. H. Marriott and W. H. Francis ranches, comprising a total of twenty-four acres. The Lincoln and Marriott joint lease contains sixteen acres and the Francis lease eight acres. A derrick will at once be built on the Francis property. The owners of the land will be given one-sixth royalty on all oil, gas and gasoline developed. It is understood that substantial bonuses were paid to the land owners for the privilege of drilling.

The Avenue Oil Company was incorporated in Nevada, on June 23, last, the officers and directors being J. Y. Parker of Santa Barbara, president; R. M. Cook of Los Angeles, secretary, and T. W. Neet of Ventura, vice-president. Some of the stockholders are Sam W. Taylor of Bel-Air, Thomas A. Low and Dorothy Lauth of Los Angeles, R. O. Chippendale of San Francisco, Lewis D. Messing of Ojai and C. D. Corcoran, James F. Sexton, J. C. Dunn, Dr. R. W. Homer, H. V. Hammons, L. H. Poulson and J. P. McCarthy of Ventura. The company is incorporated for $500,000.

PARK OFFICIALS CONVENE TODAY

National Conference Slated to Begin Here

California Bond Issue Listed as Major Topic

STEPHEN T. MATHER

California's State-wide park plan and the proposed $6,000,000 State park bond issue will form two of the major topics to be brought to the attention of the National Conference on State Parks when the organization convenes here this morning for a two-day session of its eighth annual assembly in the Chamber of Commerce assembly hall.

Under the chairmanship of Stephen T. Mather, director of national parks, the convention will take up discussion of the forthcoming park bond issue election next November, and which park committees now will be passed to enable the state to take front rank in the field of public scenic and recreation grounds.

EASTMAN TO SPEAK

The session is scheduled to open at 9 a.m., and an address of welcome will be made by George L. Eastman, president of the Chamber of Commerce. He will be followed by General Manager Welsh of the Palisades Interstate Park, New York.

Every phase of national and State park development work will be gone into by the convention, which closes the first half of its conference in San Francisco last Tuesday.

Other speakers scheduled to appear on the program are Duncan McDuffie, chairman, California State Parks Council; R. P. McClellan, chairman of the County Board of Supervisors; Van M. Griffith, architect of Los Angeles City Park system, and Richard Lieber, director, Department of Conservation of Indiana.

MOTOR TRIP PLANNED

Tomorrow members of the convention will leave on a motor trip to Big Pines, where they will be served a mid-day barbecue and return by way of San Bernardino and San Gabriel Valley.

The organization has been the result, according to Chamber of Commerce officials, in the development of parks throughout the country, and has as its aim the co-ordination of efforts in the nation-wide State park movement.

AIR EXPRESS TAKES OVER ISLAND LINE

Regular Schedule Will Be Maintained to Catalina; New Planes Ordered

Operation of the San Pedro-Catalina service of the Pacific Marine Airways as a unit of Western Air Express, following recent merger of the two concerns, began yesterday. The regular schedule of flights daily to and from Catalina Island will be maintained for the present, it was announced by Earl A. Becon, general manager.

Pacific Marine Airways is the largest flying-boat concern of the Pacific Coast, having been in steady operation from the port to Catalina since 1922. The company has completed six years of operation without a single casualty, said Mr. Becon, while last year it carried 10 per cent of all passengers carried by commercial air lines in the United States.

The company now operates three Douglas navy-type flying boats, with two ships in reserve, but in the near future Fokker amphibian planes will be placed in operation, flying directly from the Western Airport in Los Angeles to Catalina, in addition to which service the San Pedro-Catalina line also will continue to operate. Franklin Young is chief pilot of the concern.

PROTESTS TO BE HEARD

Protests will be heard by the City Council today against the improvement of First street in the Boyle Heights district from North street to a point 1320 feet north of North

LITTLE CANADA SPRINGS UP

Dominion Day Celebrated With Picnic at Park; Good National Relations Stressed

A miniature Canada was set up in Sycamore Grove yesterday-day when thousands of Canadians gathered to celebrate the sixty-first anniversary of Dominion Day. The picnic was held under the auspices of the Canadian Society of Southern California and every Province in the Dominion was indicated by a marker mounted on a post, similar to the plan used at political conventions.

After all, it was pointed out by Col. A. G. Fonseca, president of the society and principal speaker, the line between Canada and the United States is a border line in name only. It has not been regarded by the people of either country as a frontier for more than a century, he said.

A. G. FONSECA

"Just as Canadians have honored and taken to themselves such great Americans as Van Horn, Shaughnesay and Thornton," Fonseca said, "so have the people of the United States bestowed honor and confidence upon the great Canadians, Hill, Schurman and Lane.

EACH HELPS OTHER

"The progress of the two countries has been along parallel lines. Each has contributed to the solution of the other's problems. The capital and labor of one country has been available for the development of the other. Men trained in the universities of the United States have come to Canada to give you the benefit of that training, just as men from the Canadian universities have cast in their lot with the people south of the border.

"Canada," he continued, "has sought the solution of its problems by one means, we south of the line by another, watching with keenest interest the measures taken by the homeland toward the solution of

HEARING ON PORT ISSUE TO BE SET

Commerce Commission Expected to Announce Date for Belt-Line Case

Date of the hearing by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the application for joint operation by the city and the railroads of the Harbor Belt Line Railway is expected to be set within a few days, according to Harbor officials. It is understood the hearing will be conducted jointly with one set by the State Railroad Commission.

The agreement between the Harbor Board and the lines, providing for equal representation on the Board of Control, will not be passed on at the hearings, it is understood. Actual operation and tariffs are the principal phases to be considered.

General Manager Cole of the Harbor Department has been delegated by the Harbor Commission to explain the details of the agreement between the Harbor Board and the railroads to the Federation of State Societies, which recently sent a communication to the Mayor asking a referendum on the proposed joint operation of the belt line. The Mayor sent the communication to the Harbor Board.

DROWSINESS KILLS DRIVER

Car Runs Over San Pedro Cliff When Pilot Dozes; Six Motorists Accused of Being Drunk

A few seconds of drowsiness as he sat behind the wheel of his car cost Clyde Quigley his life yesterday. He died at the San Pedro General Hospital from injuries received when he dozed and his car catapulted over a cliff near Summerland and Walker streets, San Pedro. His body is now at the C. H. Cleveland undertaking parlors in San Pedro. Quigley was pinned beneath his car and received a punctured lung, broken ribs, and a skull fracture. He was alone at the time.

Police Surgeons Saverein and Eshman were fighting last night to save the life of S. Fernandez, 27 years of age, and believed to live at 512½ South Clarence street, who was injured when his car turned over and crashed into a telephone pole at Third and Crown Hill street.

RECEIVES SKULL FRACTURE

Fernandez received a depressed fracture of the skull and many severe lacerations. He was operated upon immediately at the Georgia Street Hospital.

SIX ACCUSED OF DRINKING

His companion, Juan Ortez, 30, of 321 Stockton street, received minor bruises and cuts. He related that the car turned over when they sped around a corner.

Another whose life was almost added to the toll of those involved in traffic accidents over the week-end is Nick Mace, 52, of 561 Glendale Boulevard, who was struck at Sixth street and Westlake avenue by a motorcycle ridden by H. C. Childs of 150 North Avenue 61, a special-delivery messenger for the postoffice. Mace was taken to Georgia-street Hospital, where diagnosis of possible skull fracture was made. He is now at the General Hospital.

The police have booked six persons on charges of driving while under the influence of liquor. They are:

Lipscomb L. Sharpp, 30, a contractor of 1118 West Thirty-sixth street, who, police assert, drove into a parked car at First and Alvarado streets; Fred Langstaff, 22, truck driver of 46 Virginia Road, Pasadena, who was assertedly on the wrong side of the street; Harold E. Rickox, 36, druggist of 2103 Third avenue, who the report states, had a collision; Elmer Shilling, 38, salesman residing at 3468 Dayton ave-

PRESCRIPTION QUIZ ORDERED

Liquor-Law Enforcers May Move on Doctors

Wholesale Permit Sales Held Revealed

Physicians Farm Out Blanks, Declare Officials

Abuse of the privilege granted to doctors to issue prescriptions for whisky is scheduled for an intensive investigation, it is disclosed at the Federal Building preliminary to the hearing, set for today, of Eric Maas, accused of falsely obtaining prescriptions and depriving the government out of its right to regulate the issuance of liquor permits.

The investigation, which now is under way, and is to be taken before the Federal grand jury, is said to involve the affairs of numerous doctors who are asserted to have "farmed out" their prescriptions at a wholesale rate to be subsequently sold at whatever the market would bring.

CHECK ACCOUNTS

While Federal dry agents decline to discuss the inquiry, it is learned that the accounts of more than a score of doctors as to prescriptions are now under investigation. It is stated that the asserted fact that Maas was found with thirty-six such prescriptions in his possession and that later 200 were found in his apartments, indicates he was working in co-operation with doctors who simply "farmed out" their prescriptions, to be sold by an intermediary.

Maas is scheduled to appear for hearing today before United States Commissioner Head, but it is probable that the case will be continued because of the impending Federal grand jury investigation and the inquiries now being made by government secret service agents. Charles A. Richter is jointly accused with Maas. He is to appear for hearing on August 6.

WIDESPREAD INQUIRY

It is stated by Federal agents that the subterfuge of "farming out" the prescriptions for whisky, seemingly under authority of law, is the subject of a widespread investigation which may result in many doctors in Southern California losing their right to issue such prescriptions. It also is stated that these permits often are sold to wealthy persons at high figures because of the seeming security in the transportation of the whisky. Several dry agents are expected to report today on investigations made regarding the activities of more than a score of doctors.

CHANGES IN DAM TO BE PROTESTED

San Fernando Association Will Appear Today Before Board of Supervisors

Members of the San Fernando Valley Major Development Association, are scheduled to appear before the County Board of Supervisors at 11 a.m. today to protest proposed changes in the Pacoima Dam.

In a resolution adopted yesterday the valley organization of civic leaders makes certain charges including: That the construction of the tunnel in Pacoima Dam would be illegal as to expenditure; that changes in construction would be a menace to lives and property of persons within the area under the dam; that matters pertaining to the dam have been affected by politics and personalities.

Other charges include waste of public funds, lack of public confidence in the operation of the dam and in the general flood control policy, as a result of uncertainties and changes and that the dam as designed by Chief Flood Control Engineer Eaton is safe and simple and should not be changed.

A final clause in the resolution asks that engineers of recognized ability, not associated in any way with the controversy, be employed to investigate and report their conclusions in the matter of any changes proposed or impending.

CLEANING OF VACANT LOTS TO BE CONSIDERED

The City Council will this morning consider the ordinance authorizing the city to clean vacant lots in the Bronson-avenue and Fairfax-avenue weed district. The city has been divided into weed districts and the clearing of lots is now in progress. The city bills the property owners on their tax bills for the work done. This is the second year the city has done this work, the plan for which was originated and put through by Councilman Hall.

KEEPSAKE RING BRINGS BODY OF SON BACK TO HIS MOTHER

Years ago Mrs. Mary Asher gave her son, J. Lloyd Asher, a gold ring that she had worn herself for a long time.

"Wear it always, son," she admonished him. "Whatever happens, I know it will bring you back to me some day."

The ring brought Mrs. Asher's son back to her, it developed in Judge Stephens's court, when Attorney John Miller appeared, seeking letters of administration in the estate of J. Lloyd Asher.

On the night of March 19, Asher was swept away by the waters pouring over the wreckage of the St. Francis dam. For weeks his body was sought without success.

A few days ago a body was found half-buried. No one could identify it at first. A city employee chanced to see it. A ring caught his eye.

"That is Lloyd Asher," he exclaimed. "No one who ever knew him could fail to recognize his mother's ring."

And so the ring brought Mrs. Asher's son back to her. The estate consists of a $20,000 claim against the city for loss of life. Mrs. Asher lives at 314 1-2 East Fifth street.

CENTENARIAN LEADS IN SINGING

Pasadenan Wears His Years Lightly

Galusha Cole, 102 Years of Age

JUST to show that age, after all, is a matter of mind rather than years, Galusha M. Cole of Pasadena last night celebrated his 102nd birthday by singing "The Sword of Bunker Hill" at the First Methodist Church, Eighth and Hope streets. He also conducted the choir, using a silver-mounted baton which was presented to him a half-century ago by the Governor of Colorado. The baton is one of his most highly cherished possessions.

At the close of the service Mr. Cole was congratulated by Miss Birda Porter and other members of the chorus and congregation.

ARMORY TO BE SUBJECT AT DINNER

Officials and Citizens to Seek Adequate Housing for Naval Reservists

In an effort to retain the United States Naval and Marine Corps Reserve for Los Angeles, Representative Crail, Lieut.-Gov. Pitts, Mayor Cryer, Council President Bonelli, President Eastman of the Chamber of Commerce and several Supervisors and other officials and citizens will gather at the University Club tonight to discuss ways and means for solving the problem, it was announced yesterday at the Mayor's office.

"The Los Angeles reservists," said Capt. Pitt Scott, U.S.N., who will be the speaker of the evening, "are in danger of finding themselves without an armory in the near future unless the city and the county of Los Angeles provide adequate housing for them. At present the Los Angeles reservists have a garage for an armory, which costs them $300 a month—the highest rental paid for an armory anywhere in the United States."

It was pointed out by the Naval and Marine Corps Reserves organizations, which are to be the hosts at the dinner, that the major portion of the reserve appropriations for this district is being spent for rental when other districts use the major portion for training personnel.

Firemen Curb Oil Field Blaze

After fighting flames for more than an hour to prevent them from spreading to surrounding oil derricks and tanks, firemen last night curbed a $15,000 fire in an old oil field at the corner of Fourth and Carondelet streets.

Efforts on the part of fire officials to locate the owner of the destroyed derrick, tank and machinery were unavailing at a late hour. Origin of the blaze is unknown.

Rites Today for Mrs. Marshall

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah M. Marshall, who died at her home, 1312 West Thirty-first street, on Friday will be conducted today at 10:30 a.m. at the chapel of the Los Angeles Crematory.

MRS. SARAH M. MARSHALL

The body of the pioneer resident, who died at the age of 83, has been held at the funeral parlors of Ivy Overholtzer, 1719 South Flower street, who also has charge of the funeral arrangements. Mrs. Marshall had been a resident of Los Angeles since 1903, residing with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Murchison. Mr. Murchison is executive secretary to Mayor Cryer.

BIRDS HELP THE FRUIT CROP

Observations made have shown that the "budding" of fruit trees by purple finches has had no bad effect on their bearing, but might have been responsible for an increase in the yield of fruit.

ASSESSMENTS CONSIDERED

Assessments to pay for the completed work of improving Atwater avenue from Tyburn street to Glendale Boulevard will be considered by the City Council this morning.

'HIAWATHA' DRAWS THRONG

Colorful Indian Pageant-Drama Presented Before Large Assemblies at Eagle Rock

Under the sponsorship of many society and club leaders of Los Angeles, Hollywood, Pasadena, Beverly Hills, Eagle Rock and vicinity, the picturesque Indian pageant-drama "Hiawatha" had its opening performance yesterday afternoon in the Argus Gardens, Eagle Rock. Again in the evening another brilliant assembly gathered to view the colorful scenes threaded together with a musical accompaniment. A cast of young artists from various parts of the country, striking costumes and sylvan settings combined to make the occasion a striking one. The engagement is to run for one week, with evening performances at 8 o'clock and matinees next Wednesday, Saturday and Monday at 4 p.m.

The production, organized by Clara Nixon Bates, one of the founders of the Indianapolis Little Theater Society and the Indianapolis Theater Guild, enlisted the sympathies of such persons as Mrs. Carrie Jacobs Bond, Estelle Lawson Lindsey, Mrs. J. E. Argus, who provided the scene for the festivities; Charles Wakefield Cadman, Arthur Alexander, Sol Cohen, Mary Talbot Winchell, Mary S. Matthes, Mrs. Charles Butler, W. Scott Taylor, M. Millet, Dorothy Woods, Anna L. Johnson and numerous society women who have taken up various portions of the task of promoting the event.

Principals in the cast are Lester Horton of Indianapolis in the title role, with little Wallace Connally impersonating the Indian brave as a child; Donella Donaldson as Minnehaha, Dorothy Woods and Mary E. Flanner alternating as Nokomis, Marchal Millholland, formerly associated with Michael Mordkin and Adolf Bolm, as Gitcho, the Great Spirit; J. F. Durlin as the Arrow-maker, Ivor Boroloff as the Narrator who reads the lines, Wesley Daniels as Iagoo, Ted Van Antwerp, Jerome Andrews and others.

For the entertainment of underprivileged children, under the supervision of the various social agencies, numerous parties are to be in attendance during the engagement, with the following women pledging their hospitality:

YEAR'S LAPSE OF MEMORY ENDED

A. W. Moran's Mind Clears Suddenly During Walk

Victim of New York Hold-up Seeks Aid Here

Blow on Head by Bandits in June, 1927, Recalled

Declaring he had suffered a lapse of memory for more than a year as the consequence of being struck on the head by bandits in New York City a man describing himself as Alfred Wills Moran, son of Howard Moran, vice-president of the American Security and Trust Company of Washington, D. C., walked into Central Police Station yesterday morning and asked for assistance.

ALL HAPPENS SUDDENLY

Moran, neatly dressed and about 30 years of age, told Captain of Detectives Parsons that he regained his memory suddenly while walking through Pershing Square about 4 p.m., Saturday. After walking about during the night thinking of what he should do he finally decided, he said, to appeal to the police.

Moran stated that at about 9 p.m. on June 18, 1927, he was returning home from work at the Blair Company, Inc., 34 Broad street, New York City. As he passed Forty-third street near Eleventh avenue he was struck from behind and evidently robbed. That was the last he could remember, he said, until his mind cleared Saturday.

His home, the man declared, is at the corner of Central and Richfield avenues, Begota, N. J., where he has a wife and two children.

IDENTIFICATION COMPLETE

Advices received last night by William Ashe, United States secret-service agent here from headquarters in Washington, completed the identification of young Moran, and while corroborating his statements that he is the nephew of W. H. Moran, Chief of the United States Secret Service, and son of Howard Moran, Washington banker, failed to clear the mystery as to his arrival and residence in Los Angeles.

Young Moran served overseas during the World War and for a short time after his return suffered a nervous breakdown caused from shell-shock, according to Washington information. He was employed in New York, while his home was in New Jersey, and the authorities now believe that he was followed from his bank to the ferry in New York where he was beaten and robbed. Moran remembers drawing about $150 from his bank. Federal investigators reconstructing the story of the dazed man, think now that he shipped aboard a vessel bound for the Pacific Coast and made his way to California.

After a few days' rest here he will return to his home in New Jersey, it was announced last night.

UNCLE VERIFIES DISAPPEARANCE LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON, July 1. (AP)—W. H. Moran, chief of the Federal Secret Service, said tonight that his nephew, Alfred Wills Moran, son of Howard Moran, vice-president of the American Security and Trust Company, Washington, disappeared on June 18, 1927. Young Moran was at that time an employee of Blair & Co., New York, and lived in Bogota, N. J., where he has a wife and two children.

"The man reported to have communicated with Los Angeles police is either my nephew," Chief Moran said, "or he has some knowledge of the case."

Dud Cracker Injures Boy

Millions of inches of newspaper space have been devoted to telling the world that it is highly unsafe to punch Mr. Jack Dempsey, tickle a mule, argue with one's wife, or prowl around trying to find out why a firecracker does not go off.

In spite of that, they will do it—as witness Joe Moran, 18 years of age, who got too near a supposedly "dead" cracker at his home at 911 Maple street.

He was treated yesterday at the Georgia-street Hospital for powder burns about the hand, arm and face.

The Lancer

by Harry Carr

HOUSTON (Tex.) July 1.—By golly, you can't keep us California guys down.

They tried to drown One-Eye Connolly in the ship canal and the convention police threw him over the fence; but the night of the big noise he came walking triumphantly down the main aisle wearing two delegates' badges and defying Tammany Hall, the Lone Star flag of Texas, and all the cops.

SMALL TOWN STUFF

Houston made a gallant job of holding this convention; but there never ought to be another convention in a city under 300,000 population.

Also, never another time, a convention in a city where the climate resembles the stoke hole of a trans-Atlantic liner.

But for one fact, California should be the place where all the conventions are held. The handicap is the difference in time. The New York newspapers yell their heads off because the night session always ends too late to get the news into the papers.

WHY THEY BEHAVED

Only the power of hunger could ever have held this convention in check. It reminded me of nothing so vividly as a cage of chained tigers, snarling and cowering in the corners under the crack of the trainer's whip.

The chairman used a lash instead of a gavel. He had the Tammany dese and dose boys so under control that they ducked and shuddered at his slightest gesture; but the Alabama and Tennessee delegates maintained a good average of a fist fight per hour.

WHEN CHARM PERVADED

At no time did the Democratic convention rise to the real drama of the slender little Pocahontas from Rhode Island who, at Kansas City, seconded the nomination of her father, Senator Curtis. That was the most charming and appealing incident I have ever seen in any convention.

They made a deliberate effort at Houston to top that gag, as the movies say, by trotting out various heroines; but without success.

As a dramatic queen, ex-Gov. Nellie Taylor Ross proved to be so tedious and her speech was so bromidic that the convention virtually howled her down. If Nellie is the high point to which women in politics can attain, they had better repeal the Nineteenth Amendment.

WHEN NELLIE WAS QUEEN

Nellie tried to pull some movie queen stuff with an armful of roses and a tooth-advertisement smile; but these movie queen stunts are for young and beautiful movie queens.

HEROINES

The three or four women who really captivated the Democratic convention were a woman named Blair who made fiery and savage speeches about corrupt politics in her native city, Philadelphia; Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, because she carried off a difficult situation with poise and tact; Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, because she was so regal and beautiful, and Mrs. Al Smith, because she got such frank enjoyment out of her own appearance as the "first lady."

She was a good sport even when, on the night of the convention, two agitated Democrats insisted on climbing into the royal box and kissing her.

YOUNG LAUDS COLORED RACE

Governor Gives Talk at Shrine Auditorium

Mass Meeting Preceded by Large Parade

A. B. Spingorn of New York Principal Speaker

America, which prides itself on its true democracy, should be free from race and creed distinctions, Gov. Young declared, addressing nearly 7000 persons yesterday afternoon at the Shrine Auditorium. The occasion was a mass meeting held in conjunction with the nineteenth annual conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The meeting was preceded by a procession in which thousands of negroes, from all parts of the United States, participated.

Gov. Young was scheduled to deliver merely an address of welcome but, once under way, he launched into a spirited and eloquent speech in which he praised the colored race as one of America's greatest assets.

To deprive the negro of any rights or privileges given him by the Constitution of the United States, the Governor declared, is a great wrong. In conclusion, he said the association is doing a great humanitarian work from which the white race, as well as the colored, should derive great benefit.

PRINCIPAL SPEAKER

The principal address of the meeting was delivered by Arthur B. Spingarn, New York attorney and vice-president of the association, whose topic was "What is True Americanism?" In introducing Mr. Spingarn, Robert W. Bagnall, presiding officer, pointed out that the New Yorker for many years has devoted more than half his time to performing services for the negroes' cause without one penny of remuneration. When he rose to speak Spingarn received an ovation which lasted for several minutes.

"The acid test of American civilization and the democratic form of government," Springarn asserted, "is in their attitude toward and their treatment of the negro population. What is and should be the position of the least protected and the least advantaged group in a democracy?

INVITES COMPARISON

"Theoretically, everybody in America believes that all the people should have the equal protection of the law and equal opportunity for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. The time has come to take stock and see which of the organized groups in America that attempts to perpetuate these American ideals, has tried practically to bring about a condition where these ideals should be fulfilled.

"We invite a comparison of these self-styled patriotic groups which have recently set themselves up as arbiters of Americanism and have seen fit to find this organization wanting, with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Has any of these groups a constructive program which will bring about the safety of the individual, larger opportunity for education and training in true Americanism, the carrying out of the principles of the Constitution of the United States, the increase of the wealth of the submerged and the making of a richer life for all citizens?"

"KEYHOLE MEN"

The speaker also flayed the Keymen of America which, he recalled, was started to prevent sedition and keep down obstructionists during the war. It has now developed, he said, into the Keyhole Men of America, whose chief business is to suppress any freedom of thought. The Ku Klux Klan also was denounced as unworthy of a place in America.

A feature of the musical program which preceded the speeches was the rendition of Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus," by a mixed choir of 700 voices. The singers were selected from forty church choirs and Elmer Bartlett directed. Other numbers, including several negro spirituelles, were sung by Mayola Johnson Curl of San Diego and Mrs. Florence Cole-Talbert.

HE'LL STILL WAIT

Man Who Goes Twenty Years and Gets Divorce Won't Wed

"You'll have to wait a year before you can marry again," Judge Beecher reminded George Ranger after granting him a divorce from Ernestine McDougall Ranger.

"It's nice of you to think of that, Judge, but no one needs to worry about it," Ranger replied. "I've waited a good many years now, and another one will not cramp my style any."

The record of the case disclosed that Ranger had been deserted in 1908, and had waited twenty years before suing for a divorce.

BENEFIT FOR SANATORIUM SUCCESSFUL

Midnight Revue Receipts Estimated to be $25,000; Popular Artists Featured

Receipts at the midnight Revue, sponsored by the "Friends of the Los Angeles Sanitorium," which was given in the wee small hours yesterday at Warner Brothers Theater, were estimated at about $25,000. The affair was a great success both financially and in the entertainment provided, with Al Jolson, Fanny Brice, Milt Gross, Georgie Price, Carmel Myers, Harry Delf, Bennie Rubin, Lina Basquette, Eddie Bussell and various other stars of stage and screen taking part.

Jolson started the show off as master of ceremonies, introducing the various acts with clever humorous comment, telling a few stories and singing a group of songs. His vocal numbers included "Golden Gate," "Back in Your Own Backyard" and "Rockabye Baby, with a Southern Melody" an old favorite. In introducing Benny Rubin he caused a laugh by declaring that Rubin had gone into the real estate business and was doing great. "He bought a flower pot here, and has had it subdivided three times," Jolson said.

The "Good News" company, including Lester Cole, Margaret Breen, Max Fisher, Eddie Nelson, Peggy Hope and various others, presented numbers from that Sam Salvin show, including the "Varsity Drag." The three Brox sisters, Alexander Carr, the Japanese dancers and musicians from "Ken-Geki," Jimmy Savo and Joan Franza, Leon Ramon, the Larry Ceballos company, Joe Verdi, Shaw and Lee, Kramer and Boyle, Ward sisters, Kramer and Fields were others taking part in the program. Fannie Brice was a great hit in her "Sascha, the Passion of the Pasha" number, and Burt Wheeler was a favorite.

The house was crowded to capacity, many of those holding boxes being prominent in the social and professional world.

The Los Angeles Sanatorium is a Jewish institution for consumptive relief, and the benefit was a testimonial on the occasion of the fifteenth anniversary of its founding. It is located at Duarte, and is known as the Little City of Hope.

LIQUOR "PLANTING" CHARGED IN RAID

Contending that arresting officers had "planted" the liquor which they accused his client, Forrest Brady, of possessing, Attorney Clarence B. Conlin, launched an attack in Municipal Judge Ballard's court on asserted tactics of Los Angeles police in making liquor arrests in this city. Conlin declared that one of the officers had been drinking liquor and became violently ill during the raid on Brady's home at 1314 Hooper avenue. Police Officers Rudolph, Wood and Williams conducted the raid. Judge Ballard took the case under advisement until this morning.

JUDGE LINKED TO BRIDESMAID

Bailiff Springs Joke at Wedding, but Handcuffs Intended for Newly Wedded Pair Find Wrong Wrists and Then Jokester Discovers Keys Are Missing

Brides are a necessity at weddings, as is the groom and the official performing the ceremony, and keys are a desired companion with handcuffs, or so decrees Municipal Judge Ballard, who presides over Division Eight during the week, and on Sundays sometimes aids in weddings.

And the dec... is well taken, for the judge yesterday experienced all the thrills of a wedding and handcuffs without keys, as the story goes:

Ignatius Martens and Marie Valdez, residing on a ranch near Calabassas, were married yesterday and Judge Ballard said the words. Just as the ceremony was ended and the judge leaned down to congratulate the pair, L. Dinty Moore, bailiff of Division Eight, who made the journey to the wedding scene with Judge Ballard, decided to pull the joke of the party. He did.

He hastily slipped half of a pair of handcuffs on the wrist of the judge and attempted to slide the other half on the wrist of the bride. He missed and the nickel ring clicked shut on the wrist of the bridesmaid, Evelyn Del Rio. The bridesmaid and the judge enjoyed the joke as did all the other members of the wedding group and after the laughter and gayety subsided, and the dignity of the court was restored, he ordered the removal of the law bracelets. Bailiff Moore reached for the keys. He had none, they had been left at home—unintentionally of course.

It's just forty-five miles by auto from the scene of the marriage to the Hollywood police station, where the first set of handcuff keys could be obtained. Judge and bridesmaid drove the miles and were released, much to the amusement of the wedding party, the bailiff, and the Hollywood police force. But the court takes the case under advisement.

Today's Bible Text

For the commandment is a lamp; and the law is light; and reproofs of instruction are the way of life. Prov. vi:23

A STANDING ARMY
Mexico will reduce her standing army. There will also be chairs, so that they can sit down occasionally.

WORLD MARKETS
American gum is now exported to eighty different nations. We are at least giving the world something to chew on even if the peoples do not like to think about us.

THE CLEAN-UPS
During clean-up week in an eastern city the best job was done by a couple of masked bandits, who cleaned up $13,000 by working a bank and a jewelry store.

NO THIRD PARTY
The chances of there being a third party of serious proportions is mighty remote. Not a prospect of its doing business enough to disturb the line-up between the major organizations.

RIGHT OF VETO
The veto idea would be fine if it could be extended so that the householder could veto some of the objectional bills that are reported around the first of the month.

USES OF WATER
A prominent physician insists that water is by long odds the finest drink in the world. Folks who are drinking heavily of it will be glad to hear this expert opinion. How would it be to have a referendum?

MONEY MAGIC
Instigators of a massive motor merger were to derive the savory sum of $13,000,000 as their commission on the deal. This seems like a pleasant boon to be plucked out of the air. It beats shuffling rabbits out of a plug hat.

SOME ROMANCE LEFT
An eminent critic declares that opera is the last bulwark of romance. The world would hate to believe that this is true. If we must fall back on such artificial stuff for our romance, the world is worse off than we thought it was.

THE OLD STORY
With five probable candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Arizona the stage would seem to be set for another hook-up with Gov. Hunt. One stout man would beat him, but the mix-up of four casual candidates would let him slip by. The stars in their courses appear to be still fighting for George—although they might be in better business.

NOT RESPONSIBLE
Senator Couzens makes the plea in a slander suit brought against him that he remarks upon which the case is based were delivered in the United States Senate and, therefore, may not be questioned elsewhere. It seems that a Senator is not responsible for what he says—which will explain a lot of guff now being turned loose.

LADIES MUST BEHAVE
The queen of the London night clubs, who is also the mother-in-law of two English lords, has been sent to jail for a six-months' term for breaking the ordinances regulating clubs. In this country she would have a pull making her virtually immune from prosecution. At most she might have been fined—never imprisoned. The Britons take their laws rather seriously. Wonder what they would do with a Volstead Act?

WHO IS WHO?
Husband and wife are separated. The husband steals the letters he had written to the wife before their marriage. She has him pinched and also brings action for damages or recovery. What will the court do? After a man has written a letter does it belong to him or to the party addressed? Are the love letters of husband and wife community property or may they be held as the possession of the writer alone? If a wife gets a letter doesn't it belong to her? These are a few of the questions that come up in a local court. Maybe it will have to be left to Bill Taft.

THE SUPERVISORS
A majority of the Board of Supervisors is to be elected this fall. Because of the ease of candidacy at the primaries under the sponsorship system, and not because there is any general dissatisfaction with their records in office, all three of the incumbents, Supervisors Bean, Wright and McClellan, whose terms expire, will have opposition. It is unlikely that the administration of Los Angeles county will be improved by the replacement of any one of them, and it might easily be injured seriously.

All three are able and experienced, the latter being an especially valuable qualification for this particular office. The management of the affairs of so large, so wealthy and so diverasified a county in its interests and resources as Los Angeles county is a job of exceptional difficulty, not to be learned in a day or a week. No matter how brilliant, no matter how capable, a man might be, were he thrust into one of these supervisorial posts without experience he would be bound to make mistakes which a man of experience would avoid. Continuity of policy is especially important for the Board of Supervisors, and the majority should never be changed without good reason.

It cannot be urged against any of the three incumbents that they have maladministered their trusts. On the contrary, they have performed and are performing their duties well. Their honesty and integrity cannot be called into question. That they have been targets for petty fault-finding and abuse directed at them by Kent Parrot's personal newspaper organ raises a strong presumption in their favor, in view of Parrot's clumsy mismanagement of city affairs where he has had control. Parrot has been deprived of much of his city power, to the public good, and it would be extremely unfortunate for the county were he to gain a foothold in it.

The efficient conduct of private business, where it exists, is due to the fact that men who know their jobs are kept in charge; the inefficiency of public business is largely due to frequent changes made merely for the sake of change. Where efficient administration is found in public affairs it should be retained.

This is the case in Los Angeles county. The work of the Board of Supervisors is devoid of the spectacular; it is quiet, calm and businesslike; the taxpayers get their money's worth. Under the incumbents there has been a singular freedom from the vices of politics. There has been no attempt to weld together a vote-getting machine, or to use appointments for political spoils. The board has made no serious mistakes, has been involved in no scandal.

Supervisors Bean, Wright and McClellan all deserve not only re-election, but re-election at the primaries. They should not be forced into two campaigns, required to neglect their official duties in order that they may be retained in offices to which they have won the right by service to the public. The duties of these posts are onerous, the pay is small, and there is little reward in the shape of public laudation. When men who have proved that they fill them acceptably are willing to continue to do so, they should be given the opportunity.

DR. JAMES A. FRANCIS
A parson who practiced his preachings; an earnest and sincere follower of the faith which moves mountains, yet never losing step with the modern army constantly pressing forward into more advanced positions, Rev. James A. Francis, D.D., for fourteen years pastor of the First Baptist Church of Los Angeles, has responded to the inevitable and irresistible "call" which takes him from the ken of his earthly and important work into the high service of the church triumphant.

The years spent by Dr. Francis here corresponded with the years of this community's greatest growth and development. It was indicative of the man that he was always abreast of this development, and that with the changing methods of living and outlook upon life he was successful in impressing upon his fellow-citizens, and all who came in contact with him, a breadth of vision, power of leadership and understanding love of humanity.

Distinguished as preacher, author and lecturer he will be remembered best by thousands for his understanding heart and kindly, self-effacing guidance into the pathway which leadeth toward the light. He was essentially a friend of man and his death leaves a vacant spot that will be hard to fill, not only in the hearts of his spiritual flock, but along the highways and byways where many another welcomed his coming, and mourns his passing.

THE BOWL'S SUMMER SEASON
On July 10 Hollywood Bowl will open its seventh season of symphony concerts. It will open with finer accommodations, more beautiful adornments, a still more distinguished array of talent. Its three acres of permanent seats have been painted, new flowers and shrubs planted, parking added for 1000 automobiles, conductors of international repute secured for special occasions. A bright new Bowl, swept and garnished, will welcome the multitude of summer guests.

That multitude last year was double the number of the year before and there is no reason to doubt but the vast throngs of 1927 will be doubled again in 1928. The accommodation is there, the parking space is there, the best in symphony music will be there. The music lovers of Los Angeles en masse, and visitors attracted from all over the world, will once again witness midsummer nights of harmony under the dome of heaven, staged as only the Hollywood Bowl can stage them.

No active drive for the sale of season ticket books has been attempted this year, nor should such a drive be necessary, since these symphony concerts are now so well established among the leading attractions of Los Angeles and have contributed so considerably to our general cultural opportunities. Advance sales, however, demonstrate that our people are alive to the value of these open-air symphony concerts. From July 1 to July 10 the Hollywood Bowl Association will push more energetically their sales campaign. This is imperative that the Bowl may meet the cost of the most expensive program it has yet put forward.

The Hollywood Bowl, its concerts, pageants and entertainments, the distinction it confers on this city, the fine imagination that conceived it, are a triumph for the organized womanhood of Southern California. Mrs. J. J. Carter was for years the leader of the group of public-spirited women who conjured our open-air auditorium from an unspoilt beauty spot in the hills of Hollywood. Mrs. Leiland Atherton Irish is carrying forward the work so well started by increasing the natural advantages of the Bowl and adding more names to the distinguished list of those who have appeared there in past seasons.

Los Angeles is proud of her unique possession, proud of the women and men who achieved it, proud of the fame it has gathered and the praise it has earned from musicians whose commendation is worth recording. But romance, culture, entertainment, melody, typified in the Hollywood Bowl, must have a solid backing. This is the time to remember that behind the fair figure of Terpsichore stands her prosaic but essential partner—the box office.

PROSPERITY AND POLITICS
For many decades prosperity has been somewhat sensitive during Presidential campaigns. Money goes into hibernation.

The depression of a Presidential year is but the psychological hangover of the traditions of the past, says Leonard P. Ayers in the American Magazine. Whether there be any ground for fear or not, we have formed the habit, and much of business loses its adventurous spirit.

While Col. Ayers denies connection between prosperity and business and lays the unrest wholly to mental suggestion; yet the fact that the American mind listens to suggestion is impressive.

When a good business administration has ruled the country, finance is naturally chary of any change. When an untried force is seeking the saddle, suspicion stalks abroad.

For many years leading up to 1904, campaign after campaign had a money menace in it. The Greenback party made promises at which the nation looked askance. The free-silver campaign did not improve the faith of honest financiers. The Populist bugaboo was a ghostly signpost in a foggy night. Nobody knew how many cranks might acquire control.

The trust-busting of 1908 offered the radicals many opportunities to function. Big business may have had defects that needed correction; but it did not need a revolution. Its weaknesses were played up to their fullest extent by extremists.

On the other hand the campaigns of 1912 and 1916 produced slight fluctuations on change. The war kept the mind of the people on something else.

The depression of 1920 has been laid at the doorstep of post-war deflation. The La Follette scare of 1924 proved to be a "flop." However, nobody knew to what extent its audacity might hurl itself.

In six of the twelve election years since 1880, business was distinctly above normal. During the forty years preceding 1924, there were twenty-four years of Republican rule and sixteen Democratic. Under the Republicans 55 per cent of the months were prosperous.

The Republican convention showed the influence of the times. The flamboyant orator had lost his appeal. The platform was adopted and candidates chosen without flare of red fire or blare of brass bands. It was a monster director's meeting considering the best interests of the people. Common sense is a great stabilizer.

Whether the uncertainty in business of a Presidential year may be entirely eliminated is doubtful. Whether it would be best to have no unrest may also be questioned. Anything that may drive thoughtful people to the more reliable candidate is wholesome.

The Secretary of Commerce has unconsciously made his department the head of the government!

PEIPING
During the past nine centuries Peking has suffered varied fortunes under the different dynasties that have swept over it. Called Nanking by Khitan Tartars in 986, the Chinese soon recaptured it and it became Yen-shan Foo.

After falling into the hands of Kin Tartars in 1151, it was known as Chungtu. Ghengis Khan swooped down upon it, but refused to make it his headquarters and it escaped with its name until his successor, Kublai Khan, came along. Then it became known as Yenking. However, the Chinese proper knew it as Ta-tu.

Yung-lo transferred his court to it in 1403 and from that time to this Peking, signifying northern capital, has been the capital of China.

However, this ancient city has not been any more elastic in its exchange of names than the modern movie star. Possibly the same spirit prompts them all. Whether there be anything in a name or not, Dorothy Kitchen evidently thinks that Nancy Drexel does not have as much culinary suggestion in it. Marian Douglas appears to be more picturesque to Ena Gregory. For some occult reason known only to directors, Eileen Sedgwick becomes Gretel Yoltz. Betsy Lee is stifling Bubbles Steifel because she thinks she does not have as much screen appeal. And, of course, Pickford is the international synonym for Smith.

The Chinese have always been strong believers in mental suggestion. They have even painted logs like cannon and mounted them upon breastworks for their terrifying effect on attacking forces. And what is more amazing, the ruse seems to have worked.

So they doubtless hope to woo permanent peace by calling their ancient capital Peiping, northern peace.

The Soviets also abolished St. Petersburg, already changed to Petrograd, and substituted Leningrad. However, as far as can be learned, that city smells the same by whatsoever name.

The LEE SIDE o' L.A.

By Lee Shippey

A CHARMING story is being told in Hollywood about how Franklin S. Wade of the Southern Counties Gas Company saw a child almost run over by a reckless motorist on North Hobart Boulevard and immediately went forth and bought the fine lot at the corner of Hobart and Los Feliz and put in a playground for the children of the neighborhood. It's a pretty playground, with a ten-foot iron fence around it, a race track with hurdles and an inviting grass plot. No child playing there has to run out in the street for his erring ball or his wayward hoop. And so, the story goes, one motorist's recklessness has resulted in daily delight for a whole neighborhood of kids.

But Mr. Wade denies it. He says he just bought the ground for an investment, and while holding it for future increased value decided to utilize it as a playground for his own children and their friends.

If it weren't for facts it would be a lot easier to get up a human interest colyum. In fact, facts are such hampering things we're almost tempted to have no more to do with them.

Old Men's Playgrounds

Speaking of playgrounds, though, California has some which are rather unique — old men's playgrounds, planned to keep old men young.

Besides the numerous horseshoe-pitching grounds, there are other playgrounds for older folk. One of these is in Glendale, near the Glendale Hotel. It includes croquet grounds and a long table at which a number of old men are fond of playing dominoes—not the galloping kind.

Foreign Cooking

R. Echelle calls our attention to the fact that a Spring-street restaurant advertises: "Imported New York-Hungarian Cook."

Should Be Easy

Leeside: I am about to turn burglar. I have a lump in my throat and a wart over my left eye. In case I get caught, don't you think I can easily prove that one or the other of these was pressing against something or other, and that I was not responsible for my act?—N. Price.

Pity the Poor Bankers!

The banks they have an awful time
'Twixt bandits every other day
And clerks who try to do the job
In a more gentlemanly way.

Taking No Chances

Phil Hunt of Hollywood is a good deal of a student. When he lived in New York he used to contribute to F. P. A.'s colyum such bits as "What Shakespeare Knew of Baseball"—which showed Hunt knew a good deal of Shakespeare, anyway. He also confesses to having writ some scenarios. But he gave that up, he says, after scenarizing Mrs. Shelley's famous story, "Frankenstein."

"I took it to a big producer," he says, "and after much delay he sent for me. 'We like this,' said he, 'but is it an original story?' I confessed it wasn't. His face fell. 'That's too bad. We've already got some actors in mind for it. Is it a copyrighted story?' 'I think not.' 'That's too bad. I don't like to put money into an uncopyrighted story. Somebody else might claim it. Who wrote it?' 'A lady named Shelley.' 'Well, do you suppose you could bring Mrs. Shelley down here and have her sign a contract giving us exclusive rights to it?' 'I'm afraid not.' 'You are? Then why the devil did you waste all our time with this, anyway? Why don't you think we could get her to sign up?' 'Because she died in 1808.' And so, later on, the story was produced. But, of course, the name was changed—for additional safety."

Short Orders

Leesideswiper: Restaurant signs may be honest yet deceptive. I was attracted by one on First street—"Minute Service"—but when my order came I saw they must pronounce it mi-nute.—J. M.

Still on Job

The report that the original Leesider has been killed off or fired or something is, up to the time of going to press, untrue, though high hopes are being entertained in some quarters.

The rumor started when a friend dropped in while we were out, and saw our desk all straightened up and orderly. He instantly concluded it was ours no more.

The fact is that our desk got so littered with letters from contribs that every time we laid our pipe down it took us half an hour to find it again—so we just had to straighten it up.

But we can promise that in a few days it will again be looking really literary.

BARNSDALL PARK

BY FRED HOGUE

"Once upon a time there was a poor art club"—perhaps the members prided themselves on being poor in purse; for St. Luke quotes the Christ as saying "Blessed be ye poor, for yours is the Kingdom of God." Perhaps they prided themselves on being poor in spirit; for St. Mathew quotes the Christ as saying "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the Kingdom of Heaven." I am now deeply grateful that, in my youth, I was driven by a hickory rod to attend Sunday-school and to learn certain passages of the scriptures by heart. Else I should have written "Damned are the poor in spirit; they are the children of the Devil." I can tolerate the poor in purse, for I am one of them; but to me the poor in spirit is an abomination.

This "poor art club"—I quote from an article by one of its members in adoration of its rags—has draped itself in a name that is not generally associated with poverty. The California Art Club, and the city of Los Angeles, in accepting a bequest from a wealthy and generous patron of the fine arts, has given it a fifteen-year tenure in the finest clubhouse in which an association of artists was ever housed.

In Barnsdall Park, on the summit of Olive Hill in the heart of Hollywood, in a villa and grounds that recall to me the Villa Borghese in Venice, is now domiciled the California Art Club. A year ago Aline Barnsdall made of this villa and the ten acres of park by which it is surrounded, like a pearl in a setting of jade, a free present to the city of Los Angeles, refusing an offer of more than $1,000,000 for a hotel site.

It came like a gift from the gods. Pallas Athene was not more generous to Athens. Aline Barnsdall: take note of that name, women of Los Angeles! She is not the wealthiest among you. There are perhaps a dozen who command more millions than she. But her name will be remembered and revered a century after the last of you has been forgotten.

Possession of wealth, especially for women, is a happy accident, a whim of that goddess we call fortune. But the disposition of wealth is no accident. It is not for what we have, but for what we give, that we are remembered.

Aline Barnsdall has written to me from Geneva to speak of the gift, but not of the donor. She created Barnsdall Park, and the villa that crowns its summit, as a memorial to her father. She is the custodian of his fortune; and she desires to apply it to a public service.

A year ago I stood with her in one of the patios of the Barnsdall villa. Fifty members of the California Art Club were there, at a dinner given in commemoration of the gift. I had asked her what impulse had led her to be so generous. Then she took me to the balcony that overlooks the city. She pointed to the east to the skylines of the business district of Los Angeles; to the west to the narrow skyline of the business center of Hollywood; to the triple ranges of mountains, rising one behind the other, blue and violet in the gossamer haze of the sunset, that mark the northern limits of the flowering, wooded steepled plain that is Los Angeles. She pointed to the ribbon of pearl on the southern horizon—sunset on the Pacific.

"You see them all, there," she said; "the business blocks, rising above the eucalypti and the palms, of a city that is ever green. You see the towers and steeples of 500 religious edifices. You see public schools, high schools and colleges. On the slopes of the mountains you see a hundred palaces. See the dazzling light of the sunset reflected from the windows of that magnificent edifice on the eastern horizon; it is a prison. See that steel frame of what is to be the highest building of them all; it is the place where we shall house our politicians. In that mass of green to the south are military barracks."

"From this balcony I have seen more than half of them grow. Shrines of industry, shrines to education, shrines to religion, shrines to politics, shrines to war, shrines to Aphrodite; but where is the Parthenon and the Erechtheum, the shrine of art?"

She continued looking out over the city, gold, jade and purple in the sunset; but I looked only at her. A hundred tongues had told me that she possessed millions; but not one that she possessed a soul.

There is more wealth in a noble woman's eyes than in a hundred palaces.

"Art," she continued, turning those eyes to me," is the soul of a people. One cannot look on visions like this without having visions of one's own. Without visions we are only ants, and our communities only ant hills."

"Poor in spirit!" If such is the test, many of the millionaires I have known are sure of heaven; but not this one, this woman with an arrogant fortune and a humble heart.

I strove lamely, unconsciously with borrowed words, to express my appreciation. She laid an unjeweled hand on my arm—this woman makes no parade of her fortune—and led me to the library. From one of the shelves she took a volume containing the English translation of the tragedies Euripides, to one of his little-known plays, "Ion." "It is all here," she said, "older than the Sermon on the Mount."

Unconsciously, I had been improvising to her on something I had read; and she knew where.

Humbled now, I asked her how she had been able to take time from the administration of a great fortune to delve into the classics. Then she told me something of her youth, of a love for art that was her first love; of a pilgrimage to Europe, of years of study in the most illustrious dramatic schools of England, and the continent.

Illness of her father called her home. She must choose between a career on the stage and that of a daughter; and filial love prevailed.

Then came years of storm and stress. An heiress, she revolted against what seemed to her the tyranny of millions, against the inequalities, the injustices of life about her. The ills of society she attributed to governments, and she became an ardent Socialist.

Time, and perhaps personal contact with the radicals, cured her of this illusion. She did not tell me of this cure; perhaps she will denounce and resent this interpretation of her changed attitude toward society. But she told me of her hatred of war, of all symbols of military and political glory. In the deed of Barnsdall Park there is a reservation that no statue shall be erected there to one who owes his fame to a military or political career.

This woman, who was once an admirer of Emma Goldman, who generously gave her money—not in tens but in thousands—is now living in Geneva, at the foyer of the league for universal peace.

Why is she there? She has not informed me; but I have found the answer in Euripides, an author she knows better than I. Among the documents found in his chamber after he had been banished from Athens—his independent thought, like that of many another courageous writer, was attributed to impiety—after he had been hunted by the hounds of Archelaus and so mutilated that he died of his wounds—among his effects was found this prayer:

"Omnipotent God, send light unto men, that they may know whence their evils come and how to avoid them."

It is for this light that Aline Barnsdall has been searching, pursuing at times through trails she found to be false, since the death of her father.

In politics she found only hatred, dissension, injustice, trials lined with cadavers and slippery with human blood. Her woman's heart was filled with horror by the baseness and cruelties of men.

Then she turned to her first love—to art; and it was like passing from the shadows into the sunlight, like entering a peaceful port after a passage on a stormy sea.

Now as to the "poor art club." I went up to that clubhouse on Sunday afternoon. I spent four hours there, and saw but one artist, Frank Wamsley, the sculptor. In two small galleries were exhibitions by artists whose names I had never heard—to fame and fortune yet wholly unknown. On the walls of the clubhouse was not a single painting. Those belonging to Aline Barnsdall had been removed, and no canvas by a member of the club replaced them.

Was it for this that Aline Barnsdall reserved for the artists a fifteen-year tenure in that villa? Painters of international renown are members of the California Art Club; but there is no evidence of that fact in their clubhouse.

She gave a million; and no other wealthy resident of Los Angeles has given so much as a single canvas! She went for two years into voluntary exile, in order that those she left behind might develop unimpeded the talent intrusted to them.

I have talked with some of the artists. They have told me much of what "she" is going to do when she returns; but nothing of what "they" are going to do, much less of what they have done.

They hold an "open forum" once a week and talk about what they are going to do. It recalls Kipling's narratives of the conferences of the Bandarlog. Their mission in life is not to chatter, but to model and paint.

What do they imagine Aline Barnsdall is going to do when she returns to them to see what use they have made during her absence of the talent intrusted to them?

I trust I am unduly harsh. I am trying to be. Much rust has accumulated on the summit of Barnsdall Park and in the valley below; and it takes a rough instrument to scrape the rust off.

"Poor in spirit!" A group of really talented artists—and there are scores of them in the California Art Club—who make such a use of such an opportunity are as devoid of spirit as a fish of hair.

Men and women have told me she is eccentric. To be eccentric is sometimes to be wise in the midst of a community of fools.

THE DOCTOR'S JOB

The doctor much prefers to deal in an open, frank manner with his patients, telling them just what the matter is and describing the course of treatment. This is not always advisable. There are many hysterical and highly nervous people on the borderland of insanity. By lie after lie they are gradually won back to more normal thinking. Brutal candor would probably make them lunatics. If a patient is unusually nervous it may be wiser to misrepresent the situation and if the disease is quite incurable similar tactics must be adopted. How many people would appreciate their nearest and dearest being told that they had cancer, or tuberculosis, or a diseased heart beyond hope of cure? The patient would probably commit suicide and the doctor would be condemned as tactless and lacking in sympathy.

Hedrick Takes Latest Step, Seeking Divorce

Cross-Complaint Charges Wife With Cruelty

Balm Suit Cited as Instance Causing Suffering

The Oesterreich-Hedrick-Hedrick-Hawkins litigation, which is beginning to assume monumental proportions is more intricate than ever.

Roy R. Hedrick has filed a cross-complaint to the separate-maintenance suit of Genevieve Hedrick, wherein he demands a divorce on similar charges and sets up as an offset to the cruelty he says he has suffered that Mrs. Hedrick has sued Mrs. Walburg Oesterreich for $100,000 for alienating his affections.

For the past two weeks the Hedrick and Mrs. Oesterreich have been hurling accusations, charges and countercharges at each other. Mrs. Hedrick started it with her separate maintenance suit. She followed that up with a suit for separate maintenance. Mrs. Oesterreich came back with an answer denying the alienation charges, and a slander suit against Mrs. Josephine Stanton, mother of Mrs. Hedrick, wherein she demands $500,000. Mrs. Oesterreich claimed that as a result of a remark alleged to have been made by Mrs. Stanton she was subjected to police questioning and questioning, greatly to her embarrassment.

In his cross-complaint Hedrick says he was embarrassed, too, Mrs. Hedrick's mention of him in her alienation suit holding him up to ridicule.

This is not the end of the suit filing, either, according to Ivan Miller, attorney for Mrs. Oesterreich. When the alienation action is concluded she is going to sue Mrs. Hedrick for malicious prosecution, he announced.

Mrs. Oesterreich has been in court before in connection with the death of a husband, but the charge was dropped.

VACATION FOLLOWS FIFTY YEARS' SERVICE

"Healthy, you bet, and I feel as young as I did fifty-one years ago when I first went to work," says J. H. Aram, oldest station agent still in active service of the Southern Pacific Company, now visiting one of his sons in Los Angeles. For more than half a century Aram has been in continuous service with the railroad, having started work in 1877, as a night telegraph operator at Niles, Cal. He now is agent for the Southern Pacific at Mountain View, near Palo Alto. Aram boasts that the service of his family for the company totals more than 100 years.

HAWKINS TO ASK PROBATION

Probation for Johnny Hawkins, former Trojan football star and self-confessed burglar, will be sought by his attorney, Joseph Ryan, when Hawkins appears in Superior Court to face trial on thirty-three charges of burglary. Attorney Ryan will waive preliminary hearing in Municipal Court, he declared yesterday. The case is to come up this morning before Municipal Judge Gibbs, but a continuance will be requested until Wednesday, as Ryan is engaged in a murder trial in San Diego.

Ryan contends that a kick in the head received in a football scrimmage is responsible for Hawkins's burglarious tendencies. Jimmy Hawkins, 19 years of age, a brother to Johnny, was arrested early in June for stealing jewelry valued at $1500 and confessed to the theft, according to a police report.

Stills Seized by Enforcers Again in Use

Confiscated stills sold as junk are not always junked, according to Capt. James Benton, head of Sheriff Traeger's prohibition enforcement detail.

Discovery of the fact was revealed yesterday when Capt. Benton announced that he has noticed familiar ax marks on stills that he recently had confiscated.

According to Benton, many of the stills sold at auction as junk are later replaced in service and used to turn out moonshine liquor in large quantities.

In the future, however, this will not be accomplished so easily, it was revealed. The reason is that Capt. Benton has ordered all confiscated stills to be placed in the hands of A. H. Mitcheson, in charge of the county tinsmith's shop.

The stills now are being converted into kitchen utensils for the County Jail, Poor Farm, and road signs for the road department.

UNIVERSITY WILL AWARD NEW DEGREE

Trojan Board Sanctions Professional Program for Educational Workers

Authorizing the school of education of the University of Southern California to outline a three-year professional program leading to the degree of Doctor of Education, the board of trustees of the local university has voted to recognize the school of education as a separate professional school of the Trojan institution, according to an announcement yesterday by President R. B. Von KleinSmid.

According to Dean Lester B. Rogers of the school of education, the institution will be the fourth in the United States prepared to offer work leading to the Doctor of Education degree, Harvard, California at Berkeley and Stanford being the universities now conferring the degree.

Dean Rogers explained that there are two factors back of the establishment of the new degree. One is the desire to create a professional degree of equal weight and merit with the present Ph. D. (Doctor of Philosophy) degree, but with emphasis on advanced professional preparation and mastery of educational principles and procedures rather than primarily on research. The other is to provide a master-teacher type of degree for the better preparation of teachers in subject matter fields for junior and other colleges.

New Aviation School to be Established

A $500,000 aviation ground and flying school to carry on training in this section of the country will be established here soon. This is the statement of J. A. Rosenkranz who returned yesterday from a six weeks' air tour to principal government and commercial fields.

J. A. ROSENKRANZ

Rosenkranz is president of the National Automotive and Electrical School here, which will operate the aviation school. He made the trip in company with Dr. Ford A. Carpenter, aeronautical manager of the chamber of commerce. The school will be ready September 1, Rosenkranz said.

WOMAN WANTED ON POLICE COMMISSION

The appointment of Mrs. Alma Nordstrom to the Police Commission has been recommended to the City Council by the West Adams Taxpayers' Protective League. Mrs. Nordstrom lives in this district and was a candidate there for the City Council last year. The league says there is need of a woman on the Police Commission.

England and Wales now have 20,000 women farmers.

NEW LINE ASSURED IN NORTH

Southern Pacific to Build Road From Klamath Falls in Oregon to Alturas

Immediate construction of ninety-seven miles of track connecting Klamath Falls, Or., and Alturas, Cal., to give Oregon and Northern California a new east and west line was announced yesterday by William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific.

The line will connect the Southern Pacific's Cascade Line of the Shasta Route with its Nevada-California-Oregon line, which connects with the Southern Pacific Overland Route at Fernley, Nev.

"Work on this new connecting link will begin without delay and is in accordance with approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission," the announcement said. "Survey of the new line has just been completed by company engineers. The line will extend southeasterly from Klamath Falls, through Merrill, then across Tule Lake, which has been drained, to Cornell and then easterly to Alturas, serving a fine agricultural territory south of Klamath Falls in the Klamath Basin, and one of the largest stands of virgin pine timber in the United States."

Seats on Sale for Pilgrimage Play's Season

Ticket sale for the ninth annual season of the Pilgrimage Play, "Life of the Christ," will be opened today, it was announced yesterday by George L. Eastman, president of the Pilgrimage Play Association. Tickets will be on sale at the Birkel Music Company, 446 South Broadway. The season will open on Monday evening, the 16th inst., and will continue for six weeks till August 25. This is the shortest season during which this famous sacred drama has been performed.

Large numbers of visitors from outside cities are expected to be attracted by the fame the play has gained. Improvements in staging and lighting effects and in the mechanics at the open-air theater in the Hollywood foothills will make this year's presentation more nearly perfect than ever.

Kimmerle Case Comes Up Today

The final status of the parole given H. J. Kimmerle, convicted of striking Arthur Loeb and blinding him in one eye in a dispute over the proceedings of the Julian Petroleum fiasco trial, will be decided today when Superior Judge Edmonds hears the statements of Dist.-Atty. Keyes, Chief of Police Davis and Sheriff William I. Traeger.

These three men have been subpoenaed to appear before Presiding Judge Edmonds today to explain why the parole was granted. Records show that the parole was granted upon the approval of Dist.-Atty. Keyes and Chief Davis. Sheriff Traeger refused to sign it.

Russian Youth Wins Film Job

Paul Guertzman, 15 years of age, a Russian, was signed by Paramount yesterday upon his arrival in Hollywood from Paris at the instigation of Jesse L. Lasky.

The youth had persisted in waylaying Mr. Lasky on his recent sojourn in Paris and begging for a chance in American pictures. Finally, as Mr. Lasky tells the story, he received Guertzman at his hotel and was so impressed by his ability in pantomime that he thereupon bought a ticket to Los Angeles for him.

SOCIETY

BY JUANA NEAL LEVY

What Paris really needs—if we may be permitted to suggest it—is more days in June.

This conclusion was arrived at by the attempt of visitors there to accept all the invitations offered to private receptions, as well as dinners, teas and luncheons, charity affairs, musicales, art exhibits, flower and dog and horse shows, theatrical first-nights, weddings, cocktail parties, box parties at the races and the international tennis tournament, and still find time to do a minimum amount of work.

It's a wonder the overworked guests don't call a strike. Indeed they probably would if the guest of today weren't the hostess of tomorrow.

Nevertheless, the cry from henceforth shall be "more days or fewer parties."

The French certainly are a patient people, else they wouldn't have waited until the 14th inst. to declare their independence. The Americans did it ten days earlier.

From this, you will gather that the Paris spring season is the most active and brilliant for many years. Certainly the number of interesting expositions goes beyond anything seen here for a long time, while the musical events have brought a galaxy of remarkable performers. Charity is attempting to cover the multitude, while the poor, private hostess is striving night and day to meet the unequal competition.

One forsees a profitable season for the cure resorts.

Last week, the Maharajah of Kapurthala entertained in his usual regal fashion President Doumergue and several hundred other guests at the Union Interalliee. The Maharajah entertains at his villa in the Bois du Boulogne throughout the season, and each year gives a picturesque garden party just following the Grand Prix. Among his guests last week were the former Maharajah of Indore and his American wife, nee Nancy Miller of Seattle, Wash., the latter in Indian costume of gold lace and wearing a magnificent necklace of diamonds and emeralds; the Grand Duke Dimitri of Russia and his American wife; the Comte and Comtesse Roger de Perigny, the latter an American; Col. and Mrs. Francis Drake and Mr. and Mrs. William Gould Brokaw.

The Accueil Social Franco-Americain gave a concert at the Salle Gaveau for which the principal artistes included none other than the celebrated Vladimir de Pachmann, now 80 years of age, but still in possession of that technique and gift of interpretation which have long made him the supreme exponent of Chopin. This charity was organized by Mme. Tauffliel, originally of St. Louis, Mo., and among the guests were the Comtesse de Chambrun (formerly Kara Longworth,) and Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt.

W. C. Gunn and family of Santa Barbara, who have been traveling in Germany, were recent visitors to Berlin, where they registered at the Hotel Bristol.

Mrs. J. A. Hallgarten, formerly Mary Elizabeth Jacobs of Pasadena, has sufficiently recovered from an operation for appendicitis at the American Hospital in Neuilly-sur-Seine, France, to return to her home in Avenue du Roule, Neuilly. Mrs. Hallgarten, with her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Jacobs, shortly will go to Montreux, Switzerland, during her convalescence.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerrold F. Watson of Pasadena, after a month in Rome, following a motor trip across Northern Africa, have arrived in Paris and are stopping at the Royal Monceau Hotel, awaiting their friends, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Talcott of Hartford, Ct., with whom they intend to visit Switzerland, Germany and England.

George Dock, Jr., is arriving in Paris this week and will be with his aunt, Mrs. Edwin Jessup Marshall of Los Angeles, at the Hotel Cecilia for several weeks. Mr. Dock, who was a member of the Lafayette Escadrille, will be here until after the ceremonies attendant upon the dedication of the memorial to that Escadrille at Saint-Cloud.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mayer, Mr. and Mrs. Wilner and Dr. and Mrs. John Vrenwink, who have been touring Germany, were recent visitors to Nuremberg, stopping at the Hotel Wurttemberger.

A garden bridge party given by Mrs. Richard Guttmann at her home in Vienna for the benefit of the American Women's Club of Vienna, was a great success. Among the guests were Mrs. M. B. Albers and Mrs. F. H. Holden of Los Angeles and Miss Helen Sandford of Ontario.

Judge and Mrs. James G. Mafley, who returned to Paris a fortnight ago after a four-month visit in Los Angeles, received last week at their apartment in the Rue Eugene-Labiche.

Alden W. Skinner has arrived at the Hotel Schweizerhof in Lucerne, Switzerland, for the season.

Mrs. C. E. Smith and Mrs. J. C. Rives of Los Angeles and Mrs. H. E. Cooke of Palo Alto are passing some time in Rome as guests of the Hotel de Russie, and F. B. Lewis is stopping at the Hotel Excelsior.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Sartori are in Baden-Baden, Germany, for the cure season there, and are domiciled at the Hotel Stephanie.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Jeannes have been passing several days this month in Berlin. Other California visitors to the German capital include Miss Martha Fischer and Alex Newman, who are stopping at the Hotel Adlon.

Irving S. Metzler, president of Metzler & Co. of California, and formerly vice-president of the East River National Bank of New York, arrived in London April 20, after traveling over most of the continent by airplane. During his trip Mr. Metzler made connections for underwriting bonds. He left for America on the French liner Ile-de-France on June 20.

Charles Parmelee, who has been passing several months on the continent, was a recent visitor to Dresden, Germany, stopping at the Hotel Bellevue, where other California guests included Arthur Orcheltree of Riverside and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Jeames.

James T. Lynn of Pasadena has arrived in Paris at the Hotel Astoria, after crossing on the liner Homeric. He will leave in a few days on a motor trip to Vienna, returning to Paris after a trip through Central Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Rider of Hollywood are taking the cure at Montecatini, Italy.

Pick and wash firm ripe plums, gash with a silver knife, place in a preserving kettle and simmer until the stones rise to the top. Life the stones out and press the pulp through a sieve. Measure the strained pulp and to each cupful add three-quarters of a cupful of sugar. Boil until thick, pack and seal in glass jars.

DEVILED CHICKEN LIVERS

Clean, wash and drain the required number of chicken livers, dust with salt, paprika, finely chopped parsley, and mild onion. Wrap each liver with a thin slice of bacon and place on a shallow tin, place in a hot oven until the liver is cooked about seven minutes. Serve on a hot plate and pour around a sauce made by heating three tablespoonfuls of butter with three tablespoonfuls of ketchup and one tablespoonful of cooking sherry.

APRICOT JELLY ROLL

Beat until very light three eggs, and beat into them gradually one cupful of sugar, beat well; then add two tablespoonfuls of water, one tablespoonful of melted butter, and a teaspoonful of vanilla extract, sift one cupful of flour, with one teaspoonful of baking powder and fold into the first mixture, oil a shallow baking pan, cover with paper, oil the paper and pour in the cake batter. Bake in a hot oven about twelve minutes, turn out on a piece of white cloth, trim off the edges, spread with two cupfuls of cooked apricots that have been drained and pressed through a sieve and seasoned with sugar. Turn the far edge of the cake, press down, lift the corners and pull toward you, roll the cake in the cloth and let stand one hour, remove the cloth, sprinkle with powdered sugar and serve with an apricot sauce.

RHUBARB PIE

Place four cupfuls of washed, peeled and diced rhubarb in a sauce pan, add one cupful of sugar, and half a cupful of water, simmer for five minutes, add two level tablespoonfuls of flour, and half a teaspoonful of salt; dilute the flour with a little water, mix well and cook for five minutes. Line a pie tin with pastry, sprinkle the bottom with a layer of bread crumbs, pour in the rhubarb mixture, dot with two tablespoonfuls of butter broken in small pieces, cover with pastry and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes.

Sports Clothes Are Made to Help the Wearers Win

By Florence La Ganke

Now that Lois was Mrs. Miller instead of Miss Aston she had a chance to indulge her fondness for sports. Every morning found her on the links or at the tennis courts. She learned there was a whole new style language for sports wear. Clothes should be trim. Clothes should be easy to move around in. Clothes should be so well put together that the wearer could forget them from the time they were put on until they were taken off. Clothes should be becoming.

When she made her last serve at tennis she did it only haphazardly for she was studying a dress worn by a resting player. It was of white pique. The dress was sleeveless and opened at the neck in a deep V. The front was double breasted. With so smart an outfit Lois wondered why the girl was wearing a bandeau instead of the new visor-bandeau combination.

For golf Lois had a hat with a good sized brim. She wore one of the popular square handkerchiefs knotted tringular wise. She wore white buckskin shoes and the new brushed wool sock. This was made primarily for tennis, but it serves equaly well for golf. Her dress was of oyster white Shantung. Color was introduced in the band of her hat, and the dots on her kerchief.

Lois had to learn how to do housework easily and quickly since she was out of doors so much. She found Nancy Page's leaflet on "Table Etiquette" helpful. Write to Nancy Page, care of this paper, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and ask for her "Table Etiquette" leaflet.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

by Dr Frank McCoy

author of "The Next Step to Heaven"

Dr. McCoy will answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Los Angeles Times, inclose stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

GREEN CORN

Green corn is one of the few starchy foods that can be used freely during the hot weather. It is a wholesome and appetizing addition to our menus, and may be used as the principal part of the meal. It is most appetizing when the kernels are plump and well filled, yet soft and milky inside.

Since green corn deteriorates rapidly after being picked, it should be eaten as soon as possible. It is well to choose those ears, the husks of which are bright and fresh looking.

Green corn contains a large amount of soft pliable cellulose which is only partly digested in the intestines, but has much value because of this fact, since it supplies a bulk which is filling and nonirritating. Bran is often recommended for this purpose, but there is a great danger of the bran being too scratchy and thus further irritating the intestines.

It is apparent that colitis is often caused from using too much bran in an effort to cure constipation. Those who are constantly affected with this disorder will find that green corn would be of great help to them. The intestines of those who are constipated are usually ballooned and entirely out of their normal shape, consequently a large amount of bulky food must be used to properly fill out the intestines, so that normal peristaltic movements will be promoted and this disease of civilization, which is so responsible for creating other diseases, may be overcome.

It is interesting to know that green corn contains a much larger proportion of mineral salts than is found in cornmeal or in dried field corn. Its potassium alone is four times as plentiful as the amount found in ordinary cornmeal.

Green corn is listed as a starchy food, but when young the starch seldom reaches a percentage of one-fifth of the total bulk. Whole cornmeal is 68 per cent starch, while green corn is something under 20 per cent starch, giving us a carbohydrate food which is very palatable and yet does not burden the system with excesses of starch.

It is quite safe for anyone troubled with constipation to use corn on the cob once a day during the summer time, always combining the corn with some of the green vegetables such as asparagus, string beans, also a few of the salad vegetables such as celery or young carrots. Avoid acid fruits, including tomatoes, which are really an acid fruit, near the "corn" meal.

My daughter who has recently passed her botany examination has just reminded me that corn is really listed botanically as a fruit. Yes, that is true, but we do not list corn that way as far as practical dietetics is concerned.

The average person can use three or four small ears of corn at a meal with none but the most beneficial results. Corn is best cooked by boiling in slightly salted water or by baking in the husk. The latter method gives it a very delicate, nut-like flavor. Before baking, one would have to pull back the husks to clean the corn, after which the husks may be replaced and the ends twisted or tied together.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: S. G. J. writes: "Please tell me how to reduce the upper arm."

Answer: Any kind of arm exercises will reduce the fat on your arms. The best ones to take are those requiring a reasonable amount of muscular tension and, at the same time, these exercises should be used rapidly and with vigor. Probably the best plan would be to purchase one of the "chest weight exercise" which you can secure from any sporting-goods store. This apparatus is attached to the wall, and the exercises are taken by raising and lowering weights which are attached to handles by ropes running over pulleys. Secure a booklet describing how to take these exercises. This booklet can usually be obtained at the same store where the apparatus is sold.

Q.: Mrs. I. H. asks: "Is it ever advisable to use any kind of breadstuff with a meal containing either potatoes or meat?"

A.: Genuine whole-wheat crackers, or muffins may be used in a limited quantity with either a protein (meat) or starchy foods (potatoes) by those in good health. This is an exception to the general rules regulating the use of proteins and starches.

Q.: Mrs. L. M. G. asks: "Is there any cure of incipient tuberculosis?"

A.: Incipient tuberculosis is curable if the proper methods are used; even advanced cases can usually be cured if every habit of the patient can be controlled. If you will send a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope I will be glad to send you some articles on the subject which I have prepared for distribution.

EXTRA CARE MUST BE GIVEN MILK IN SUMMER

As soon as hot weather approaches mothers become milk conscious. Heretofore they have poured it blithely from the bottle without giving much thought to it, one way or the other. Now they visualize it as teeming with dangerous bacteria, or as affording a stamping ground for filthy flies, and they are terrified. Haven't you asked yourself lately: "I wonder if I dare use Grade-A milk for the baby this summer?" if perchance you have been using certified.

Certified milk is, of course, the very safest, cleanest and freshest milk one can buy, because it is intended as a food for babies and every precaution is used to keep it as pure as it is possible for cows' milk to be. Just because it is handled in the most careful manner, certified milk is the most expensive to buy, and consequently is the best for baby's use if one can afford it.

Grade-A milk is the next choice, and can be obtained either raw or pasteurized. Personally, we think that at least during the summer it should be boiled for three minutes before making up baby's bottles or feeding to the older children, no matter what kind of milk you buy (except certified.) No matter how carefully bottled, just as soon as milk gets the heat (either in the sun on door step before the [illegible] or in an ice box [illegible] cooled.) the bacteria [illegible] to multiply. ### TWO BOATING PARTIES

One was a disreputable old tub, without a speck of paint left on it. But mother and young Tom, age 12, were pretty good oarsmen, and they had three youngsters along, all about 7 or 8, and all equipped with very amateur fishing tackle.

Mother had also packed a pretty good picnic hamper, lots of nice thick sandwiches, and apples and a gallon of drinking water, so they set off for a little sandy cove they knew about, which was alive with fairies and where a mermaid was suspected of coming up to lie in the sun on the rocks.

The other boat was very grand, with fancy paint and stylish awnings and a motor, and reed chairs on deck. It contained a party of eight, all dressed up in stylish yachting clothes. There were three children in that one, too, and their picnic hamper held cold chicken and elaborate salads and fancy rolls and grand cakes, and thermos bottles full of expensive drinks and hot coffee.

They, too, set off for a lively picnic spot they knew about, although the people in the grand boat were much too clever to believe in fairies or mermaids, and much too wise to suppose they could catch any fish with amateur tackle. And one couldn't sit on the edge and dangle one's feet in the water from the grand boat.

When both parties returned to the wharf at twilight, the disreputable old tub unloaded a crew of laughing, sunburned children, who had had wild and joyous experiences all day. True, they hadn't actually caught any fish, but they nearly caught ever so many. And everyone had taken a turn at learning to row. They had all managed to get wet and pretty messy, and were hugging tin cans full of sea shells and treasures galore. There wasn't a crumb of the thick sandwiches left, and they were all ready for the big stew mother had left to cook slowly while they were gone.

But the people in the grand boat were all tired and bored. They were just as neat and stylish dressed as when they left. Nothing much had happened and they hadn't found any treasures. They had a lot of grand food left and weren't at all hungry. They had traveled more quickly and had gone farther and been a great deal more comfortable but somehow they didn't seem to have had a good time at all. No one looked jolly; in fact, they all looked a wee bit peevish.

"Gee, I wish we had a grand boat like theirs," said young Tom, as he gazed enviously at the stylish craft.

"But look at their faces, dear, I don't believe they had half such a good time as we did," laughed mother. "I think those little children would have enjoyed our old tub better."

And, sure enough, next morning a small boy from the grand party sidled over to the children of the old boat. "I wish we could play in your boat," said he, "and learn to row, and fish. There's nothing to do on our boat."

So mother asked the grand mamma if she would let the grand children wear their old clothes and go with her and her youngsters on another fishing trip to the fairy cove. The grand mamma hesitated, but the grand children just pleaded and pleaded. When the grand mamma finally consented she wanted to send some grand food along, but mother said no, the thick sandwiches were the right kind of food to eat in a fairy cove.

And that night the grand children came home laughing and wet and messy, too, and they said they had had the very wonderfulest day they ever had in their whole lives.

CHINESE WOMEN SHAPE POLITICS

Before a glittering company of western diplomats and admirals, Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek was married to Miss Meiling Soong in Shanghai's smartest hotel. Royal marriages alone used to attain the real significance that today belongs to the union of these two young revolutionists. Yet it was little noted in the press.

Meiling Soong, who was graduated from Wellesley in the class of 1917, is pro-American. But her sister, Mme. Sun Yat-Sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese Nationalist party, is pro-Russian, having been deeply impressed by the usefulness of Moscow's revolutionary strategy to the Chinese revolution. Between the opposing views which the two sisters represent, Chiang Kai-Shek, the revolution's ablest general, had to choose.

Last summer, when he was commander-in-chief of the Nationalist armies, he made the first move toward a choice. He severed relations with soviet Russia, and ordered the arrest of Michael Borodin, once his trusted Russian adviser. Borodin escaped to Moscow.

Furious at Chiang's action, Mme. Sun Yat-Sen left China for Moscow also. Later, she refused to attend the wedding of Chiang to her pro-American sister. Instead Mme. Sun Yat-Sen sent a telegram of angry protest at the bridegroom's break with Russia.

Thus are families split as nations are forged. Chiang Kai-Shek made of his marriage to Meiling Soong an unmistable gesture which indicates that he is looking now toward America and Europe, and that the first and terrifying phase of Russian influence in China is definitely closed.

Said Gen. Chiang recently:

"During the period of Communist control the Kuomintang policy was one of destruction. The people were used as tools in a class struggle and misled by fallacious theories. In order to place the party on a firm foundation this policy of destruction must be changed to one of construction and the class struggle be replaced by mutual help and cooperation."

Now, with his platform clearly understood and the armies reorganized, he is staking everything on a last great drive on Peking and the forces of the north.—[Living Age.

A Duel With a Deck of Cards

A nice, clean way for the settlement of "affairs of honor" in Czecho-Slovakia has been discovered to avenge an insult. An engineer in the town is said to have given offense to the business man, who challenged him to a duel. "Why not settle the affair at cards?" another man suggested. The men agreed, and sat down at the cardtable to play for a stake. The business man won.

ENGLISH WRITER ON LONG LONELY TOUR

When Miss Jill Cossley-Batt, a young English writer and lecturer, who is in Chicago on the last lap of an eight-year tour around the world, met her first lion in the jungles of Africa she admits she acted like an ordinary woman. "I started to travel," she said to Bertha Fenberg of the Chicago News, "as a special writer for the London Times, but sometimes my adventures got the better of me. I forgot I was connected with anything other than the scenes before me. Now I am a free-lance writer." The formal meeting with the lion was just such an incident to drive all thoughts of other worlds out of her mind.

"To be perfectly honest," said Miss Batt, who has a special zest for life and who has one anecdote right after the other on the tip of her tongue, "when I saw that lion I was so scared I dropped my gun. My legs stiffened as though they were made of stone. I couldn't budge. The lion looked at me and I looked at the lion. The strangest glance passed between us. Then the beast turned away, leaving me standing there in complete safety."

One of her lectures is on "The Key That Unlocks the Door to the Mystery of the Far East." For she has lived among the Hindus and has learned a great deal of their secret ways. "I have more secrets locked up in me," she says. "And they are not all secrets of the Indians or Arabs. For, during the war Miss Batt was a chemist in a TNT factory in England, and through her position and her skill, came in contact with the prime movers of the World War. For a time she was in France and when the war was ended was granted free passage to Australia by Lloyd George as commendation for work done.

A graduate of Oxford, a special student at the University of London in chemistry, Miss Batt has lived one of the most remarkable lives since those trying days of the war. Not only does she know how the natives live in the South Sea Isles from actual experience, but she has traveled through country after country, sometimes riding a horse that cost $1.50, as she did in Australia, sometimes walking through bogs and forests.

Coming here from California, where she has written a book and acted in the studios of Hollywood, she is now bent on telling both men and women about the customs of sheiks, how it feels to live in disguise and to be on the verge of torture and death.

Questioned as to her courage in traveling alone, she said: "One has to go alone in order to learn all these things. I've been taken into families, when if I had some one with me, I never would have penetrated, never would have learned the things I now know. I lived for several months with a Chinese family. I've slept in the palaces of India and I've been under the protection of a sheik of the desert of Sahara."—[Kansas City Star.

WHERE CADDIES ARE NOT BOYS

In Scotland the business of the caddie is regarded as too serious to be instrusted to boys. This office of the links is therefore performed by mature men, some of them quite old, 70 and 80 years of age. They are all experts in the game and they enter into it as enthusiastically as players. Many of these caddies have made a lifework of it.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Quicker Ironing

Clothes that are sprinkled evenly, folded somewhat in the lines in which they will be ironed and then rolled tightly will mean speedier and better work for the ironer.

A Thought for Others

Pass on the magazines when the family has read them. There are plenty of institutions that will welcome them and much good will be done with little effort and no expense on your part.

Aching Feet

Summertime frequently brings swollen and tired feet to the person who must be on them all day. A handful of Epsom salts in a foottub of hot water is a splendid solution to ease those aching feet. Soak them for about an hour and note the improvement.

Will Not Rust

After the oven has been used, leave the doors open until it is thoroughly aired and dried out. Otherwise the moist air will cause it to rust.

For Suede Shoes

That stiff vegetable brush that we always seem to have in reserve is just splendid to brush the suede shoes, so fashionable this year. It brings up the nap in a jiffy.

Film Luminary's Marriage on Rocks

Anita Stewart

Exhibits of agricultural and industrial machinery will be the features of the exhibition fair to be held at Riga, Latvia, this summer.

Shakespeare Birthplace Trustees have decided to open the poet's birthplace, Stratford-on-Avon, and Anne Hathaway's cottage, on Sunday afternoons during the summer.

ACTRESS TO PLAY COURT ROLE TODAY

Anita Stewart's Divorce Plea Based on Charge of Desertion by Brennan

Anita Stewart, film actress, today will appear in Department Seventeen of the Superior Court for hearing on her suit for divorce, filed under the unimposing name of Mary Anna Brennan. Her husband, Rudolph Cameron Brennan, known on the stage as Rudolph Cameron, is in New York. The only charge contained in her suit is that of desertion. The action was filed by Attorney W. H. Sheldon of Hollywood.

Anita Stewart's marriage to Cameron ten years ago was an outstanding event. The couple eloped from New York to Connecticut. Cameron, formerly an ensign in the Navy, was a society favorite both in New York and Washington, D. C.

For a time Cameron acted as his wife's screen manager, but later became an actor, both before the camera and on the legitimate stage. At present he is appearing in New York, where he is a member of the Lambs' Club.

The couple separated about five years ago, but both have consistently denied since that they intended to sue for divorce. Miss Stewart took a flying trip to Reno recently, for an unannounced reason, and on her return again denied plans for a divorce.

With her suit for a divorce now a known fact, rumors that she plans to marry the son of a millionaire eastern family, with whom she has been seen much recently, again began to be circulated. Cameron, it is understood, will not contest her suit for divorce.

SOUTHLAND IN PATRIOTIC MOOD

Many Cities Will Celebrate Fourth of July

Mountain and Beach Resorts Prepare for Throngs

War Veterans Take Lead in Sponsoring Festivities

CHINO, July 1. — Independence Day will be celebrated by this city this year as one of the biggest enterprises ever undertaken here. Ontario and Upland have been invited to participate with the Chino American Legion and City Council in celebrating the day. It is believed the three communities will turn out en masse for the festivities. Chino has sponsored a community Fourth of July celebration for the past three years.

Wednesday morning a bomb salute at daybreak will announce to the valley that the great day has arrived. A parade of decorated automobiles and floats is on the program. Lieut.-Gov. Pitts will be speaker of the day.

The afternoon will be devoted to sports and contests. In the evening a great display of fireworks will be set off, followed by the annual American Legion ball. Funds for the occasion have been set aside by the city. The American Legion controls all concessions.

PASADENA CELEBRATION TO BENEFIT FIREMEN

PASADENA, July 1.—A naval battle between two vessels measuring more than 400 feet in length will be the feature of the Fourth Annual Firemen's Benefit Show which will be held in the Rose Bowl at 8 p.m. on the Fourth of July.

Battalion Chief C. L. Bolz declared today that the fireworks display will be highly spectacular. The pyrotechnic naval battle between the Constitution and a pirate ship is, according to Bolz, the most elaborate and costly fireworks set yet conceived. A new departure in fireworks art will be provided by a "moving picture done in fire of George Washington crossing the Delaware."

A number of motion-picture stars from the First National Pictures have reserved boxes, including Donald Reed, Alice White, Thelma Todd, Loretta Young and Charles Murray. Mervin LeRoy, who has completed direction of Colleen Moore's new picture, and Eddie Cline, comedy director, will act as hosts to a number of other stars at the benefit performance.

All proceeds will be turned over to the Pasadena Firemen's Relief Association.

FIREWORKS DISPLAYS ON PIERS AND BLUFFS

NEWPORT BEACH, July 1.—Two big displays of fireworks will be set off here Wednesday, the 4th inst., at the Newport and Balboa piers, and a demonstration of big red flares will take place later on the bluffs of Corona Del Mar.

The fireworks on the two piers will start at 8 p.m., according to H. L. Sherman, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Newport Harbor Chamber of Commerce, who is in charge of arrangements.

The display of fires on the bluffs, which will be the first of its kind in Southern California, will last about five minutes and will be started a few minutes after the finish of the fireworks on the piers.

VETERANS SPONSOR MONROVIA PROGRAM

MONROVIA, July 1. — Spanish War Veterans will sponsor the appearance of the Arcadia municipal band in an open-air concert to be given in Library Park here on the evening of the Fourth at 7 o'clock. A basket supper will precede the concert in the park, according to announcement made by the veterans and the American Legion who are cosponsoring the local celebration of Independence Day.

BALL GAME OPENS SIERRA MADRE FETE

SIERRA MADRE, July 1.—Beginning with a ball game at the school grounds at 2 p.m. and closing with a grand ball in the evening, plans for the Fourth of July celebration are almost completed, according to committees in charge.

Following the ball game, the remainder of the afternoon will be spent in the City Park where races and contests of various kinds will take place under the supervision of Arthur Evans, Scout Master, and James Heasley.

One of the high lights of the day's events will be a picnic dinner at the park which will be followed by a patriotic program to be given by the American Legion. The fire department, under the leadership of Chief W. D. Richards, will drill, using the tower of the old Congregational Church for the purpose of ladder work.

ANTELOPE VALLEY FETE NEAR HUGHES LAKE

PALMDALE, July 1.—On July Fourth Antelope Valley Post of the American Legion will hold a barbecue and carnival at the Muns ranch near Hughes Lake. All roads leading to the celebration will be posted, arrows from Saugus, the Ridge Route, and from Palmdale directing traffic to the ranch.

Joe Romero, the barbecue king, will supervise the preparations of eleven prime beeves, which will assure plenty of well-prepared food.

The Legionnaires have built a large open-air dance pavilion and have engaged three orchestras to furnish the music. The grounds will be thrown open on Tuesday evening for dancing and all other entertainment. Ample space has been provided for any who care to camp Tuesday night.

This will be an opportunity for those who have not seen the devastated area through the San Franciquito Canyon. A new graveled road has been completed through this canyon, passing through the broken dam. This road leads out of the canyon to Munz ranch. Traffic, however, will be directed through Bouquet Canyon, the shortest and best route.

RACING AND SADDLE HORSES AT POMONA

POMONA, July 1.—With all places of business to be closed throughout the day of July 4, Pomonans and many residents of surrounding towns of the valley will flock to the Los Angeles county fairgrounds where the Pomona lodge of Elks will sponsor a program of matinee horse races before the grand stands on the half-mile race track. In addition to the races a feature exhibition of fancy horses from the Carnation farms stables, now located in this city, will be given before the stands.

The July 4 horse races are staged annually by the local Elks to raise money for their charity fund.

LAGUNA BEACH PLANS TO ENTERTAIN 25,000

LAGUNA BEACH, July 1.—That Laguna Beach will entertain more than 25,000 people over the Fourth of July is the prediction of the committee of the Chamber of Commerce in charge of the celebration, which will be made an annual affair.

Final arrangements for the celebration were completed today at the meeting of the celebration committee, headed by R. M. Marriner and including Roy W. Peacock, Edward M. De Ahna, William W. Riddell and R. D. Lippincott, representing the Realty Board, the Merchants' Association, and City Council, respectively. The American Legion Post has decorated the downtown section with flags.

IOWAN BUYS INTEREST IN LA HABRA PAPER

LA HABRA, July 1.—Arthur W. McBride, who has been engaged in the newspaper business in Iowa for twenty years, has bought a half-interest in the La Habra Star, according to an announcement today by A. V. Douglas, who has owned and published the Star since 1916. McBride was born in Tama county, Iowa, and is a graduate of Grinnell College. He formerly owned the Times at Paullina in O'Brien county, the Vidette at Panora, Guthrie county, and the Sentinel in Iowa Falls, which he sold in 1927.

CAMPBELL APPOINTED

SIERRA MADRE, July 1.—J. M. Campbell, president of the Chamber of Commerce, has been appointed to the agriculture and horticulture committee of the Los Angeles County Fair Association. Campbell received word of his appointment Saturday.

YOUNGSTERS PREPARE FOR BIG FOURTH

Patriotic Festivals Scheduled at Southland Resorts

When More Noise Is Made, This Gang Will Make It

Grown-ups of the Venice Amusement and Business Men's Association may spend their thousands on fireworks and special events to entertain the crowds on the Fourth of July, but these youngsters of the beach area will get just as much kick out of their home-made cannon. Little Harold Fletcher, bugler, and Barbara Ann Geiger, who salutes the flag, are not at all worried about the possible bursting of their big gun, for they know Louis Largdy will not load too many firecrackers into it with his ramrod. Edna and Nadine Weinstein and Lorraine Gale are also ready to do their stuff in this artillery practice.

OFFICE BUILDING TO RISE

Three-Story Structure Will Be Started Within Two Months in Downtown Pasadena

PASADENA, July 1.—Construction will be started within sixty days of a three-story store and office building which will occupy the space now occupied by the Carlton Hotel, on Colorado street between Fair Oaks and Raymond avenues, B. O. Kendall, president of the B. O. Kendall Company, announced today. The hotel building will be wrecked at once.

The proposed addition to the central business district will occupy a frontage of 118 feet on Colorado street. Bennet and Haskell, architects, have selected a modified form of Italian and Spanish architecture that they believe will harmonize with other improvements, which will follow the widening of Colorado street between Broadway and Orange Grove avenue.

There will be eight stores on the ground floor, while the second and third floors will be reserved for millinery, tailoring, art, barber and beauty shops and professional offices. Kendall declared the building has been planned on the assumption that there is a demand for a centrally located business block containing space available at low rentals.

Several important building projects are under way here at the present time and the Pasadena Builders' Exchange anticipates an active midsummer season. A $25,000 student union building is to be erected on the Pasadena High School campus, according to Charles Sydnor, sponsor of the project.

Architects Marston and Maybury have prepared plans for two four-family flats to be erected on North Berkeley avenue. O. J. Senum will build a three-story brick apartment building at 442 Marengo avenue, and four $25,000 residences are in process of erection in San Marino.

HUNTINGTON PARK RENUMBERS STREETS

HUNTINGTON PARK, July 1.—The new numbering system for the city will become effective tomorrow. The new system begins at Fifty-second street, the numbers running south to the southern boulevard line, which is Florence avenue, or Seventy-second street. The east and west numbers begin at Regent street, which is the 2050 block, and continue east to the eastern boundary line of the city, which is the 4200-block. The new system has been effective in South Gate for more than a year. The systems in these cities are an extension of the Los Angeles city-numbering system.

ODD FELLOW LODGE IN NEW QUARTERS

HUNTINGTON PARK, July 1.—Huntington Park Lodge of Odd Fellows, having obtained a nine-year lease on the second and third floors of the Frank Dresman Building at 6441 Pacific Boulevard, moved to their new quarters yesterday. These rooms were occupied by the local aerie of Eagles until a few weeks ago, when they moved to other quarters.

DEAF TO HOLD CONVENTION

Lip-Reading Tournament Will Be Unique Feature; Sessions at Oak Glen Cover Six Days

OAK GLEN, July 1.—A lip-reading tournament, announced as a spelling bee, will be the principle feature of the closing session of the second western conference for the hard-of-hearing to be held at Friendship Cottage here the 3rd to 18th inst., inclusive.

Miss Olive Harris of Friendship College says that the first conference held last year attracted many people interested in helps for the hard-of-hearing from many places on the Pacific Coast and that the attendance this year will be much greater.

The convention is to open Tuesday evening with a general get-acquainted party. The next day will be "Friendly Day." Miss Harris will give an address of welcome and there will be reports from all who attended the National Federation conference in St. Louis.

The Fourth of July will be celebrated with an old-fashioned picnic dinner on Pine Bench and the remainder of the day will be spent in entertainment and other features.

At the morning session on the 5th inst. Mrs. Theodore Poindexter, vice-president, will report on the St. Louis convention and Miss Alice Dimock will speak on social-service work in New York.

Mrs. Mary Price will speak on public school work for adults in the afternoon and Miss Florence Messner on teaching methods. Miss C. N. Miss Eleanor Holland of Huntington Lake will then tell of a recent trip to Cuba.

Prof. E. R. Nichols of the University of Redlands is to speak on the importance of speech in our daily life and Miss Alberta Allard is to speak in the afternoon.

H. D. Hicker of the rehabilitation bureau of the State Board of Education, will speak on Saturday of the work being done and Miss Ethel Hilliard of San Francisco will tell of public-school lessons for the deaf child. Then on Sunday there will be a hike, a lip-reading spelling bee and a farewell dinner.

Taxes Come in Rapidly

SAN DIEGO, July 1.—Herbert A. Croghan, County Tax Collector, and now City Tax Collector as well, has received more than 70 per cent of the city taxes for the fiscal half-year. The half-year collection was made imperative as a result of the court's ordering the city and county tax offices to consolidate.

Croghan had received $791,090.71 up to yesterday morning and a last-minute rush crowded his offices yesterday which was the final day on which the city allowed a 5 per cent discount on tax payments. Property owners are permitted to mail in their checks in payment of taxes and Croghan has a large accumulation of mail to open. He estimates that yesterday's collections and the mail remittances will increase the amount to $1,200,000. He was charged with the collection of $1,700,000.

Payments made during July will earn the property owners a discount of 3 per cent and those who pay in August will get 2 per cent off. City taxes for the half-year become delinquent October 1, and the new tax levy for both city and county becomes due October 15.

ALHAMBRA MINISTER GIVES LAST SERMON

ALHAMBRA, July 1.—Rev. Carlton L. Kirk preached his last sermons today as pastor of the Baptist church. At both services the church was crowded to hear the farewell addresses of the minister who has occupied the pulpit for ten years.

He and his family will leave this week for Oakland, where he will become pastor, on September 1, of the Melrose Baptist Church.

CITY BUYS INHALATOR

GLENDORA, July 1.—An inhalator for emergency calls has just been purchased by the fire department, according to Chief P. Midkaff. The Glendora fire department is the third in the San Gabriel Valley to purchase such equipment, Midkaff said. Other cities recently adding inhalators to their equipment are Pomona and Arcadia.

DUNHAM GROUP DROPS RECALL

Committee Will Ask Board to Reinstate Jurist

Deposed Magistrate Speaks at Forum Conference

Directors' Spokesman Admits Lack of Tact

PASADENA, July 1.—Overruling a resolution threatening recall of the members of the City Board of Directors if they failed to reinstate Frank C. Dunham as city police judge, an audience of 800 at the Center Forum today authorized the appointment of a committee to await on the City Board Tuesday and ask for Dunham's reappointment.

The audience was cautioned against using the recall threat by Rabbi Joseph Jasin, chairman of the meeting, and by several other speakers. Robert S. Allen, S. J. Kent, president of the United Church Brotherhood, and Eugene Bassett were named on the committee. The resolution was adopted after Dunham, Kent and Allen had talked.

DUNHAM ON PLATFORM

Dunham declared that he had been ousted because he had dared to do his duty. He said that Chairman C. R. Taylor and Director J. T. Jenkins had interceded for a prominent Los Angeles minister arrested for intoxication. Dunham explained his position in the bail bond controversy and scouted the report that he had been dismissed from office because of his "personality" or asserted lack of decorum in the courtroom.

According to Dunham members of the Board of City Directors never visited his courtroom although he said he had invited them on several occasions. Dunham declared he favored an investigation of the court and police department, stating "how do you expect the laws to be enforced when officers use liquor?"

OFFICIALS CRITICISED

Kent criticised the action of the Board of Directors last week in dismissing Dunham from office without giving him a hearing or considering the petitions protesting the contemplated action. He declared the right to petition was an American right and that one of the causes which brought on the Revolutionary War was the failure of the British monarch to consider the colonists' petitions.

The action of the board in failing to consider the petitioners in the Dunham case, Kent said, did not represent the true spirit of Pasadena which he said was that of fair play.

Allen appeared as spokesman for the Board of City Directors, defending their right to dismiss Dunham. However, he expressed the belief that the board had not been tactful in handling the case.

FIREWORKS BANNED AT SIERRA MADRE

SIERRA MADRE, July 1.—That fireworks will be taboo here on the Fourth of July, and that the law against the use of firecrackers of all kinds will be strictly enforced, is voiced by Chief of Police Keegan, who states that the only kind of noise-makers permissible under the city regulations are caps and cap pistols and the type of cannon that uses carbide of calcium as an explosive.

The stringent restriction against fireworks here is made necessary by the forest-fire danger, Keegan said. Ranger Vetter also announces that fireworks are strictly prohibited in all forest areas.

AZUSA CHAMBER TO CONSIDER AIRPORT

AZUSA, July 1.—Proposal to lease eighty acres on San Gabriel avenue, at the mouth of San Gabriel Canyon, for use as a municipal airport will be discussed at a meeting Tuesday night of the board of directors of the local chamber of commerce, according to S. E. Skidmore, secretary.

Elliott H. Barrett, secretary of the Commercial Aircraft Association, declared to officials of the chamber that if the field were leased he could induce large transportation planes to land there, Skidmore said.

PASTOR WILL FIGHT SMITH CANDIDACY

MONROVIA, July 1.—Offering his services to the Republican committee in the campaign to defeat Al Smith as President, Dr. Fletcher G. Watson, pastor of the First Methodist Church, stated today that he is ready to take the stump in an effort to prevent the election of Smith.

According to Watson, this is the first time he has ever taken a step of this kind, but he declares himself impelled to action because he regards the choice of Smith as a national calamity and the Presidential campaign a campaign of moral issues.

"I am against Smith because he declares himself a modificationist," Watson said.

MONROVIA PAY ROLL BUDGET DECREASED

MONROVIA, July 1.—Adopted by the City Council yesterday at the final meeting of the 1927-28 fiscal year, the annual pay roll budget of the city of Monrovia showed a slight decrease over last year. The approximate monthly pay roll is $11,000, the budget showed. Several readjustments were made, but no salary increases were allowed for the 1928-29 year. A total of seventy-six employees was listed on the budget.

During the past year, a total of $34,556.80 was gained over the estimated expenditure budget, Clyde Daniels, purchasing agent, announced. All bills were ordered paid.

BEACH LIFE-SAVERS IN ACTION

Throngs Cheer as Many Are "Rescued"

SANTA MONICA, July 1.—Crowds on the municipal pier and the beach in front of the Santa Monica bath-house got plenty of thrills this morning during the annual life-guard demonstration. Venice, Ocean Park and Santa Monica life-savers and crack swimmers competed for handsome silver cups and trophies.

The life-boat rescue race was won by the Los Angeles Municipal Life Guards Summer and Pollard. The life-can tow went to Lifeguards Starrett, Peterson, Poe and Sands, members of the Red Cross Volunteer Life-saving Corps of Crystal Beach. George Wolt, Venice, police lifeguard chief, won the 200-yard dash and 300-yard swim, with Life Guards Klein and Foster, Los Angeles municipal crew, placing second in the two events, respectively.

Always a great drawing card for lovers of aquatic prowess, this year's contest included the demonstration of all the latest equipment for rescue work at sea and in the surf. Close finishes and fast work marked all the contests, and the life-saving stunts were so realistic that tourists in the crowd gasped and cheered when the "rescued" persons, all good actors, were brought ashore or into the boats.

W. W. Madge, director of boating and beaches for Los Angeles, arranged the contest and checked the winners through a point-system of scoring. Judges included Reggie Harrison, who is going to compete in the Olympics; Capt. Knute Knudson, and Capt. George Watkins. Many life guards who have won medals for heroic rescue work were entered, and ideal swimming conditions made thousands of spectators don bathing suits and enjoy the surf.

Cups and trophies were donated by the Deauville Club and the municipalities whose beach crews competed.

COMMUNITY ORCHESTRA FOR AZUSA

Youthful Musicians of City in First Concert on August 5

AZUSA, July 1. — Azusa's first community orchestra has just been organized under the direction of Mrs. T. R. Austin and the personnel includes mostly young musicians of the city, numbering sixteen. The orchestra is booked for a concert on August 5, to be given at a community church meeting here.

The orchestra had its inception about a year ago and at that time was composed of Boy Scouts alone under the direction of Keith Vosburgh, Scout master of Troop No. 1. Three Boy Scouts are now included in the personnel and the youngest member of the orchestra, Volney Spaulding, Eagle Scout, is proving his abilities at the piano. He is only 14 years of age. Other Scouts in the orchestra are Penland Richards and Earl Darrow.

The orchestra also boasts a family of musicians in Victor Eggars and his two children, Vera and Glenn Eggars. The father plays the baritone horn, the daughter a violin, and the son a cornet.

The two sons of Mrs. Austin, John and Charles, both versatile musicians, play in the orchestra. Others are Keith Vosburgh, Roy Lampson, Charles Keergard, Robert Harmon, Jack Lampson, Calvin Bream, Gerald Perkins, Robert Ayers and Margaret Downing.

SIDEWALKS LAID AT LOS ALAMITOS

LOS ALAMITOS, July 1.—Construction of sidewalks and curbs in the old town of Los Alamitos, embracing an area of thirty-nine blocks and including 63,000 square feet of walk and 14,000 feet of curbing, has been completed under the supervision of F. D. Monty, inspector.

The work has been done by the Riverside Engineering and Construction Company under the direction of the county road department. The streets will be graded and macadamized by the county road department.

TITLE SEARCH ORDERED

SIERRA MADRE, July 1. — Upon recommendation of City Attorney Baker, the Title Insurance and Trust Company was authorized by the City Council last night to make the necessary title searches and furnish guarantees in connection with the rights of way for the improvement of Central avenue. Their bid was $3000, other title companies bidding from $3200 to $11,000 for the service.

LUNCHEONS SUSPENDED

GLENDORA, July 1.—Weekly luncheon meetings of the Chamber of Commerce will be discontinued during the months of July and August, according to announcement made by John S. L. Cooke, secretary. The chamber closed an active season with a week festival.

FIRST-CLASS POSTOFFICE

VAN NUYS, July 1.—The Van Nuys postoffice receipts for the fiscal year just ending total about $40,500, indicating now that the local office has qualified as an office of first rank. This means that the office will now be ranked in the first division by the national authorities and that more help will be given to Postmaster E. D. Gibson to increase his postal delivery facilities.

Because of the many protests of passengers against riding in omnibus No. 13 of the Carlisle (Eng.) line, city officials have permitted the company to change the number to 12A.

NEW TEACHERS ANNOUNCED

Complete Staff for New School Term at Redlands Will Be Completed Within Short Time

REDLANDS, July 1.—H. G. Clement, Superintendent of the City Schools, has announced several new teachers for the schools here for next year. The staff is not complete but will be in a short time, it is expected. Three new faces will be seen on the high-school faculty.

FIDO MUST DON HIS NEW TAG TODAY

Fifty Thousand Dogs in Los Angeles Should Have Their New Licenses

Fifty thousand dogs within the limits of Los Angeles must wear new license tags for the fiscal year beginning today, according to Rodney Williams, general manager of the Humane Animal Commission.

More than $1000 worth of license tags, fixed at $3 for male and $4 for female dogs, have been sold, and the department will be busy for the next few days issuing the licenses. After sufficient time has been given to allow every dog owner a chance to obtain the new tags, the department's ten inspectors will begin their regular house-to-house rounds to ascertain whether there are any delinquents. Canines without the new licenses will be impounded.

It is estimated that Los Angeles dog lovers will pay approximately $50,000 this year for the privilege of owning their pets.

The Chicago Woman's Club of California, the Illinois Woman's Press Association, the Unity group meeting at Blanchard Hall, friends who had lived at Miss Stewart's hotel, and W. M. Strother, the funeral director, all joined to provide fitting burial for the woman who was a charter member of the Illinois Woman's Press Association.

The double funeral service will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. today at the Strothers establishment, 6240 Hollywood Boulevard. Interment will be in the Snyder family plot at Forest Lawn.

At the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios John Lancaster, head casting director, has perfected plans for filing vocal records in conjunction with screen tests so that either or both will be available for directors selecting talent for talking-motion pictures.

The test of Miss Torres's voice was made under scientific direction at the recording studio. Every contract player on the M.-G.-M. lot is to be given a vocal test in the near future, it is announced.

The wife asked for a divorce and the custody of their three children, Ardis, 15 years of age; Josephine, 12, and Clarice, 8. A property settlement, the court was told, was made out of court. Mrs. Payne was given the decree and the custody of the children.

ARREST VALUED AT $10,000,000

San Diego Business Man Will Settle for $1,750,000

False Incarceration on City Offense Charged

Council Will Discuss Deal at Session Today

SAN DIEGO, July 1.—As a result of false arrest by the city police department, James O'Connell, proprietor of a novelty store at 1604 F street, has warned the City Council that unless the city settles with him for $1,750,000 he will bring suit for damages against the city for $10,000,000.

O'Connell was arrested last week ago by Patrolman McLean on a charge of violating City Ordinance 10731 by passing out advertising cards or bills in front of his Fourth-street establishment. Police Court records show that he deposited $10 bail, was tried, was fined $25, but that sentence was suspended and the bail money returned.

O'Connell first took his case to Mayor Clark, declaring that he had been arrested without cause. The Mayor, as head of the police department, promised to investigate. O'Connell sent a letter to the Council, in which he says:

"I have a case of false arrest against the city and am willing to settle for $1,750,000, but if you force me sue, I'll sue for $10,000,000, which will make an awful hole in the taxpayers."

The city on many occasions has been threatened with damage suits and has frequently been sued, but the amount named by O'Connell is the largest in local history.

O'Connell's letter will come before the City Council at its session tomorrow morning, at which time Mayor Clark is expected to give a verbal recital of his interview with O'Connell.

The place is to be made ready for occupancy by August 1, on which date it is announced Pierce will marry Miss Joan Burroughs, daughter of Edgar Rice Burroughs, author of the famous Tarzan stories. Because of his athletic ability, Pierce was chosen to play Tarzan when the Tarzan stories were filmed, acting the hero so well that culminated into a wedding engagement with Miss Burroughs. The bride-to-be has lived at "Tarzana," the home of her father on Ventura Boulevard, and has been present when most of the adventures of Tarzan were written.

OLD NATIONS' DOWNFALL CHARGED TO THEIR SINS

'Governments Resemble Individuals in Need for Righteousness,' Declares Dr. Baxter

"America needs not only righteousness, but that form and fashion of righteousness which is Christian," declared Dr. John M. Baxter in his sermon on "The Old and the New Fourth of July," preached yesterday at Rosewood Methodist Church.

"Sin does for a nation what it does for an individual—degrades and ruins," said Dr. Baxter. "History is a dismal roll call of dead nationalities. Egypt, Nineveh, Babylon, Greece—what are they? Where are they? Ghosts of states dragged down and trampled out by sin. They had genius, intelligence, wealth, but they lacked character. Our own beloved country is in danger from the same causes which wrecked ancient empires.

"Reflect upon some of our sins, which may be called national—gambling, heathen Sabbath, fearful drink habits, political corruption, deadly 'isms,' which march under the red flag of anarchy. America needs that form and fashion of righteousness which is Christian. The Golden Rule should be the working rule in society and politics. The dreams of the founders of this republic, of prayer and faith, must be realized.

"We do not wish for a union of State and church, nor do we seek to govern the State through the church. But we do propose to identify Christian citizens with public affairs, and thus infuse into industries, policies and administrations the spirit of Jesus Christ. The grandest stride toward political righteousness ever made was when Franklin, Jefferson and Washington devised Federal Unionism. Only once has the peace been broken, and then because there was one subject on which our fathers did not federate, but compromised. We invoke this triumphant principle on behalf of law and order. Christians are urged to federate against those sins which are a reproach to any people."

SAYS REASONS SHOULD GOVERN ALL EMOTIONS

Adrian Sasha, author of "The Laws of Life," spoke yesterday at the Laws of Life fellowship of Santa Monica, on "Nine Ways of Mind Development." He said in part:

"While we accept the definition of Jesus that 'God Is Love' rather than the definition of Spinoza that 'God Is Mind,' we at the same time realize that it is up to our minds to understand how to express our divine qualities. It is said that 'hell is paved with good intentions;' it is equally true that humanity has been suffering because of not understanding how to express its divine attributes and urges. Fairness is better than pity, and reason is better than emotion in many instances. The feeling of love is always good but the way we express it decides its constructiveness. Mind-power must aid divine life."

Dr. Bruce Brown of South Park Christian Church preached yesterday on "The Plan of the Ages." He said in part:

"There are some outstanding facts in the progress of mankind that show that the hand of destiny is guiding us by a divine plan. Until our day, man has ever moved from the East to the West. Until our day no religion, philosophy or system of government has ever got a foothold east of the place of its origin. In this western world ours is the heritage of the ages. The circuit of the globe has been completed and the tide is turning from west to east. The occident is now to make its contribution to the Orient. Palestine was the promised land of old for it was the only gateway to the New World and the Jews were the chosen people for they lived at the appointed time and place to sow the seeds of a world religion. America is the promised land for the new age, for its ideal and institutions are to be carried to the ends of the earth. We cannot escape the responsibilities of being the chosen people of God."

HOLLYWOOD BAPTISTS HEAR DR. K. TUPPER

"The Bible as the Variable Word of God" was discussed by Dr. Kerr Boyce Tupper yesterday in his sermon at the West Hollywood Baptist Church. Dr. Tupper said in part:

"Were one asked the meaning of Biblical inspiration, he might well answer that it is the co-operation of the Spirit of God and the spirit of man so as to produce and to preserve, in terms of human speech, and proportionately, such sayings and doings of God and of man as are necessary to interpret God's nature and to inspire man's life. Were the further question asked as to the proofs of an inspired Bible, the answer might be: first, the testimony of the inspired writers; second, the corroborative testimony of Jesus Christ; third, the character of the teachings found in the Scriptures; and, fourth, the universal adaptation of these Bible teachings to the heart and life of humanity."

RADIO PROBLEM BECOMES ACUTE

Storm of Protests Follows Plan of Elimination

Independent Broadcasters Organize to Fight

Charges Made That Chain Stations Want Monopoly

BY DR. RALPH L. POWER

Plans of the Federal Radio Commission to eliminate a large number of stations are arousing a storm of protest throughout the East which already has come to the attention of members of Congress and bids fair to make the commission's hearing on the 9th inst. the occasion for a sharp attack upon its policies.

At the present time the New Jersey situation is outstanding in importance. Stations in that State that have been cited to appear before the commission have adopted the attitude that the proposed elimination of 162 stations will redound to the benefit of the alleged "large station monopoly." Members of the New Jersey delegation in Congress have received a number of letters from station operators in their State charging that the commission plans to sweep New Jersey clear of small stations in order that the surplus power may be given to WJZ, or to some other station that will affiliate itself with the Radio Corporation of America.

FAVORITISM CHARGED

If, as has been intimated by members of the commission, the stations are to be tried for violation of regulations, such as being off their assigned wave length, there has been no announcement made of the charges against the individual stations, nor, it has been charged, have any complaints been filed against the larger stations. A letter to Senator Edwards of New Jersey points out that one of the large eastern stations recently failed to heed SOS calls for approximately fifteen minutes, which is a violation of the law. Many of the small stations, Senator Edwards was informed, have installed the best apparatus that they could secure and have succeeded at maintaining their frequency well within the limit prescribed by the commission.

It is anticipated that the hearing on July 9 will see a revival of the charges made during the hearings before Congressional committees last session that the commission is discriminating in favor of the chain station organizations and against the small broadcasters.

STATIONS ORGANIZE

The establishment of an organization of independent broadcasters to fight for the retention of their local broadcasting facilities has been perfected, according to reports to Washington, and the new association will be represented at the coming hearing. Clinton R. White of WCRW, Chicago, is president of the organization; M. Mayer of WPEP, Waukegan, Ill., first vice-president; Charles Messter of WCBS, Springfield, Ill., second vice-president; D. H. Harrell of WHBL, Sheboygan, Wis., secretary, and Ben Sanders of WKBB, Joliet, Ill., treasurer. The directors of the association are Hersh Miller, WCLS, Muncie, Ind.; Charles Middleton, WRAF, La Porte, Ind.; Noble B. Watson, WKBP, Indianapolis, Ind.; C. L. White, WJAK, Kokomo, Ind.; C. L. Beardsley, WHBP, Rock Island, Ill.; C. W. Wermich, WKBI, Chicago, and C. L. Carrell, WHBM, Chicago.

Attacking the attitude of the Federal commission, the Independent Broadcasters' Association asserts that the right of communities to have local stations, as they have local newspapers, is at stake. "No one would suggest that fifty smaller newspapers should be destroyed to make room for a single national magazine," it is declared, "yet the Radio Commission has announced that 162 radio stations must be taken off the air, and that several hundred more must be destroyed later, to make room for the larger stations that the commission believes should be given exclusive rights.

"The commission, it has been announced, intends to allot only four wave lengths for local broadcast. On these it proposes to put 200 of the smaller stations now in existence, then to take those that are left off the air. At the same time, the commission plans to allot eighty-five channels to 150 favored stations. In other words, less than 5 per cent of the air is to be given to community broadcasts and 95 per cent to the larger stations."

KHJ PLANS NEW PROGRAM

Something new, hot, complicated, puzzling, thrilling and invigoratingly different has been set up on the great stage behind locked doors in the Don Lee Building, and the veil will be drawn aside tonight when KHJ comes on the air at 8 o'clock, with Charlie Wellman as master of ceremonies. The program will be high-pressure all the way through, with sizzling tunes, melodies and songs, and playful patter planned to make a veteran clown laugh, says the management of the station.

Sturdy Vikings Plan Wassail but Pay Dearly

A hankering for the modern substitute for mead, on the part of four sturdy descendants of the Vikings, cost them $400 in cash and jewelry Saturday night, according to police reports.

Lowell Fynakov, Exner Peterson, Harold Christiansen and Albert Berti, all residing at 317 South Flower street, wished to hold wassail and sought the aid of two strangers in getting the necessary liquor. The men invited them to ride out to get it. A car containing two other strangers followed.

Instead of going to a liquor source, the four men assert, the first pair drove them to Lookout Drive and there, at the point of guns and with the assistance of the second duo, relieved them of the money and trinkets. Police are investigating.

HOPWOOD COMEDY ENJOYED

Audience at "Why Men Leave Home" Responds to "Message" and Lines

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT

Wives are not always neglected; oftentimes the husbands are, too. And if a wife leaves her husband much alone, she must endure the consequences, whatever they may happen to be And they generally are—the consequences!

Some such theory as this is expounded in Avery Hopwood's "Why Men Leave Home" which opened its engagement last night at the President Theater, drawing a capacity audience. The show is the second presented under the Henry Duffy management at this playhouse, and, judging by the almost continuous laughter, promises to be a popular hit.

Hopwood's play is pattern, but it has some redeeming moments. Of course, the author succeeds in inventing one of his inevitable pretexts for showing a bedroom and there are approximately the familiar number of naughty innuendoes that one finds in his lighter farces. However, there is a relieving spell or two, notably the culmination of the final act, with its Barrie-like borrowing of child charm and sentiment.

"Why Men Leave Home" isn't a new play. Indeed, the well-versed theatergoer knows that it is a rather old play, it debut having been made all of five or six seasons ago. That naturally "is" old for a Hopwood show. His line of humor is not of the sort that survives the wear and tear, and quite a few of the lines in "Why Men Leave Home" seem rather passe.

The play has its brighter moments, though, and is exceptionally well enacted in several instances. Highest in list of nominations is Jason Robards in his easy and finished work as the principal husband; Carl Gerrard as the somewhat sappy husband, and the little youngster Anita Fremault, who helps to contribute the surprising touch of poignancy in the closing scene.

There is creditable work by Purnell Pratt, Gladys George and Alice Buchanan. Miss George has the leading role and achieves a rather pleasureable reality in her portrayal as a whole. Gerrard and Miss Buchanan furnish merriment, as does Purnell Pratt, who is cast with Gerrard as one of two erring spouses.

Zeffie Tilbury is seen in the rather tiresome role of the advising grandmother, which she manages to portrary efficiently, despite the character's obviously boresome traits. Robert Adams and Helen Brooks are others in the cast.

Duffy's productions practically always have much to commend them. Were "Why Men Leave Home" less capably presented it would, I am afraid, lack the mirth-provoking freshness which it still seems to possess. The dialogue is somewhat spicier than in the usual Duffy play.

The settings designed by Rita Glover are amazingly fine, the stage being adorned with ultra furniture in the boudoir scene.

Fireworks? Belasco Has Need of None

The management of the Belasco Theater held conclave yesterday to decide upon what to do as a special feature for their two Independence Day performances. Several things were suggested, from reading the Declaration of Independence to the stage hands shooting off fireworks in front of the theater. Nothing was acceptable.

Sam Behrendt, local insurance magnate and inveterate playgoer, chanced to come out into the lobby during the intermission and was appealed to for a suggestion.

"What can we do to create some fireworks around here?" Fred Butler inquired.

"Fireworks?" snorted the indignant Behrendt. "There are enough fireworks in this show at any time to satisfy the most patriotic. You could not create any more excitement if you had William Courtenay or 'The Spider' shoot off all the Roman candles in town. Let the mystery alone."

VITAPHONE IN ENGLAND

Charles R. Condon, who wrote the scenario for the first Vitaphone picture to be made in England, Ben Hecht's "The Fiorentine Dagger," has been rewarded by a second Vitaphone assignment. This also will be made in England and as yet has not been titled. Howard Bretherton has just completed the direction of Condon's story, "Caught In The Fog," which was made with Vitaphone interpolations.

United Artists Proffer Duo

Merna Kennedy and Mary Philbin

Are the feminine leads of, respectively, Charles Chaplin's "The Circus" at the United Artists' Theater, and D. W. Griffith's "Drums of Love" at the Broadway Palace.

RADIO MINSTRELS INSTANT HIT

The Dailey Paskman Radio Minstrels—minus, apparently, Dailey Paskman—made a sweeping conquest of the Hillstreet audience yesterday evening. A loud speaker that was too unwieldy to be moved on and off the stage with impunity remained in view throughout the entire show. When the Paskman act started, the loud speaker went into action simultaneously. It was very loud.

The silver-voiced tenor proved the particular star of this organization from Station WGBS, New York. He demonstrated a fluent vocal power, which needed no electrical amplification to reach the topmost tier of seats in the auditorium, his numbers including "Just a Memory" (some memories never do die,) "Was It a Dream?" and "My Little Cabin of Dreams."

A gentleman named Busby—his first name, we are assured, is Nate—supplied much of the comedy with which the act is liberally sprinkled; and others in the list of twenty—stage and radio stars—twenty, were Jack Rice, Dave Irwin, George Zorn, Kramer and Stone, the diamond-studded quartet and the minstrel band.

In passing, it may be noted that the master of ceremonies, the head man or what-you-will of this unique aggregation, looks, acts and talks exactly like the heavy in "The Old Homestead." The local stage has not been trod by such thundering histrionism since the last of the ten-twent-thirt' melodramas was heaved into the onrushing sea of the cinema. If this man does any announcing for Station WGBS, the fact accounts for the persistent "blast" which many an experimenting engineer would give his good right arm to eliminate from receiving sets.

Cortini, the magician who produces metal discs from thin air (even thick air, it is accepted, would be no deterrent to his accomplishment) wins honorary mention on the new Hillstreet bill.

Dare and Wahl, whose awkward acrobatics are inspired by the skill that conceals skill, are, in the argot, surefire. By now they have shown themselves able to provoke laughter anywhere—even in $5.50 New York revues sponsored by Earl Carroll.

Flo and Ollie Walters, two strange girls with strange voices, appeal more and more as their turn progresses. Theirs is a curious charm disclosed in songs, stories and dances.

Finally the stage program has the Collegiates, with Tommy and Eleanor, in "A Frolic of Youth." This develops into a potpourri of semistandard selections, high-kick and aesthetic dances; and is, in fact, everything but collegiate in tone.

Marion Jackson's story of early California was the guiding reason for the production of "The Canyon of Adventure," a melodrama directed by Albert Rogell. Ken Maynard is the dashing star, and in the cast are the alluring Virginia Brown Faire and Tarzan, the horse—no, the wonder horse.

ORPHEUM BILLING ALL-STAR

Bert Wheeler, Mr. Eugene O'Brien, Brox Sisters and Others Entertain

BY PHILIP K. SCHEUER

To the theoretical accompaniment of loudly beaten drums, reverberating cannonade and bombs bursting in air, Liberty Week was ushered in at the Orpheum Theater yesterday afternoon. It brought with it, in honor of the occasion, a bill which the management unhesitatingly characterizes as all-star, adding for argument's sake the names of Bert Wheeler, the Three Brox Sisters, the California Collegians and Mr. Eugene O'Brien, also known as Eugene O'Brien.

The wide-eyed, prankish boy who is more or less a favorite from coast to coast (I am speaking now of Bert Wheeler,) still retains that old air of familiarity which makes him one with an audience from the moment of his appearance. Assisted in no small measure by a hearty fellow named Al Clair, a chic little lady who calls herself Bernice Spear, and later on by the California Collegians, Wheeler has but little material and needs less. If you cannot by any stretch of the imagination visualize three performers in intimate tete-a-tete with an assemblage of Mr. Keith-Albee-Orpheum's dearest friends—not such an assemblage, at any rate, as comes together twice daily on Broadway near Ninth—you have only to see them for yourself.

Because, for a considerable portion of their act this week, Bert and Al and Miss Spear seat themselves comfortably along the line of footlights, dangle their legs, munch fruit and sandwiches, and talk the most diverting nonsense. And the people out front love them for it; indeed, had the lady answered to whom Bert addressed the question, "Isn't this silly, madam?" she undoubtedly would have said, "Yes—but go on."

Mr. O'Brien has a playlet called "Restitution," by Tom Barry. The scene is a London apartment; and to it have come this night six men who went through Oxford together. One of them, their host, is Mr. O'Brien; and it is easy to see that he has something up his sleeve.

What it is he reveals when, draped across the grand piano in the full glare of the first spotlight from the right, he recounts the tragic sequel to his youth: how his beloved wife—that is her picture over the doorway—was inveigled away and left to die in Barcelona—Barcelona, of all places—by a scoundrel who stands, to put it bluntly, in this very room at this very minute!

All this is embarrassing for the five guests, as you will understand but I am not going to give you a hint of the denouement other than to say that it involves a plot device which Messrs. Edgar Allan Poe, Ambrose Bierce, Irvin Cobb et al. found effective long ere Barry did.

When it is all over, Mr. O'Brien laughs, as the expression goes, fit to kill. A trifle belatedly; there is already a dead man in the room.

The California Collegians have not changed their program much, if you happen to recollect it. The feature is a descriptive rendition of "A Day at the Circus."

There are moments of enjoyment scattered through the other acts, notably those provided by the Brox Sisters and the Le Grohs, both recent headliners at local houses. The Brox Sisters were, quite probably, the first popular girl-harmonizers.

Tex McLeod, modeling his rope-twirling activities after Will Rogers, comments on this and that; and Al Shaw and Sam Lee, held over from last week, indulge in humorous by-play, which is, if the truth must be told, much funnier than they themselves are.

Dempsey Family Will Make Bows

Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor will make a personal appearance on the stage at the Metropolitan tonight to pay tribute to their friend, Ruth Roland, who is appearing in person all week at that theater, it is announced.

This is believed to be the first time that the ex-heavyweight champion of the world and his wife ever have been introduced in a downtown theater, except at benefit performances.

Miss Roland has received wires from numerous other celebrities who are planning to visit her during her stay at the Metropolitan.

LITTLE MISS AT PANTAGES

Little Miss Irene Lambert, who has a part opposite Bessie Love in "Sally of the Scandals," will be seen on the screen and stage tonight at Pantages Theater. In Sally, this little girl plays one of the picture's most dramatic and sympathetic roles, that of the crippled child for whom the older sister, Bessie Love, makes her great sacrifice.

"HOT NEWS" IS LIVELY FILM PLAY

Bebe Daniels Appears as Camera-Girl; Ruth Roland Act Scores

BY MARQUIS BUSHY

"Hot News," which opened Saturday at the Metropolitan, has the advantage of being the first picture to show locally which extols the daring of the news cameramen. In this particular case, I must add, the news camerawomen.

This Paramount picture, starring the lively Bebe Daniels, has any number of thrill sequences, a novel opening, a few moments of comedy, and an utterly implausible plot.

"Hat News" relates the rivalry between the Sun and Mercury news reels. As that bright young fellow, George Marion, Jr., so cleverly expresses it, "The Sun is setting and the Mercury is rising."

Then the daughter of the owner of the Sun gets on the job and scoop, "Scoop," the star cameraman of the Mercury. The daughter by the way has just graduated with a Ph. D. degree from Wellesley.

I don't know what else they teach at this fashionable college for young women, but they must have a marvelous course in camera work. The daughter, Bebe, of course, starts right out making the experienced cameramen look like rank amateurs.

The greatest rivalry between the girl and "Scoop" develops in an effort to photograph a Maharajah visiting in this country. The titled Indian is guest at a garden party and to gain access to the closely watched grounds the two rivals disguise themselves as entertainers. The Apache dance which they are forced to do is screamingly funny but far too much footage is allotted it. The climax of the picture comes when the girl's camera catches an attack upon the Maharajah.

Bebe Daniels gives a pleasing interpretation of the girl in the case. She hangs with her camera from the Statue of Liberty, goes out to sinking vessels and performs other hazardous feats. Neil Hamilton is right in character as the self-assured "Scoop."

The Metropolitan no longer provides programs and as my memory failed to photograph all the names as the cast was flashed on the screen, I'll have to forego mention of an excellent supporting cast.

"Hot News" was directed by Clarence Badger.

Ruth Roland, who appears in a stage act of her own this week, received a great ovation at last night's performance. She has a good, but not strong voice, and a pleasant way of selling her numbers. Her novel manner of presenting "Me and My Shadow," an imitation of Ted Lewis, brought down the house.

"Steps and Steppers" is one of the liveliest of Publix revues. The Manhattan Steppers, six men and six girls, present some difficult ensemble tap dancing. Glenn and Jenkins, two blackface comedians, have an amusing line of patter. There is a boy who whistles well, whether or not you like whistling solos, and a young woman with a good voice.

Jules Buffano has a high-class method of directing the revue, and scores with his song number. This is Buffano's second week as guest conductor.

BELMONT PROFFERS NEW DOUBLE BILL

For those who cannot make up their minds which to see, spoken drama or silent, the Belmont again this week has an offering which encompasses both.

Austin Strong's charming and whimsical drama of three crochety old gentlemen, "Three Wise Fools," is the stage fare, while Danny O'Shea and Pauline Garon frolic in a riotous comedy, "Dugan of the Dugouts" on the screen.

A thoroughly delightful, yet melodramatically suspenseful piece of stagecraft is "Three Wise Fools." There is sly humor in its line, there is pathos, romance and yet a strong melodramatic current. One of the favorites of the New York stage a few seasons ago, the play has lost none of its original charm for the theatergoer.

Fred Cummings in its Belmont presentation has cast Richard Cramer, Ray Whittaker and Bram Nossen as the three old gentlemen, while J. Anthony Smythe and Miss Opal Cotton furnish the love interest.

O'Shea's characterization of a cocky soldier with an unflagging zestful flair for deviltment of one kind or another gives "Dugan of the Dugouts" a twist that places it somewhat without the classification of "films of the funny side of the war." O'Shea may overact but he is funny.

The opening scenes show him as a slick-haired jazz hound, winner with Pauline Garon of a dancing competition. When it looks as if a uniformed sergeant of the marines is going to steal his girl, Danny decides to enlist. His rookie days are hardly completed when along comes the war.

Ernest Hilliard, J. P. McGowan, Alice Knowland, Sid Smith and Arthur Thasso also have roles. Robert Ray directed for Crescent Pictures.

"Dracula" Goes Into New Week

"Dracula," Bram Stoker's thriller adapted to the stage, in Los Angeles after three years in London and one year in New York City, is now in the second week of its limited engagement at Erlanger's Biltmore Theater.

The nurse continues on duty at every performance to take care of the fainting cases, and at matinees she has been kept busy, the management warns.

Bela Lugosi, the Hungarian actor, is in the role of Count Dracula, the human vampire, and Hazel Whitmore has the part of Lucy, his chief victim.

JUDGE HAHN DUE TO TAKE REINS

Superior Court Presidency to Be Assumed Today

Change Follows Expiration of McLucas's Term

Assignments on Municipal Bench Announced

Administration of the business of the Superior Court will change hands today, when Judge Hahn will assume the office of presiding judge. He is to succeed Judge McLucas, whose six months' term expired yesterday.

Judge McLucas's term of office is regarded by the bar as having been the most significant incumbency in the history of the court. During his presidency the calendars of the court were brought into satisfactory condition for the first time in many years.

The movement toward correction of the congested-calendar situation had advanced to such an extent at the time Judge McLucas assumed office that cases could be heard within a year from date of filing. The installation of the master-calendar system, and careful reorganization and management, the calendar now is in such condition that it is possible to try a suit within sixty days from date of filing.

For the next six months Judge Hahn will be the executive of the court. He will direct the assignment of business of other judges and the policies of court management.

BEACH PAJAMA SHOW MATTER OF FORM

'Twas Case of She and Her Shadow at Silhouette Revue

Glorified Girls Who Stupefied Males

Left to right, Jeanette Cooper Smith and Helen Stelzreide, two of the contestants, and Helen Pritchard, the winner, who is being congratulated by Mrs. Frank Singer of New York.

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

OCEAN PARK, July 1.—It was a lucky lad who could truthfully say that it was "me and my shadow" at this place today. And it was not silly to think of Silhouettes.

Ocean Park pier was the scene of the latest in those contests that glorify the American girl and stupefy the American male. The occasion was the Ocean Park Beach pajama contest and shadow revue, staged under the direction of Gene Inge.

The new beauty contest was operated wit ha assistance only of the sunset and a twelve-foot screen of white material. The girls paraded between the sunset and the screen and—well, it was a matter of form you might say.

The pajama part of it all came in because of the law that requires a covering, in addition to bathing suits, down to the knee for all bathers or beach baskers not actively engaged in beach pursuits.

Contestants were all members of the One Hundred Club of this city. Miss Helen Pritchard won first place for possessing the most beautiful pajamas, and for being the prettiest brunette. She likewise took third place in the personality contest. Miss Thais Argyle won first place for perfect figure, and likewise as being the prettiest blond. Fifteen prizes and three cups were awarded during the contest.

CALIFORNIA DEMOCRATS BACK HOME

Victorious Delegation and Eastern Visitors Arrive on Special Train

Weary, but victorious, in the effort to place the name of Gov. Smith of New York at the head of the Democratic national ticket, the Pacific Coast delegation to the Democratic National Convention yesterday returned from Houston.

Quite a number of easterners, eager to see the famous State of California, were on the special train, which ran as the second section of the Southern Pacific's Sunset Limited. Among them was George Gordon Battle, New York attorney.

Isadore Dockweiler, Democratic National Committeeman for California, accompanied by Mrs. Dockweiler, descended first from the train, declaring, "Al Smith will be the next President." The special train, which continued north last night with delegates from Northern California, Washington and Oregon, stayed over for an hour in Los Angeles, giving the Democrats an opportunity to see the city.

Seconding Mr. Dockweiler in his prophesy of Democratic victory were Justus S. Wardell of San Francisco, chairman of the California delegation and a member of the Smith notification committee; Robert M. Fitzgerald of Oakland, member of the platform committee, and Thomas W. Hickey of San Francisco, who seconded the nomination of Gov. Smith for California.

Many of the delegates retained the California poppy in their buttonholes, somewhat frayed, but still of glorious orange color.

ANIMALS ON VACATION

A country zoo, where tired animals of the London Zoo can go for a holiday and where sick animals can go to recuperate, is proposed in a bill considered by the British Parliament. The estate which would be set aside for the animals covers 480 acres and provides enough room for the animals to exercise in surroundings somewhat like their natural home country. The holiday home for the wild animals would be about forty miles from London.

Water Carnival Plans Arranged

The Italian Societies of Southern California have completed plans for a carnival of Venice, to be staged at the Pacific Southwest Exposition at Long Beach, which opens the 27th inst. and continues through Labor Day.

The fete will be under the auspices of the Italian Fine Arts League, with Paul Francesco Lupo of Los Angeles in general charge.

The exposition grounds in Long Beach Harbor, surrounded by water on three sides, will make the setting for this water carnival which will revive the ancient and modern glory of far-famed Venice. Special costumes have been shipped from Italy and special gondolas and magnificent floats are being constructed, it was announced.

Each day sufficient rain falls upon the earth to fill a reservoir 400 miles square to a depth of ten feet.

NEW BISHOP OF DIOCESE TAKES CHAIR

Rt. Rev. W. B. Stevens of Episcopal Church Given Greeting at Cathedral

Rt. Rev. William Bertrand Stevens, who advanced to the post of bishop of the Los Angeles diocese following the death of Bishop Johnson, yesterday was installed formally in the bishop's chair at St. Pauls' Cathedral. The ceremony took place at the morning services with Very Rev. Harry Beal, dean of the cathedral, and Rev. D. H. Browne and Rev. Dr. Robert Gooden, canons of the cathedral, officiating.

Bishop Stevens served for seven years as bishop-coadjutor of the Los Angeles diocese, having been consecrated on October 12, 1920. Episcopalians high in the church declare that during the time he has been with the local diocese he has succeeded in winning the high esteem and affection of the members of all the churches which have come under his jurisdiction.

At the conclusion of the short installation service Bishop Stevens preached the morning sermon, in which he paid tribute to Bishop Johnson and called on the congregation to unite in its work on behalf of the church. He also pointed out the new opportunity which is presenting itself for the advancement of religious teachings in Southern California.

REDONDO YEARNS FOR BIG CHURCH WEDDING

REDONDO BEACH, July 1.—With the last day of the month of brides marked off the calendar, Redondo Beach has passed its fourth year since there has been a church wedding in this district and society reporters are bewailing the fact that the elaborate ceremony seems to be a thing of the past here. With the exception of the nuptial masses at St. James's Catholic Church, records show no ceremonies performed in the chapels.

BERNSTEIN SUIT DATE TO BE SET

Judge Hahn Will Schedule Trial Today

Effort Also Due to Arrange Coogan Action

Cruelty May Be Basis of Separation Plea

The date for hearing the divorce suit of Corabel Bernstein against Arthur L. Bernstein, in which the plaintiff names Mrs. Lillian Coogan, mother of Jackie Coogan, will be set for this afternoon by Presiding Judge Hahn, according to Attorney Cradick, representing Mrs. Bernstein.

Efforts will be made at the same time to set a trial date for the $750,000 alienation action brought by Mrs. Bernstein against Mrs. Coogan charging alienation of the affections of her husband, production and business manager of the Jackie Coogan Motion Picture Company.

SETTLEMENT UNDER WAY

Attorney Cradick last night announced he had been unable to discuss the setting of the alienation suit date with Attorney Silberberg, representing Mrs. Coogan and Bernstein, but expected to file formal action with the court today requesting a trial day.

A property settlement has been under way some time between the Bernsteins, and it was intimated yesterday the divorce action might go to trial on the grounds of cruelty, and leave the alienation case to bring out the charges against Mrs. Coogan.

DENIALS ALREADY FILED

Categorical denials have already been filed in the divorce suit by Mrs. Coogan and Bernstein of any wrongdoings or acts of infidelity. Mrs. Bernstein in her complaint cites many instances of asserted improprieties on the part of her husband and Mrs. Coogan.

Most of the charged offenses are declared to have occurred while Mrs. Coogan and Bernstein were engaged in the production of a motion picture at San Mateo and during transcontinental journeys between Los Angeles and New York.

Canyon Roads to be Built as Sequel to Suit

After months of hearings in court Superior Judge Fleming has settled the difficulties between the county and landowners by making an arbitrary valuation of the property involved which will make possible the building of roads through Francas, Las Flores and Corral canyons.

Under his decision the Marblehead Land Company will receive $1143 for 1.59 acres in Las Flores Canyon, $3000 for 6.23 acres in Corral Canyon and $1755 for 5.86 acres in Francas Canyon. Mrs. Bertha Hayes will get $590 for 1.76 acres in Las Flores Canyon.

Following the decision the county announces that word on the roads will begin at once.

Injured Wife Blames Mate

Declaring that her husband had struck her with a bottle during a quarrel in their home at 1462¼ East Forty-eighth street, Blanche Williams, 28 years of age, was treated at the Georgia-street Receiving Hospital last night for two lacerations on her forehead.

Before investigating officers from the Newton-street station could arrive at the woman's home the husband, Lee Williams, had departed. The officers continued their search for him.

Bandit Robs Gas Station

Ordering J. H. Berry, operator of an oil station at Santa Barbara and Normandie avenues, to open the cash register, a lone bandit in an automobile escaped with $29.75 late last night.

Berry reported that the bandit drove into his station, flourished a revolver, rifled the cash drawer and sped away. University police attempted to trace the bandit through Berry's description of him and the report that he spoke with a foreign accent.

UNUSUAL SPECIMEN OF CORAL OBTAINED

Edwina Hough and Chunk

Persons accustomed to thinking of coral as tiny bits of rock-like formation strung into necklaces were enlightened this week-end when officers of the Lassco liner City of Honolulu exhibited a piece of coral weighing six pounds and measuring eight inches in diameter.

The big specimen, which is white and resembles a cauliflower in structure, was obtained by a diver at Kahului, Island of Maui, T. H.

PLANE BUILT FOR RECORD GETS TEST

Capt. Turner and Staff Try Out Biplane That Will Seek Endurance Mark

The first test flight of the six-passenger biplane, in which Capt. Roscoe Turner and Billy Stapp will attempt to break the present world endurance flight record, was made yesterday at Caddo Field in the San Fernando Valley. The plane remained aloft for about twenty minutes, carrying a 1000-pound load in the cabin.

Test flights will be made over various sections of California during the next three weeks, according to Turner, during which decision will be made as to the field from which to start the endurance flight.

After the endurance flight attempts will be made to lower other records, the airmen said, including the Speedway race at Altoona, Pa., on August 18, and the nonstop race from New York to Los Angeles for the national air races in September. Otto Timm, designer and builder of the plane, was a passenger on the test flight yesterday.

June Collyer Departs for Work Abroad

Miss Collyer was on her way to Europe to make a picture. Mr. Walsh is going to New York to confer with Winfield R. Sheehan, vice-president of the Fox company, about a talking picture.

Miss Collyer, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Clayton J. Heermance, will sail on the S.S. Berengaria the 15th inst. Director David Butler and Nick Stuart, who will play opposite her, also will make the trip.

Protests Pour in on Zoning Issue

Protests against the proposed zoning ordinance continue to arrive at the City Hall, the latest being from the Civic Center Boulevard Improvement Association. This organization asks the City Council to delay action indefinitely on the ordinance proposed by the City Planning Commission and in case new basic zoning regulations are needed that the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, Realty Board, Downtown Business Men's Association and other organizations be taken into conference on the matter.

The proposed ordinance is now before the Council's City Planning Committee for consideration and report.

ESTIMATES DIFFER FROM COST

The original estimate of cost for the Hetch-Hetchy Dam project was $45,000,000. On March 1, 1916, the engineer's estimate was $51,607,980. The project is not yet more than half completed. There had been expended in 1925 a total sum of $54,470,816, and the estimated cost to complete at that time was $149,000,000 in addition to what had already been spent.

CLEW OBTAINED IN FORTINE CASE

Woman Describes Pair Who Robbed Her

Cafe Acquaintance Took Her to Room

Does Not Know His Name or Where She Met Him

Detailed descriptions of the two men who Mrs. William H. Fortine, wife of a prominent real estate contractor, says beat and robbed her of $9000 worth of diamonds and clothes in an apartment late Saturday night were given to Captain of Detectives Bartley by the asserted victim late yesterday.

An arrest was predicted by detectives at Central Station following a more detailed account of her experience given to the investigating officers last night.

According to the report made by Mrs. Fortine, she met a man at a cafe, known to her as Pat's Place, two months ago. She does not know the name of the man or the address of the cafe. It was this man, she asserted, who took her to his apartment at 1228 3-4 North Hoover street. There, according to the police report, the two had a few drinks before the arrival of a second man.

After that, Mrs. Fortine reported, she remembers nothing until she awoke to find her diamonds and two suit cases missing. She went to the manager of the apartment-house, W. B. Tacken, and told him her story. He called the police.

Mrs. Fortine said that she was on her way to San Francisco when she met the man she cannot name and who, she asserts, was an accomplice in robbing her. She was at her home at 112 South Plymouth avenue yesterday.

When Mrs. Fortine appealed to Tacken for aid, he reported that she had pieces of the rope, with which she said she was tied, still on her body. She also asserted that the unidentified pair gagged her.

ACTIVITY OF REDS IN CITY DENOUNCED

Police Speaker Sounds Warning at Meeting of Civic Liberties Union

Speaking before a meeting of the American Civil Liberties Union at the Walker Auditorium last night, Lieut. William F. Hynes, assistant in command of the Intelligence Bureau of the Los Angeles Police Department, declared that the activities of the Communists and their sympathizers in Los Angeles make the maintenance of the Intelligence Bureau absolutely necessary.

He asserted that the "Red" groups in the city are advocating the overthrow of the government by violence and are ready to work with the Communists of Russia to bring about that end. To accede to the demands of the Civil Liberties Union, made at the meeting last week to wipe out the Intelligence Bureau of the Police Department, he declared would permit the foes of the country to operate unchecked.

Although he spoke before a hostile audience, Lieut. Hynes, at the request of the chairman, was accorded an uninterrupted hearing. At the close of his speech members of the audience took the platform to refute his remarks.

Robert W. Bagnall, director of branches of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in pleading for the equality and brotherhood of races was applauded vigorously. He told his audience that the labor unions have lost a tremendous force for the upbuilding of a class consciousness in the United States by turning their backs on their black brothers.

SALES RULE CLARIFIED IN COURT CASE

Growers May Sell "as is" to Middleman But He Must Sort Produce

Growers of nuts and fruits may sell their products to the middlemen "as is," but persons selling to the consumer must eliminate such portions of it as are unfit for consumption before offering it for sale, Judge McDaniel in Superior Court has ruled, in a case involving the constitutionality of the State law regulating distribution of these commodities.

Ralph W. Gold, dealer, had appealed from a Municipal Court judgment finding him guilty of violation of the law. He appealed on the ground that the act discriminates as between the seller to the distributor and the seller to the consumer. Judge McDaniel held that the functions of the two are so different that there is no discrimination, and held the act constitutional.

Suspect Held on Worthless Check Charge

After telling officials of a Sherman bank that he had funds in a Canton (Ill.) bank, Lester K. Robinson is asserted by police to have cashed a worthless check for $10 by showing the Sherman bank application for transfer of funds to W. W. Barney, owner of a radio shop at 2400 South Vermont avenue.

Robinson is in custody charged with suspicion of forgery. Detective Lieutenants Miller and Jamison, investigating officers, reported that Robinson had no funds in the Canton bank at the time he made application for transfer, the latter part of last week.

Here's Dubious Tale of Reprehensible Cow With Prehensile Tail

Spades may be spades, but all cows are not just plain cows—some are almost as fiendish as humans in their plots for revenge of fancied wrongs, Aloysius Martingale-Doolittle, aristocratic dairy hand, told Chief Deputy Labor Commissioner Barker while filing a claim for $65 unpaid wages.

"You see, sir, it was this way," Doolittle began. "I went to work for Farmer Summerbill and soon found out he has an odd notion about cows. He thinks cows with the longest tails give the most milk.

"Yes sir, he made us milkers give those cows' tails special massages and stretching exercises every morning. His favorite cow was the one with the longest tail. Her name was Deborah and she was some cow—mostly tail. Why her tail dragged on the ground three feet behind her and I think she was mighty proud of it. Thought she was queen of the ranch, Deborah did, and I guess she was, because Summerbill looked after her himself and would not let one of us touch her until he went away for a few days.

"I had to care for Deborah while he was gone and unfortunately the first morning I stretched her tail a little too much. It was unintentional and a very unfortunate accident it proved to be. It made her mad at me. That night while I was milking she slapped me across the face with her tail. See those welts? That's what she did.

"To prevent her doing it again I tied a brick on her tail. She certainly had a mighty strong tail because in one swish she knocked me cold with that brick and I did not wake up until next morning.

"Well, sir, you hardly would believe it but that was just the start of what that cow did to me. She had trained that tail until it was more agile than a monkey's and she was as deft in using it as a cowboy is with a rope.

"When I woke up she grabbed a pail half full of milk from under the next cow and poured it down my neck. Then, sir, she threw a noose around my foot and upset me most uncomfortably. Finally she looked around and winked, yes sir, actually winked, and calmly wound that tail in a stranglehold around my neck and nearly choked the life out of me. The more I struggled to get free, the tighter she gripped. She dangled me up and down in the air and swished me over the backs of the other cows and bounced me up and down on the ground. Finally she turned me loose, half dead, and looked around and smiled. Yes sir, she curled up her lip and sneered.

"I got mad and cut her tail off and just to get revenge she laid down and died. When Summerbill came home he was angry and chased me off the place without any clothes or wages. Do you think you can get them for me?"

Anticipating a record attendance of students and teachers from all parts of the country and also from some foreign nations, U.S.C. has fifty-six professors from various colleges and universities of the United States to assist the regular faculty during the summer session.

Mr. Kean realizes that his widow will not be able to keep herself in present home, and then Mr. Kean is dissatisfied. So he is going to provide a certificate of ownership in the DISABILITY AND DEATH BENEFIT PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION, backed by millions of dollars of assets, reserve to pay for his equity in PARADISE PARK, and also to provide purchase price and also provide for his widow.

Mr. Kean is looking into this matter. THERE ARE ONLY A FEW LOTS LEFT IN PARADISE PARK AT THE PRESENT LOW PRICES. CONSIDERATION TO BE MADE TO THOSE WHO BUY THIS WEEK. COME OUT TODAY AND HAVE THIS PROPOSITION EXPLAINED TO YOU.
